Will Rogers Remarks:

SANTA MONICA, Oct. 12. [To the Editor of The Times:] In a Sunday article I stated that the dinner party was our only cannibalism. I was wrong as usual for I just learned of this case: Crossing the divide from Utah to Colorado in 1872 a man named Packard evidently practiced it. He was convicted in Del Norte, Colo., and the judge passed sentence as follows: "Packard, you have committed the world's most fiendish crime, you not only murdered your companions, but you ate up every Democrat in Hillsdale county, you are to hang by the neck till you are dead and may God have mercy on your Republican soul." They live off the Democrats but this was the only one we could ever convict.

PRESIDENT BACK FROM CAMP VISIT

Hoover's Son Found to Be "Doing Very Nicely," Says White House Physician

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. (AP)—President Hoover returned to the White House tonight from his mountain lodge in Virginia after an unusually fast run through the heavy Sunday traffic.

Capt. Joel T. Boone, White House physician, who went with the President to the camp, said they found Herbert Hoover, Jr., who is ill with tubercular infection, "doing very nicely."

He is expected to remain at the camp until cold weather forces a change, and then a decision will be made as to where he should be taken.

Mr. Hoover, accompanied in his car by John Agnew of London, Capt. Boone and Lawrence Richey, one of his secretaries, returned earlier than usual, arriving just before dusk. Heavy traffic was encountered along most of the 100-mile drive, particularly as they neared the capital, and a different route leading through Potomac Park to the White House was taken to avoid the jam.

Father Dies in Hunt Accident

ROSEBURG (Or.) Oct. 12. (AP)—F. L. Akeley of Salem was shot accidentally and killed by his son Edward, 12 years of age, in a hunting accident in the mountains near Yoncalla today, reports received here said.

Accounts of the accident said Akeley and his two sons, Edward and Clifford, 10, were climbing a mountain with Edward using his rifle as a staff. The gun was discharged, the bullet piercing the father's back.

CHINA HAILS VICTORIES

Closing of War Anticipated

Nationalists Claim Sweeping Triumphs in Campaign to End Revolution

Troops Now Expected to Be Sent Against Reds for Final Clean-ups

SHANGHAI, Oct. 12. (AP)—Conclusive victories claimed tonight by Nationalist government officials foreshadow the end of China's latest civil war.

Nanking's military machine now is operating solely in Northwestern Honan Province seeking to crush the government's one remaining formidable openly hostile faction, Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang's Kuominchun.

Nationalist military headquarters said that during the last forty-eight hours Marshall Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist troops have achieved a series of brilliant victories over the rebels along the Haichow-Tungkwan Railway and west of Chengchow are occupying the important city of Honanfu, generally smashing the Kuominchun grip throughout extreme Northwestern Honan.

THOUSANDS CAPTURED

The military also said that north of Chengchow government troops routed the weakening Kuominchun and "Nationalists have crossed the Yellow River capturing and disarming 60,000 rebels, while the remainder have fled northward before our advancing troops." Nanking said the victories mark the shattering of an united front by the Kuominchun and asserted that "from Feng Yu-hsiang's original army of 260,000 men we have killed 30,000, captured and disarmed 160,000 and driven the remaining 70,000 into the southeastern borders of Shansi Province, where, without leadership, equipment or supplies, they constitute no menace as a military unit."

The victories, Nanking said, "will mark the end of the 1930 civil war, which has constituted the most serious threat against the Nationalist regime since it assumed a major position in China's politics."

ERA OF PEACE SEEN

As a result of these asserted favorable developments in Nanking's cause, Nationalist circles tonight jubilantly forecast a political future indicating only an era of peace and economic rehabilitation which will allow the government to turn its attention to the multitude of matters awaiting consideration. The most outstanding is the admittedly serious Communist movement throughout Central and Southern China and has reduced those areas to virtual chaos, paralyzing trade, terrorizing the populace and nullifying Nanking's efforts to establish law and order.

The military said Marshal Chiang Kai-shek has already outlined a plan to withdraw 40,000 Nationalist soldiers from Honan Province, take them into Hupeh, Hunan and Kiangsi Provinces and undertake a campaign against the Reds. The number of Nationalist troops would be increased as soon as peace was finally established north of the Yangtse River.

Fireman Dies in Passenger Train Wreck

DALLAS, Oct. 12. (AP)—One man was killed and another seriously hurt late today when eastbound Texas and Pacific passenger train No. 10 left the rails and overturned in a ditch near Eagle Ford, Dallas county, west of the city. R. A. Short, Big Spring, fireman, was killed, and T. B. Petty, Fort Worth, engineer, was seriously injured.

An unidentified woman passenger also was seriously hurt.

The engine overturned and lay on its back, while the tender and four cars, including three baggage cars, were scattered, some crosswise on the tracks along the roadbed. Rails were torn up for hundreds of feet.

WITNESSING MAN'S DEATH KILLS GIRL

Strange Fatality Laid to Cerebral Hemorrhage Induced by Shock

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 12. (AP)—Eighteen-year-old Alice Corff died today—twelve hours after she had seen a man killed in a traffic accident. Physicians who attended her described the case as strange.

The girl was waiting for a bus near a South Oklahoma City grade crossing yesterday when a freight train struck the motor car of John Zweifel, killing him. Miss Corff went home and told her mother the accident had made her ill. She talked continually of it and finally collapsed. Early this morning she died without regaining consciousness.

Physicians were unable to fix definitely the cause of death but Dr. O. W. Wright advanced the theory Miss Corff died of a cerebral hemorrhage induced by shock. The symptoms were similar to those usually attending a hemorrhage, he said, although he added he had seen "nothing quite like it in twenty-seven years of practice."

Man Wounded at Charivari

VINCENNES (Ind.) Oct. 11. (Exclusive)—Thomas Scott, 28 years of age, is in the hospital here with a bullet in his neck, received when his grandfather, Joseph P. Scott, 88-year-old bridegroom, fired a gun at a group to break up a charivari.

The grandfather married Mrs. Rosa Haughe, 58, and a group of young people went to his home to give him an old-fashioned charivari. Scott stood treats but the crowd returned a second time and Scott ordered its members to leave the place. They refused and he fired to scare them away. One of the bullets struck young Scott in the mouth, severing his tongue, and lodged in the back of his neck.

Police Charge on Republicans; Fifty Injured

BARCELONA, Oct. 12. (AP)—Fifty persons were reported injured at Lerida today in clashes between police and a crowd which attempted to parade in honor of the return of Col. Francisco Macia, Catalonian Nationalist leader, from several years' exile.

Thousands met Col. Macia at the railroad station. After Macia had gone home the crowd started marching up the street. Police charged them. Since none of the injured was taken to a hospital, the authorities believe all hurts were slight.

Col. Francisco Macia, Catalonian Separatist, was exiled by the late Primo De Rivera. He visited New York about two years ago and said he would remain in Germany until the dictatorship fell. He had been exiled for leading a group of armed Republicans across the Spanish frontier.

Ship Off Azores Sends Radio Call for Help

NEW YORK, Oct. 12. (Exclusive) Distress signals from the Italian steamer Voluntas, which stated the ship is helpless off the Azores with a damaged steering gear, were intercepted here today by the Mackay Radio Company. Later a message was picked up from the Berengaria that it had intercepted the Voluntas's distress calls. The Homeric also is said to have heard signals from the stricken vessel.

The ship, giving its position to the Berengaria as 42.16 north latitude and 37.43 west longitude, approximately 700 miles northwest of the Azores, pleaded it must have immediate assistance. The Berengaria, which did not state its own position, said it had advised an English coastal station.

Excitement of Ball Game Kills

VALLEJO, Oct. 12. (AP)—Excitement of a football game yesterday was believed to have caused the death here today of Dr. Leo Vorwerk, dentist and District Deputy of the Knights of Columbus.

He dropped dead of heart disease shortly after noon while discussing with friends highlights of the game between the University of California and St. Mary's College. Friends said he appeared greatly excited yesterday during the game.

Although Mr. Robinson had not been in the best of health recently, he appeared at his Baltimore office yesterday. He returned home at the usual hour and became ill about 9 o'clock.

FASCIST'S FOES HURL DEFIANCE

German Social Democrats Hold Huge Demonstration Lead by Dr. Loebe

BERLIN, Oct. 12. (AP)—Tens of thousands of German Socialists, under the leadership of Dr. Paul Loebe, Social-Democratic president of the Reichstag, today hurled defiance at Fascism and dictatorships in a great demonstration in the Lustgarten.

Dr. Loebe declared "the Social-Democrats will oppose the Fascists with iron will, and if necessary with workmen's fists."

He said the demonstration was intended to inspire the Social-Democratic members of the Reichstag with confidence for the coming parliamentary struggle, and to remind them they were supported by millions of politically disciplined workers.

He sarcastically said that even Adolf Hitler, Fascist leader, had been unable to blow away with a single breath the war tributes that Germany was paying for its present economic depression.

The depression, he asserted, was really an international financial crisis, and "not reduction of wages, but extension of opportunity for work, is needed for the millions of our unemployed."

MacDONALD CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Prime Minister of England Appears Careworn on Sixty-fourth Anniversary

LONDON, Oct. 12. (AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald is celebrating his sixty-fourth birthday anniversary today at his country home, Chequers.

Weighed by heavy official burdens and by the loss of one of his closest personal friends in the R-101 disaster, Lord Thompson, Mr. MacDonald is careworn and tired.

Reports are again current regarding his health, but his friends give assurances he is all right, while his rugged recuperative powers are known. His friends say he will be well able to carry out the heavy program of work facing him this fall—the completion of the imperial conference, the new session of Parliament and the round table conference on India.

PREHISTORIC EGG FOUND

Dinosaur Nested in Montana

Princeton Expedition's Find First of Like Nature in America

Tooth Also Unearthed May Give Clew to Mystery of Reptile's Passing

PRINCETON (N. J.) Oct. 12. (AP) The first discovery in America of eggs of the dinosaur, prehistoric animals ranging from the size of tabby cats to eighty-foot leviathans, was announced tonight at Princeton University.

The eggs were found last summer near Red Lodge, Southern Montana, along with the discovery of another fossil which suggests an answer to one of the great riddles of evolution, why dinosaurs became extinct after populating possibly the whole earth and seemingly dominating it.

OUTGUESSED THEM

The discovery indicates they collided with a higher form of intelligence.

Announcement of finding the eggs was made by Dr. Glenn L. Jepsen, director of the Scott Fund expedition of Princeton University, who unearthed them.

This is the second authenticated find of dinosaur eggs. The first were found in Mongolia by Roy Chapman Andrews of the American Museum of Natural History. The Mongolian eggs, nearly a foot long, at first were pronounced 10,000,000 years old, an estimate which was raised to 95,000,000 years last winter after scientists had checked the radio-activity of the minerals which turned them to stone. Describing the Montana work, Dr. Jepsen said:

EGGS ALL BROKEN

"A number of broken remains of eggs were found in fragments not more than an inch in diameter. Their age is estimated at millions of years.

"The fragments resemble those found in Mongolia in several particulars, both occurring in closely similar geologic formations. The American eggs were found in the Upper Lance formation, which was deposited in Upper Cretaceous times."

Upper Cretaceous is the end of a period which geologists estimate as beginning about 125,000,000 years ago and lasting about 50,000,000 years. Thus the Montana eggs might be about 75,000,000 years old.

"The Mongolian eggs," said Dr. Jepsen, "came from the Djadochta formation, which also is Cretaceous. Since the Mongolian formations are known to be older than the American ones it is logical to believe the eggs found this summer are younger than those found in Mongolia.

LARGER, NATURALLY

"The broken remains found by the Scott Fund expedition are rough and pitted. These characteristics belong also to the Mongolian ones, although the American eggs are black, whereas those found in Mongolia are reddish-brown. The original eggs from which the fragments came possibly were larger than those found in Mongolia. It is the plan of the expedition to return to the same locality at a future date to search for perfect specimens and excavate for them if necessary."

The suggestion of the dinosaurs' fate came from finding near the eggs a small tooth of an apparently contemporary animal, a mammal possibly of the opossum family. The early mammals, though small, had better brains than the dinosaurs, which were reptiles despite their legs, various horns, armor plate, claws and teeth.

MIGHT BE INSTINCT

The little mammals had the intelligence, presumably, to eat dinosaur eggs, a prolific source of food.

This competition from higher forms of intelligence has been a favorite theory to account for extinction of dinosaurs, but mammals largely have been left out of the picture because evidence of their be-

FLOGGINGS PROPOSED

Lash Sought by Wickersham

Leader of Law Enforcement Commission Urges Study of Crime War Plan

Present Police Forces Held Unable to Stem Tide of Trained Gangsters

LOUISVILLE (Ky.) Oct. 12. (Exclusive)—A careful inquiry into the results of flogging as punishment for certain offenses and a prevention of further wrongdoing "may well be made to determine the desirability of employing it in the war against banditry and racketeers," in the opinion of George W. Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's law enforcement commission.

Mr. Wickersham's views on the American penal system were set forth in a paper read here tonight before the American Prison Association. He had been scheduled to deliver these views in person, but was compelled to cancel the engagement.

STUDY SUGGESTED

He pointed out that in England and Canada flogging by birch or by "the cat" is inflicted, adding that he knows of only one State here, Delaware, where the whip is used.

After suggesting a study of flogging as a punishment for certain offenses, Mr. Wickersham said:

"As a deterrent to others, flogging would seem a priori to present great advantages, but it would be unsafe to assume that as a fact without inquiring into the subsequent career of the flogged offenders as well as into the general effect upon the volume of crimes of the character thus punished."

Touching on the prevention of crime, he said that it may be doubted whether there is an adequate and properly trained police force in any city of the Union.

SMART CRIMINALS

"Much modern crime of the spectacular sort is organized and conducted by fearless men using modern methods and acting on the principle of audacity and surprise," he said. "Nowhere do the police forces appear to have developed methods of defense equal in intelligence and method to those of the aggressors. Nowhere, apparently—not even in Chicago—has an enlightened and imperative public sentiment demanded that the police forces be reorganized, given adequate appropriations and held strictly accountable for the protection of public order."

Mr. Wickersham contended that this country's penal laws and their administration very largely follow traditional lines and are a hopeless mixture of revengeful and reformatory measures, executed in an imperfect and haphazard manner.

Lindberghs Buy Farm Acreage Near Princeton

NEW YORK, Oct. 12. (Exclusive) Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh have purchased 150 acres of farmland near Princeton on which it is probable they will erect a home within a year. In confirming the report Col. Lindbergh said the land as it stands is not suitable for a flying field, but that it will be possible to land a small plane on it with ease.

Col. Lindbergh still maintains his official residence at St. Louis. When he builds on his new property it is possible it will be listed as a temporary domicile and that he still will continue to "live" officially at St. Louis. No plans have been made yet as to the type of residence he will build nor has he laid out a flying field.

FILM BLAST GROUP GAINS

Two Still on Doubtful List, But Remainder of Those Injured in Arizona, Improve

FLAGSTAFF (Ariz.) Oct. 12. (AP)—With two cases still on the doubtful list, the remainder of the fifteen persons injured yesterday when a charge of black powder and dynamite exploded prematurely during the making of a motion picture near here, were recovering from their injuries in hospitals here and in Tuba City.

Twenty-five others were slightly injured, but were treated at the scene by physicians from Flagstaff, and are practically over their hurts today.

Physicians have dispaired of saving the life of William F. Wallace of Flagstaff, following an operation to remove pieces of broken skull. He was brought to Flagstaff following the blast.

Frank Galland, powderman and electrician with the company, is the other seriously injured. He is at Tuba City with a fractured skull.

The company had been sent to Arizona by Pathe Studios, Inc., of Hollywood, to make a desert picture which called for a landslide. Powder and dynamite had been placed in the side of a cliff and cameramen were spotted on points of vantage.

Suddenly the charge exploded, hurling rocks and debris in all directions, shattering two of the cameras, ruining the sound equipment and knocking members of the company down.

Others injured include Howard Higgin, director, broken ankle, cuts; Bert Gilroy, business manager, sprained leg, cut on head; Walter Hoffman, powderman, broken leg, cuts; Hubert Morgan, helper, Flagstaff, broken collar bone; William Garrett, broken ankle, possible internal injuries; Jim Cunningham, back, head and legs injured, possible internal injuries; Margin Peterson, ribs broken, possible internal injuries.

With the exception of the two Flagstaff men, all the others are from Hollywood.

RANCHER KILLED BY PLANE

Craft Turns Over and Couple Hurt When Flyer Runs Down Field Guide Holding Lantern

BANNING, Oct. 12. (Exclusive)—While holding a lantern to guide an airplane to a landing on a field near his home, J. D. Livingston, 34 years of age, a Morongo Valley rancher, was run down by the plane and received injuries which resulted in his death late last night at a local hospital.

The plane, a Travelair biplane, was piloted by A. J. Flaherty of Torrance, and in it were also Flaherty's wife and a man named Jensen. They had set out in the afternoon to visit friends in the Morongo Valley near Livingston's ranch.

It was not the first time they had made the trip and, as on their previous trips, they planned to land on a stretch of Livingston's ranch which is the only level ground in the vicinity. The rancher knew them and had no objection to their using his ground as a landing field.

It was early evening when Livingston heard the hum of Flaherty's plane and, since the visibility was poor, he decided to hold a lighted lantern out on the field as a landing mark for the aviator. Flaherty saw Livingston holding the light and guided the descending plane toward it.

As the plane swooped out of the semidarkness toward him, Livingston evidently became confused or thought the pilot was misjudging his direction, for he turned and ran, but his flight took him directly into the path of the plane too late for Flaherty to swerve out of his way, and Livingston was struck by the lower wing of the plane, which was taxiing at a high speed.

The impact and Flaherty's frantic effort to avoid hitting Livingston turned the plane over on its back, but the pilot and his wife were only slightly injured, while Jensen was unscathed. They saw, however, that Livingston had been badly injured, and they placed him in his automobile and rushed him thirty miles to this city, where he died in the hospital three hours later.

An inquest was held this morning and Livingston's death was declared by a Coroner's jury to have been an unavoidable accident. Testimony disclosed he became excited and ran in front of the plane as it neared the ground.

CROP CREDITS HELD AMPLE

Reserve Board's Review Gives Assurance

Strong Position of Nation's Banks Set Forth

Other Encouraging Factors Also Disclosed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. (AP)—Assurance was given today by the Federal Reserve Board that ample credit facilities are available for orderly movement of agricultural crops to market.

In its monthly review of business and financial conditions the board says ample credit for this purpose is assured through "the exceptionally strong position of commercial banks and of the Reserve banks, the prevailing ease in credit conditions, the low level of money rates, and the attitude of the Federal Reserve system."

The statement recalls that on September 24, last, the board had promised the American farmers that it was eager to have its available resources used to finance the movement of crops at the lowest interest rates ever charged by the Federal Reserve banks.

INCREASE IN DEPOSITS

The board says that for the year ending in September there had been an increase of $1,125,000,000 in deposits shown by the reporting member banks. Of this amount there was an increase of $470,000,000 in net demand deposits and an increase of $655,000,000 in time deposits.

This growth, the board sets forth, is nearly twice the increase in loans and investments which had advanced $615,000,000 in the year. New York City banks showed an increase of $444,000,000 in demand deposits and an increase of $175,000,000 in time deposits, while outside New York City the increase in net demand deposits was $26,000,000 and $480,000,000 in time deposits.

INFLOW OF GOLD

"The more rapid growth of deposits than of loan and investments during the year, which is usual during a period of business recession, reflects in part an inflow into the banks of gold from abroad and of currency from circulation," the review says.

"The country's stock of monetary gold increased during the year by about $130,000,000 and the outstanding volume of money in circulation was diminished by $300,000,000 owing to decreased demand caused by reduced pay rolls, a smaller volume of retail trade and a lower level of commodity prices."

The board states conditions in the money market remained easy in September and that although the usual seasonal change at this time was upward there was little change in the demand for Reserve bank credit.

WOMEN ENVIOUS OF OLD HAT

Jaunty Bonnet, 106 Years Old, Wins Contest at Texas Church

WACO (Tex.) Oct. 12. (Exclusive)—Mrs. E. E. McKinley wore her oldest hat to church here recently and was the object of envy on the part of all the other women present. But the occasion was a contest to determine who owned the oldest hat and Mrs. McKinley's 106-year-old bonnet took the prize. The creation, a tiny affair meant to perch jauntily on the top of the head, originated at Albany, N. Y., and was given to Mrs. McKinley by her mother.

HARVARD'S DAILY HITS AT LEGION

Convention in Boston Last Week Called "Wholesale Brawl Worse Than Riot"

CAMBRIDGE (Mass.) Oct. 17. (AP) The Harvard Crimson, undergraduate daily newspaper, yesterday termed the Legion convention in Boston last week a "wholesale brawl" which "was worse than a subway riot or a drunken football crowd."

The editorial brought immediate replies from Mayor Russell of Cambridge and Ralph W. Robart, Past Commander of the Cambridge post of the American Legion. The latter demanded the immediate resignation of those students responsible for the editorial and said Harvard students have failed to be sufficiently patriotic on several occasions in the past.

No other country in the world, the Crimson said, "would countenance the spectacle of the recent American Legion Convention in Boston." The paper termed the affair "merely an excuse for a wholesale brawl" and continued that Boston had seen fit "to allow a total relaxation of law and order during the stay in the Hub of the 'buddies' who fought to make the world safe for democracy and come back to raise hell annually so no one can forget it."

Mayor Russell said he attended several affairs during the Legion's stay in Boston and failed to see evidence warranting such an editorial. He said he saw many persons intoxicated but most of them were too young to be Legionnaires.

High School Boy Killed by Officer

SEATTLE, Oct. 12. (AP)—Anthony Vlavadas, 16-year-old high-school student, was shot and killed here early today by Patrolman Wilson, who said he caught the youth stealing a musical instrument.

Nick Gharvilloff, who, Wilson said, was with Vlavadas, escaped and later told the Vlavadas family of their son's fate and was frustrated in a suicide attempt by Detective Lieutenant McCarthy, who called at the boy's home to arrest him.

Patrolman Wilson said he discovered the boys in front of a music store, a window of which had been broken. When Wilson approached them they dropped a saxophone and clarinet and ran, failing to heed warning shots and his commands to halt, he said.

SEA-POWER PROJECT PROSPECTS EXPLAINED

HAVANA, Oct. 12. (AP)—Construction of Prof. Georges Claude's thermo-dynamic power plant on the south coast of Cuba to supply the island with industrial power obtained from the sea will require at least two years, Andre Claude, son of the famous French scientist, said today. The statement, with the comment the plant may not be built in Cuba, came in answer to press reports that Prof. Claude probably would have a plant operating at Santiago De Cuba by February 1, 1931.

Pan-American Institute Discusses Trade

Mexican Describes Ending Feudal Control

JACKSONVILLE (Ill.) Oct. 12. (AP)—Prof. William S. Robertson of the University of Illinois told the institute on Pan-American relations it will probably be better for North America to let South American nations fight out their own difficulties with European countries than to invoke the Monroe Doctrine.

There have been so many attempts on the part of the United States to manifest its good intentions by the Monroe Doctrine, which have resulted in ill feeling "that perhaps if we would forget it and let our sister nations solve their own difficulties they might become stronger."

The institute is being held at McMurray College and is managed by Chester D. Pugsley of Peekskill, N. Y., banker-philanthropist. It is the second institute he has contributed to a better understanding of Pan-American relations in Illinois.

How the North American commercial conception of South America has been changed from "rum, molasses and slaves" to comprehension of its real position in world market was told by Dr. Chester Lloyd Jones.

Dr. Jones, commercial expert of the University of Wisconsin, said that in spite of popular belief that American tariff legislation was aimed to determining trade with Latin and Central America and lands of the Caribbean, the reverse is true.

"The American policy is much more liberal than those of European countries in which typical Latin-American exports are as a rule subject to tariffs," he said, discussing the Smoot tariff provisions and similar legislation.

He said that American investment in South American projects is in effect "making us all stockholders in their business to the extent of hundreds of millions of dollars."

"Who then will say that the prosperity of Latin-American countries then is a matter of small concern to the industries of the United States?"

Termination of feudal control of farming land and intensive education were described by Senor Manuel C. Tellez, Mexican Ambassador to the United States, as two factors which will eventually elevate Mexico to a proper place among the nations. Tellez was speaker at the institute banquet tonight.

"The day of great 'haciendas' and their indifferent management by feudal lords is past," he said. "Mexico is also founding agencies of agricultural credit to finance the new, impecunious small farmer, this making it possible for him to start work."

PREACHER HAS YET TO VIEW PLAY

New Yorker, 87 Years of Age, Has Never Seen Stage Act or Moving Picture

NEW YORK, Oct. 12. (Exclusive) Persons who feel they cannot get along without seeing at least one talkie, vaudeville show or stage play each week might consider the case of Dr. George Alexander, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, on a fringe of New York's Bohemian Greenwich Village.

On his eighty-seventh birthday he mentioned casually today that he has never yet—despite many years spent in gay New York—gone to the theater, or even seen a film.

"There are so much comedy and tragedy in life," he explained, "that I never have felt the need of seeing it portrayed in make believe on the stage or screen. Life is a process of selection—you cannot do everything you should—so I have left the theater out."

Dr. Alexander observed his birthday today only by preaching his regular sermon—just as he has passed his Sundays for the last sixty-two years.

SPOKANE (Wash.) Oct. 12. (AP)—Senator Borah of Idaho, said today that if public utilities operating in Pennsylvania have engaged in politics and are spending "money which must necessarily come from the rate payers," he favors a Senatorial investigation.

Senator Borah told the Associated Press he had been in communication with Pennsylvania Republicans who said the utilities have declared war on Gifford E. Pinchot, and that W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, had resigned as Republican National Committeeman in order to oppose Pinchot.

NEW PEAK SEEN IN LATIN TRADE

Dr. Julius Klein Optimistic Over South America

Political Unrest Called Part of World Readjustment

People Urged to Take Long and Deep View

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. (AP)—The political unrest in several Latin-American countries was described tonight by Dr. Julius Klein, assistant Secretary of Commerce, as a "part of the world grief of economic readjustment."

In a radio speech over the Columbia Broadcasting System, Dr. Klein said that while "agitation is in evidence, we should not permit ourselves to be misled by these immediate symptoms of troublous, trying times."

"The period of economic readjustment is tragic in many respects," he added. "I grant there is opportunity right now for those cynical observers who delight in the sounding of dour, sour notes. But we should not accord to their outgivings too weighty a consideration.

"Viewing Latin America, in particular, we must take not only the long view, but the deep view—a view that spans the future decades and embraces the vast resources whose true extent is only imperfectly perceived as yet; a view that recognizes the inevitable fact that 'life and business will go on' and a view that comprehends the benefits that will arise out of 'mutual interchange' in many fields, between ourselves and the Latin-American peoples."

Reviewing the figures of inter-American trade, the growth during the last decade as well as the recession which has taken place during the current year, he suggested the present period might eventually be called "a constructive recession, during which were laid the foundations for another major cycle in the Latin-American movement which may well be expected to surpass the previous peaks of 1920 and 1929."

BRAZIL REBELS MEET CHECKS

has taken the small port of Caravellos.

A radio message from Rio de Janeiro, intercepted by rebel stations here, contained orders to all naval vessels, some of which are stationed outside Florianopolis, or Desterro, to proceed with all speed to the Federal capital. Meanwhile rebel troops advancing down the coast of Santa Catharina, after their victory at Joinville, occupied Blumeneau, a few miles north of Florianopolis. One hundred and twenty-five additional prisoners have been taken at Joinville with the surrender of a remaining Federal contingent which had held out there.

Troops under Gen. Miguel Costa of the Rio Grande Do Sul army have occupied both Pointe Ribeira and Ourinho, in the State of Sao Paulo, their leader notified insurgent headquarters here. The way, he said, is open for capture of Itarare, important railway point on the line from Castro, directly into the city of Sao Paulo. Singues also has been taken by the insurgents.

SKIRMISHES REPORTED

A northern section of Gen. Costa's army reported skirmishes at both Jacareisinho and San Jose da Platina, in Northeastern Parana, with forces of the Sao Paulo defending army, but in both cases, it was asserted, the Sao Paulistas fled. Other forces headed by the deputy, Ataiaviva Leonal, have entered Sao Paulo.

The insurgent headquarters also asserted today that the State of Amazonas, which hitherto has been loyal to the Federal government, is "convulsed" with revolutionary agitation and it is expected the Governor there will be deposed. Mattos Peixotos, Governor of Para, is said to have been taken prisoner with a considerable amount of money on his person.

An intercepted radio message from Rio de Janeiro, asserted the government is exercising a rigorous censorship on all forms of outgoing communication services to prevent newspaper correspondents from advising their connections of the victorious advance of the rebel armies.

OFFENSIVE INTO LOYAL STATES BEGINS

PERNAMBUCO (Brazil) Oct. 12. (AP)—All Brazil, northeast of the Sao Francisco River, today is in the hands of the revolutionary armies who, heartened by tremendous popular acclaim, are beginning an offensive into the States of Sergipe and Bahia, still loyal to the Federal government at Rio de Janeiro.

The State of Alagoas fell before forces commanded by Capt. Juares Tavora aided by enthusiastic volunteers of Pernambuco and Parahyba, much as did Pernambuco just a week ago. Two thousand citizens of the two States enrolled for the movement against Maceiro and Ciudad Alagoas, and now will assist in the invasion of the south.

Student's Death Termed Suicide

DAVENPORT (Iowa) Oct. 12. (AP) John Donald Cunningham, 15-year-old St. Ambrose College student, was found dead in a garage at his aunt's home this morning, his body hanging from a beam with the hands tied.

Coroner Santwell pronounced the case suicide.

Bruin Embarrasses Rancher by Dropping on Him From Tree

FORT JONES, Oct. 12. (AP) To spy a bear at shooting distance is thrilling enough but to have one land on top of you—William Lighthill, rancher, was rounding up cattle in the Marble Mountain country. He knelt beside a tree to drink water coming from its roots. As he leaned over a bear, a large one, came out of the tree and landed on top of Lighthill. The latter's dog jumped at the creature and Lighthill scurried out from under to safety.

CHINA'S ILLS DIAGNOSED BY DOLLAR

Steamship Company Head Declares Overproduction of Silver Ruins Trade

(Copyright, 1930, by Chicago Tribune.)

SHANGHAI, Oct. 12. (Exclusive) Capt. Robert Dollar, president of the Dollar Steamship Company, for thirty years connected with Chinese-American trade, declared in an address here that China is suffering from two maladies, namely, too much civil war and too much silver.

In reference to the silver situation, particularly the investigation on Chinese-American trade headed by Senator Pittman, held recently in Los Angeles, Capt. Dollar said, "There will be no permanent solution of Chinese trade or the exchange situation until China adopts a gold standard, eliminating silver as the basis for her currency. The result of the silver slump to less than half its previous value in China has practically forced her out of world markets, causing a drop of practically 60 per cent of Chinese-American trades.

"The present investigation of the Pittman committee is bound to be futile because silver is affected with the same malady as wheat—overproduction—and there is no prospect for the improvement of the silver price unless the miners are willing to close the mines until consumption overtakes the production."

Miniature Rum Navy Captured Near St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 12. (AP)—A miniature bootleg navy was captured by Chief Dry Agent Dillon and eight of his men in a raid at St. Genevieve, Mo., seventy miles south of here, on the Mississippi River.

A seventy-foot motor cruiser, a seventy-foot barge and a small motorboat with a total value of $15,000, 700 gallons of alcohol, and 1800 sacks of corn sugar were seized and a crew of ten men arrested.

The boat and barge were used, Dillon believes, to transport alcohol across the river from a huge still on the Illinois shore, and send it up to the city.

DINOSAUR NEST MONTANA FIND

gnings is found mostly in a later age.

"A find of unusual importance," said Dr. Jepsen, "in close proximity to the egg fragments was the tooth of a new type of primitive animal. The importance of this discovery is that mammal remains found in formations of Cretaceous time are extremely rare. The great development of the mammals began in the Lower Tertiary, the period succeeding the Cretaceous.

NEMESIS UNIDENTIFIED

"While the affinities and classification of the mammal tooth have not been fully determined it may belong to the order of Marsupialia. Although it is small it is larger than the few teeth which have been discovered previously in the Upper Lance formation.

"It is unusual that dinosaur eggs, bones and teeth and mammalian remains should be found in such close association as was the case in the discovery this summer. Fossil hunting is really exciting when a find of this nature is unearthed."

Negroes Sought in Bandit Killing

ST. GENEVIEVE (Mo.) Oct. 12. (AP)—A search was on here today for four Negroes, one a woman, who shot and killed Harry Panchot, and critically wounded Paul Ritter, after robbing them at Little Rock boat landing, about two miles north of here early today.

After shooting the men the Negroes threw them into the Mississippi River and threw rocks at Ritter, when he did not sink.

Authorities anticipated mob violence if the Negroes were found. Crowds gathered outside the jail after twenty Negroes were rounded up, but at noon only small groups remained.

Taxicab Parade in Bay City Precedes Get-Together

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12. (Exclusive)—Said the Mayor of San Francisco to the Mayor of Los Angeles right here today:

"You have made out of the desert a mighty metropolitan city. You have made it the best-known city in the United States."

Said the Mayor of Los Angeles to the Mayor of San Francisco:

"I love San Francisco. I lived here for seven years and my wife was born here."

And what they said was no secret at all, for they said it in the presence of 150 members of the Los Angeles Downtown Association, who came to San Francisco for a two-day visit. A large number of members of the Downtown Association of San Francisco also attended the gathering in the hotel Sir Francis Drake after arrival of the southern group.

Marshal Hale, president of the local association, was the first speaker. President E. J. Fleming of the visiting group was another speaker and received applause when he declared all sectional feeling between the two cities has passed.

But perhaps the note that struck the greatest local response was when Fleming, in praising San Francisco and Northern California, spoke of the "great bridge across the bay that you have been working on for so many years, and now about to be a reality," and paid tribute to the "pluck and courage of your efforts in that regard."

The southern body arrived at 9:30 this morning and paraded behind the municipal band in taxicabs to the hotel.

The visiting group includes Mayor Porter and his wife, the former Miss Mattie Lee; Dist.-Atty. Pitts and his wife, and W. J. Sanborn, president of the Los Angeles City Council.

That the southern city is virtually without officials during the visit here, is indicated by a list of members of the party, which includes the names of a score of city and county officers and judges and executives.

PATIENT TELLS OF LIFE IN LUNG

Chicken Nurse Memorizes Pattern of Ceiling

Constant Buzz of Respirator Hard to Stand

Only Can Breathe Alone Now for Brief Periods

CHICAGO, Oct. 12. (Exclusive)—Here is the first interview given by Frances McGaan, the student nurse of St. Luke's, who since she was stricken by infantile paralysis on September 11, last, has lain in the steel and aluminum "lung" at the hospital.

In the room, the white chamber where she has lain for 720 hours, there is a buzzing like airplane motors. "The respirator," says the nurse. The radio is playing "I Can't Give You Anything but Love, Baby," and the girl turns toward the window.

"I know all the spots on the ceiling, all the little cracks that look like faces," she says. "I'm not very unhappy." She has to wait while the machine lets her exhale before she can finish her sentence. "My days are quite full and everything is awfully kind."

"Death? I never think of dying," she said. "I'm going to stay around with you. I'm going back into life when I get well."

There is a big rubber collar around her throat and her head is outside the machine on a pillow. Each time the motor hums and a pink fluid in a glass tube rises she takes a breath.

She doesn't like to talk about it. She would rather tell how she can get out of the respirator for thirty minutes now and how she eats like a well person, steaks, fruits, and anything.

"I want to get out of this thing. I hate the buzz. They say it will be two more weeks, or maybe longer.

"I talk to everybody who will listen. That's my only real enjoyment."

Seven feet long and looking like a coffin, the big gray machine, with rows of clamps and dials and tubes, goes on buzzing and buzzing. The pink fluid goes up the tube, then down, and through the glass window you can see her withered white hands alternately gripping and releasing the covers.

"They take me out four or five times a night and several times every day. They say I'm getting better."

SHE HOPES TO DRAW OWN BREATH SOON

GANG CHIEFTAIN, DIAMOND, SHOT

Racketeer Near Death From Five Bullet Wounds

Woman Believed Present at Attack Seized

Gangster Says Gunmen Invaded Hotel Room

NEW YORK, Oct. 12. (AP)—Surprised in his eighth-floor hideaway in the Hotel Monticello, Jack (Legs) Diamond, New York's most notorious gunman, was shot five times today by several men whose identity he since has been unwilling or unable to reveal to police.

Taken to Polyclinic Hospital, the racketeer who received world-wide publicity recently when several European countries refused to accept him as a tourist, was pronounced in grave danger of death. He has bullet wounds in the chest, abdomen and scalp.

While Diamond, weakening every moment, still gasped denials that he knew who shot him as he sat on the edge of a bed in the hotel in West Sixty-fourth street, the largest group of detectives and policemen ever assigned to a shooting scoured the white lights district for clews.

HOTEL MAN SOUGHT

One of their first acts was to seek Jacob Ginsberg, manager of the hotel, who was the first to run to Diamond's aid. He called a doctor, and then strangely faded out of the picture. Police said he took his family for a promised outing in New Jersey. Later they announced they had located him and he had promised to return for questioning. Diamond was found in Room 825, part of Ginsberg's three-room suite.

Detectives also sought and found Miss Marion Roberts, described as a show girl. They said they discovered her hiding in a closet in a friend's apartment. Police said she had occupied Room 831, adjoining 882, in which Diamond was shot. They understand she was acquainted with Diamond.

The apartment in which the young woman was found is occupied by Miss Agnes O'Loughlin, actress who recently sued Rudy Vallee for breach of promise. Vallee has denied all her allegations.

The police said Miss Roberts recently told friends she was engaged to Diamond.

MANY THEORIES VOICED

Meanwhile at Diamond's request his wife Alice arrived from the Diamond summer home at Acra, N. Y., and visited him at the hospital. Funds for his care at the hospital also arrived from a mysterious source.

The shooting of the gangster bore many similarities to the slaying two years ago, in or near the Park Central Hotel, of Arnold Rothstein, Broadway gambler, whom Diamond once served as bodyguard.

Police had a theory Diamond may have been shot while holding a conference of gangsters in his room. But there were many theories, including a rumor that Diamond, Larry Fay and Ownie Madden had been marked for extinction by the Capone mob of Chicago.

GROWING WEAKER

One of the bullets which struck Diamond took a downward course and penetrated the abdomen, a wound similar to that which killed Rothstein. Chief Medical Examiner Norris, who rarely is called except in homicide cases, visited the hospital and declared Diamond "a very sick boy."

In the room where the gangster was shot police said they found no signs of disorder and no evidence of gambling or drinking. Nearly every one in the hotel was questioned.

Diamond, growing weaker every minute, was pressed to tell who shot him.

"I was seated on the edge of the bed," he said. "I registered at the hotel last night. I was awake this morning and partly dressed. The door was closed but not locked. Suddenly it opened and there were three or four men in the doorway and they all fired."

MAID SAW TWO MEN

"Do you know who shot you?" a police lieutenant asked.

"It came so quick I did not recognize anyone," the gangster replied.

Commissioner Mulrooney said he believed Diamond knew the men. He added that a chambermaid saw two of the gunmen run down the stairs after the shooting and he had ordered her held for questioning.

The hospital to which he was taken was the one in which Rothstein died after being mortally wounded in November, 1928. Police contended Rothstein was shot during a card game in the Park Central Hotel but were never able to establish their contention or bring the slayer to justice.

CAREER OF BATTLES

Diamond's career has been a long running battle with the law in which he almost always came off victorious. He has been arrested twenty-three times, five of them in connection with murder charges, but has served only a short reformatory sentence.

Widespread publicity came to him with the recent capture in a Brooklyn flat of one of the most extensive gangland arsenals ever taken. The seizure was made by detectives who trailed a chauffeur of Diamond's to the apartment.

Four arrests were made and questioning of the prisoners led to the finding of a blood-stained automobile in a Brooklyn garage. The car belonged to Harry Western, owner of a roadhouse in the Catskills, who had disappeared. Later Harry Klein, one of the prisoners, told police he was a $75-a-week beer runner for Diamond and that he had been given $50 by a man named McNamara to drive the Western car to New York and "ditch it" off a dock.

OUSTED BY EUROPE

Then it developed Diamond had gone to Europe for treatment for a mysterious stomach ailment. Police cabled foreign authorities. When his liner reached Britain Diamond did not go ashore, but continued to Belgium whence he was deported to Germany. There he was detained while authorities sought a berth for him on a liner returning to the United States. All the liners reported they were full, and he finally was shipped home on a freighter. No attempt was made to arrest him here.

During his detention in Germany he expressed great indignation at reports that his trip was due to his gang's being "fed up" with him.

BORIS ASSURED OF VATICAN AID

Church Attitude on Marriage Cited by High Authority

All Possible Help, Within Limits, to Be Given

Official Declaration on This Score Expected Today

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 12. (AP)—Every possible aid the Vatican can give without departing from the immutable precepts of the Roman Catholic church will be afforded King Boris of Bulgaria to make his marriage with Princess Giovanna of Italy possible, the Associated Press today learned from an unimpeachable source close to the Pope himself. A Vatican pronouncement, probably tomorrow, is expected to make this clear.

The Vatican, the informant of the Associated Press said, has not forgotten that King Boris is the son of a Roman Catholic father and mother and was forced in infancy to adopt the Orthodox faith, for which the former Czar Ferdinand is "known to have apologized to the boy." Boris himself, it was said, often has piously visited the tomb of his mother in the Roman Catholic Church at Philippopolis, and frequently during the hours of mass.

Roman Catholic ecclesiastical visitors in Bulgaria state there is no record in recent years of King Boris having publicly received the sacrament in the orthodox church within his kingdom.

With reference to the religion of a possible heir to the Bulgarian throne as a result of the union of Boris and Giovanna, the Vatican spokesmen asserted that not only is the Bulgarian constitution silent on this matter, stating only that the ruler must be of Orthodox faith, but that the present heir, Prince Cyril, brother of Boris, is Roman Catholic.

Thus it would seem, observers here say, that the Vatican policy will be to wait and observe what issue will come of the marriage, relying on time either to bring a change in the Bulgarian constitution or in the heart of the presumptive heir-apparent when he reaches his majority.

SAN ROSSORE (Italy) Oct. 12. (AP)—Bulgaria's bachelor monarch, King Boris, arrived at the Italian royal palace here tonight from Sofia and was greeted by his fiancee, Princess Giovanna, the royal family and high court officials.

The present plan is for Boris to visit the Princess Giovanna and her family for a brief period and then return to Bulgaria, returning later with Premier Liaptcheff and court officials for the ceremony itself.

The place where the marriage will be solemnized is veiled in secrecy. San Rossore, Assisi and Pisa are all contending for the honor.

International Bankers to Lend $125,000,000, Firm in America Announces

NEW YORK, Oct. 12. (AP)—The Banking firm of Lee, Higginson & Co. announced today that a group of international bankers has put a credit of $125,000,000 at the disposal of the German government, subject to action by the German Reichstag authorizing the credit and providing a method of repayment.

The announcement said a syndicate of banks was formed by the Reichsbank in Germany to participate in the credit, while in the United States a syndicate has been formed by Lee, Higginson & Co., in which certain foreign participants also will be included.

The credit, it was said, will take the form of German government six months' treasury bills. The various syndicates have agreed to discount these bills in the amount of $125,000,000, and have granted the German government the option to renew the paper three times.

NEON AND CAMEO
a Perfect Combination

YOU buy Neon because of its brilliance and long life. Insist upon its having a porcelain enamel background for the same reason. Only porcelain has the brilliance, the permanent lustre and the absolutely non-fading colors required. Paints and lacquers, even if they do not peel or check, will fade and make your Neon sign look cheap and shoddy. Frequent repainting is not satisfactory because it is difficult, expensive and annoying; also a Neon erected against paint loses efficiency with each day's exposure to weather.

A Neon erected against a background of CAMEO Porcelain Enamel is an ideal sign, a fact which will be vouched for by scores of the most experienced Neon sign users in the West. Porcelain Enamel backgrounds are not expensive. Let us tell you more about CAMEO in conjunction with NEON. Write today for full details.

Department Store and "One-Man Shop"

IT TELLS a lot about what kind of a bank we are when on one ledger card you find the name of one of the West's largest retailers, and on the very next card the name of a man who has a little "one man shop" out in the suburbs.

Union Bank's strong capital structure enables it to service "the big ones," and its policy of Personal Service to Every Customer attracts "the little ones." And incidentally, "Little Ones Grow Into Big Ones"...and as they grow, they will find the Union Bank just as ideal as when they were small.

BED OF ROSES FOR GRID MEN

Cherokee Blooms to Blanket Side Lines on New Year's

Pasadena Bowl to Live Up to Its Name at Game

Dedication of Reconstructed Stadium on Halloween

PASADENA, Oct. 12. — When a football player in the East-vs.-West football game New Year's Day does a nose dive near the side lines, the impact will be softened by a blanket of Cherokee roses which will extend from the Rose Bowl sidelines to the first row of seats, it was revealed today by Gilbert Skutt, park superintendent.

In order that the appearance of the Rose Bowl during the football classic will carry out the spirit of the Tournament of Roses, all garden owners in this vicinity have been asked to reserve their blooms.

"Exemplification of the rose theme inside the stadium this year will be the feature of the 1931 Tournament of Roses," said C. Hal Reynolds, Tournament of Roses Association president.

Dedication of the reconstructed Rose Bowl will be held November 1, Skutt announced, and will take the form of a city-wide Halloween festival.

Children of this and outlying communities will be invited to attend, and all those who participate and attend the affair, which is expected to be made an annual observance of "witch night," will appear in Halloween costumes.

"The committee in charge is making an appeal to all parents to bring their children," Skutt declared.

"Boys and girls will find a safe-and-sane outlet for their Halloween energies and the possibilities of innocent fun-making among thousands of persons clad in ghostly garments is at once apparent.

"The entire program will be contributed, so it will be possible to use all the gate receipts for further beautification of the Rose Bowl. The ticket charge will be very nominal."

The Rose Bowl has been completely reconstructed of cement during the last two years and all that remains is completion of the work of branding the numbers on the new cedar seats with a patented numbering machine. The exact capacity of the Bowl will not be known until this work is completed, but it was learned today that at least 84,000 and possibly 86,000 spectators can be accommodated.

Mrs. Pritchard, Sierra Madre Resident, Dies

SIERRA MADRE, Oct. 12.—Following an illness of several months, Mrs. Emeline G. Pritchard, wife of Rev. Arthur O. Pritchard, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Sierra Madre, died this morning in a Long Beach sanatorium.

The Pritchard family spent the entire summer visiting in the East and upon their arrival home on September 3, Mrs. Pritchard was taken seriously ill, and had been confined to her bed since. Mrs. Pritchard is well known throughout the Southland for her work as a member of the board of directors of the Congregational Woman's Missionary Society of Southern California. She was especially popular with young people, with whom she centered her activities, and was loved for her graciousness and genial spirit. She was born in New York City, September 19, 1878, but later her family moved to Scarsdale, N. Y., where she married Rev. Pritchard. Her father, the late Dr. Josephus H. Gunning of New York, was a recognized leader in Sunday-school work, and her mother, Mrs. Frances M. Forst Gunning, preceded her in death, only last year. The Pritchard family moved to California twelve years ago, where they have divided their residence between Pomona, Pasadena and Sierra Madre. Rev. Pritchard served as moderator of the Congregational Churches of the Southland last year and has otherwise been recognized for his activities in religious work in California.

Funeral services, in charge of Grants Undertaking Parlors, will be conducted from the First Congregational Church here, Tuesday at 2 p.m. with Dr. Raymond C. Brooks of Claremont, long-time friend of the family, officiating. Interment will be made in Mountain View Cemetery, Pasadena.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Pritchard leaves a son, Arthur O., Jr.; a brother, Clarence F. Gunning, and a sister, Miss Frances Maude Gunning, both of Los Angeles.

CITY SPENDS MOST CASH IN SAN DIEGO

Expenditures in Fiscal Year $6,221,308, Report of Agent Shows

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 12.—Expenditures aggregating $6,221,308 were made by the city during the last fiscal year, according to the report filed with the Mayor by Purchasing Agent A. V. Goeddel. A segregation of the huge total shows that $3,350,698 was spent for supplies and on contract payments, while $2,870,340.56 was on municipal pay rolls. The pay account is almost $80,000 higher than during the previous year, the increase representing in part efforts made to provide more workers with employment.

The figures establish again the city's position as the largest spender in the community, other corporations falling far below the city mark. The purchasing agent's report contains a general summary of the activities of the entire city as all purchases are made through the department and all pay rolls are checked by the office.

Specifically the report shows an augumentation in the income from Pueblo lands. This income, however, was only $2359 for the year. A suggestion that a plan for long-term lease of the lands to those desiring them for residential purposes, be worked out, is contained in the report.

Prospector in Hills Dies With His Boots On

REDLANDS, Oct. 12.—William Allen, aged prospector who made this city his headquarters when he came in off the desert, died while wandering over the hills and sands of Arizona, according to word received by his friend, Ray Howlett, 608 Third street. "He died with his boots on just as he would wish," said Howlett in telling about it.

Allen, according to the letter received from authorities at Congress Junction, Ariz., died of illness or exposure and old age. The body was found by some cowboys far out in the hills from Congress Junction and evidently animals had eaten parts of it.

The body was found about ten miles west of Congress. The police there write that Allen came to Congress on September 27, purchased a burro and supplies, and struck out for the hills. Nothing more was seen of him until the cowboys found the body and most of his things, enough to prove that it was Allen.

Howlett says that Allen had some means and so far as he knows, kept his money in the banks in California. Police here are making an investigation. It is not thought he had relatives.

EDISON IMPROVING LANCASTER STATION

LANCASTER, Oct. 12. — Reconstruction of the Lancaster substation of the Southern California Edison Company, control plant for all other stations in Antelope Valley, is now under way at a cost of about $50,000, according to L. S. Tudor, Lancaster district manager for the company. The work which is expected to be completed by March 1, next, is a part of the program started by the company some time ago, to extend and reinforce all service facilities in this district. The substation here which acts as a control point for the other stations in the valley, receive its epergy from the major switching station at Saugus, on the 220,000-volt transmission line that links the series of hydroelectric plants of the company's Big Creek-San Joaquin River development, and the Edison steam-electric generating station at Long Beach. A force of men will be kept busy on the work here during the winter months.

TEACHER LOSES HER FIGHT FOR DAMAGES

REDLANDS, Oct. 12.—Miss Christine Sweeney, well-known member of the faculty of Redlands High School, was denied damages of $25,000 for injuries received in an automobile accident in the decision of Superior Judge F. A. Leonard. According to the testimony given at the trial, the automobiles of Miss Sweeney and Dr. E. C. Hammen were in a crash on Olive avenue about a year ago. Miss Sweeney was thrown into the windshield and badly hurt, her face being cut and her right leg injured. At the trial the defense introduced witnesses to show that Miss Sweeney had failed to give the proper signals. In his decision Superior Judge Leonard decided that, since she was guilty of negligence, she was not entitled to damages.

EXPERTS WILL DECIDE

Board Appointed by State Engineer to Report on Pine Canyon Dam Site

PASADENA, Oct. 12.—Realization of this city's $10,000,000 independent water development program in San Gabriel Canyon hinges upon a report on the site to be made by a committee of experts appointed by State Engineer Edward Hyatt.

The board of experts which will investigate the safety of the site and recommend either for or against the granting of this city's application to erect a 375-foot dam at the Pine Canyon site in San Gabriel Canyon is the same as that which last November reported on the county's San Gabriel Canyon dam site.

The personnel of the board is: Charles P. Berkey of Columbia University, George D. Louderback of the University of California, Ira A. Williams of Portland, Or.; J. L. Savage of the United States Bureau of Reclamation; George A. Elliott of San Francisco, and M. C. Hinderlider, State Engineer in Colorado.

From the State Division of Water Rights, Pasadena has received permission to impound an annual yield of 25,700 acre-feet of water in San Gabriel Canyon, which, added to existing supplies, will give this city 34,300 acre-feet, sufficient for a city of 200,000 population. The present population is slightly more than 76,000, but water levels are falling at such a rate, according to local officials, that large additional supplies will be required before Colorado River water is brought to Southern California.

"Because of the importance, size and location of the proposed dam, we have named a consulting board to assist the State Engineer's office in acting on Pasadena's application," Hyatt declared in making public the board's personnel today.

Samuel B. Morris, head of the city water department, asserted that he is "highly gratified at the choice of men familiar with the San Gabriel Canyon geology to pass upon our site and dam."

In June, 1929, this city, by a ten-to-one majority authorized a $10,000,000 bond issue to construct the dam and a seventeen-mile conduit to this city.

Covina Police Chief Improves

COVINA, Oct. 12.—James J. Saunders, veteran constable and Chief of Police of Covina, whose right leg was amputated last week, has taken a turn for the better, and he is reported by Dr. Ellis Jones of Los Angeles, bone specialist, as resting easily and well on the road to recovery.

Saunders was in a critical condition following the operation on the 2nd inst., and did not show any signs of recovery until a blood transfusion was made. Amputation of his leg was made necessary after an operation had been made to remove a tumorous condition about the kneecap. It was found that the bone was in such a condition as to necessitate amputation four inches above the knee.

Original injury to his knee occurred on August 8, 1929, when he struck against a heavy farm implement on a Vincent-avenue ranch while executing the duties of his office.

TWO WOMEN IN SUIT; ONE GETS DAMAGES

ONTARIO, Oct. 12. — Mrs. A. F. Webster came out of a long legal tilt victor over Mrs. E. H. Harris, when each sued the other in Superior Court for damages growing out of an automobile accident several months ago. Both women live here. Mrs. Webster sued Mrs. Harris for $26,335, and Mrs. Harris sued Mrs. Webster for $15,270. A jury in Superior Judge F. A. Leonard's court returned a verdict in favor of Mrs. Webster, and she was awarded $9000 damages. Mrs. Webster's left hand was mangled in the accident. According to the complaint, Mrs. Harris turned into a driveway without formality of signaling, and Mrs. Webster's machine following closely, crashed into it and the Webster automobile overturned.

"BOOTLEG" GASOLINE ORDINANCE PASSED

ONTARIO, Oct. 12.—Sellers of bootleg gasoline in Ontario district are receiving the same vigilant attention from county authorities as are the regular bootleg fraternity members. An ordinance has been adopted by the City Council aimed at filling-station operators who sell gasoline that does not measure up to standard quality tests. Upon suggestion of Charles Showalter, County Sealer of Weights and Measures, that a very inferior grade of gasoline has been dispensed from certain filling-stations in the community, the Council took action to halt the practice by drawing up the bootleg-gasoline ordinance. For violating the ordinance the gasoline seller faces a penalty of $300 fine and ninety days in jail.

EL RIO CUT-OFF ASSURED

But Actual Construction May Not Begin Until Late in Year, State Official Says

VENTURA, Oct. 12.—Actual construction of the long projected El Rio cut-off, on the Ventura-Oxnard highway, is expected to begin before the first of the year. A letter from Fred Grumm, engineer of surveys and plans on the staff of State Highway Engineer C. H. Purcell, received here, said:

"In the present biennium budget, appropriation is made for the construction of a grade separation and the approaches for this cut-off from Oxnard to the Santa Clara River bridge near El Rio.

"Negotiations have been carried on with the Southern Pacific Railroad concerning the grade separation, and the railroad is at the present time engaged in drawing up the plans for the structure.

"As soon as these plans have been completed they will be referred to us for approval and then advertised for contract. The approaches to the separation cannot be built until the structure has been practically completed.

"Rights of way have been obtained for practically all of the project, and negotiations for the remainder are well advanced. Actual construction may not begin until late in the year."

Wild Turkeys to Be Released in Game Reserve

SIERRA MADRE, Oct. 12.—Visualizing a wild turkey game reserve, with open seasons before 1940, Los Angeles county will take initial steps at once by releasing fifty turkeys in the game reserve in the Sierra Madre Mountains, according to official announcement made by Fred E. Wadsworth, superintendent of the bureau of recreation grounds and camps.

The reserve will be turned into a propagating ground for wild turkeys, and from time to time other birds will be liberated at various places in the mountains. It is Wadsworth's belief that in less than ten years they will have propagated to such an extent that they will become a general game bird.

The district to be "planted," Wadsworth states, was once full of wild turkeys and attracted hunters from all over the southern part of the State. The region is so wild and well adapted to the raising of turkeys that Wadsworth believes it will be possible to declare brief open seasons before 1940.

Through the Izaak Walton League the State has decided upon the establishment of five quail refuges in the Foothill district, one to be located in the mountains north of Upland, at once. Attorneys for the State will visit suggested locations next week to make leases where private property is to be taken for the purpose.

The refuges will be located where there are no grain fields and where the birds can do no damage. A hatchery will be located at Fontana. At the start of the season, December 1, 1931, it is expected that reserve-propagated birds will be ready for hunters.

Drunk Charge Follows Chase

ALHAMBRA, Oct. 12. — Cliff Lightner, 23 years of age, of 122 North Huntington Drive, tried the patience of the police of two cities before he was locked in the Alhambra Jail early today on a charge of being drunk.

He made his first appearance at the home of Walter B. Haas, 430 North Granada avenue, at 12:40 a.m., aroused the occupants and asked if Cliff Lightner lived there. He was ordered away, and left after kicking over the milk bottles on the porch, according to the police reports. The racket disturbed a dog in the neighborhood and it gave chase, pursuing Lightner over into San Marino. There Police Officer Beaver relieved the dog and took Lightner into custody.

Police of Alhambra had, meanwhile, been notified, and Officer Kellogg was summoned to San Marino. Haas and A. H. Mecham of 424 North Granada avenue, Alhambra, went to the station and identified Lightner as the prowler. Pinally, he was extradited from San Marino and brought to Alhambra. Bail was set at $50.

EARNINGS OF CITY'S LIGHT PLANT DROP

PASADENA, Oct. 12.—Although the rates have been reduced 10 per cent, the municipal electric light plant earned $525,879 during the year 1929-30, a decrease of $20,000 from the previous year, according to the annual report submitted to the Board of City Directors by Benjamin De Lanty, superintendent. During the last five years, the light department has loaned the city a total of $1,479,750 for the financing of various city projects, including the golf course, new jail and civic auditorium. WORKER FOR BLIND SOUTHLAND VISITOR

Mrs. Catherine C. Hale

INGLEWOOD, Oct. 12. — Mrs. Catherine C. Hale of Kansas City, nationally known for her work for the blind, is a guest here of her nephew, Dr. Elmer L. Winey and his wife, of 100 South Locust street, this city.

Mrs. Hale has been investigating the work for the blind in California for several years and has worked untiringly for the Kansas City association for the blind, and was the founder of the Catherine Home for Blind Women at Kansas City, Mo.

Mrs. Hale says that California is making gratifying progress in its work for the blind, being well ahead of the average movement of this character throughout the nation.

The blind do not want charity, she emphasizes, but what they do desire is a chance to help themselves. This objective is being accomplished by the establishment of workshops and the making of articles that they can sell to the public, thus making themselves, at least in a measure, self-supporting.

In Los Angeles she inspected the workshop for the blind, and also the printshop of the Braille Bible Society at 739 North Vermont avenue, both of which, she declares, are doing an inestimable work, not only for the afflicted of Southern California, but also in work of national scope.

In Los Angeles Mrs. Hale was the recipient of many social courtesies. While in Southern California she was also the guest of her son, Arthur A. Hale of Huntington Park, and her sister, Mrs. J. C. Walker of Inglewood.

Alhambra's New School Opens Today

ALHAMBRA, Oct. 12.—The new Marguerita-avenue grammar school will be opened tomorrow morning with an anticipated enrollment of about 240. It is regarded as the city's finest school building and represents an investment of approximately $180,000.

The school will relieve congested conditions in classrooms at Fremont and Ramona schools, where those pupils who will attend the Marguerita school have been enrolled since September 15. At Ramona school it has been necessary to conduct half-day sessions in the primary grades.

One of the features of the new school is its modernistic trend in architecture and decoration. Woodwork in the classrooms is gayly colored in blue and red. The building was designed by John Walker Smart of this city.

Miss Rose Clayton, formerly teacher in the Central school, is the principal of the new institution.

Jackson, who treated him at the Scripps Hospital. Elean was uninjured. He was driving south on Mission avenue, and Moore had started east from the curb on Garnett, when the accident occurred.

Elean said he was traveling about nineteen miles an hour just before the crash. Both cars were wrecked. Deputy Coroner Leetch ordered Mrs. Kenney's body taken to the La Jolla funeral establishment.

Dark Horses to Run in County Legion Contest

UPLAND, Oct. 12.—A stampede of dark horses, verbal fireworks, fervid speeches and a general old-time election, minus the beer-kegs and pretzels, are on the program here when the San Bernardino County Interpost Council meets at the Sycamores Hotel Tuesday evening.

Annual election of officers is slated for the evening, and if a quiet ballot results there will be considerable surprise among the members.

Upland Post is to be host to the veterans from all parts of the county. Floyde Atwood, member of Upland Post, is commander of the county interpost council, and closes his term of office Tuesday.

Fontana, it is understood, will advance Jack Bailey, as a candidate for the post of County Commander, to succeed Atwood.

Chino Post is grooming Frank Mogle, who at present is vice-president of the county organization. Both men have large followings.

There are persistent rumors that these two men will not be the only two candidates for the commander's chair when the time arrives for voting. Names of the others are not being divulged.

Marion Grothe, adjutant of Upland Post, has been placed at the head of the committee on arrangements for the banquet meeting.

Posts included in San Bernardino county interpost council are Upland, Ontario, San Bernardino, Rim-of-the-World, Chino, Fontana, Colton, Redlands, Victorville, Needles, Barstow and Twenty-nine Palms.

The interpost council will hear a detailed report on development of the veterans' hospital at Victorville. Each post of the county is building one or two cottages to be welded into a general hospital for needy ex-service men of the World War.

STATE'S ARCHITECTS BATTLE BILLBOARDS

DEL MONTE, Oct. 12. — Architects of California, meeting here today in their annual convention, denounced in no uncertain terms the marring of California's scenic highways by billboards, shacks and other structures. By an unanimous vote the architects pledged their full co-operation in efforts to improve the situation. The resolution adopted points out that the highways throughout the country districts are the State's greatest asset, but are rapidly being destroyed by the unsightly billboards and structures being erected.

POLO CLUB WINS IN SUIT

Action Involving Elmer Boeseke, Jr., in Sale of Cox Field at Santa Barbara, Ends in Victory

SANTA BARBARA, Oct. 12.—Litigation over the Cox Polo Field, involving Elmer Boeseke, Jr., nationally known polo player, and a score of Montecito's most wealthy and prominent sportsmen, including Maj. Max C. Fleishmann, is closed with a victory for the local promoters of the sport, attorneys for both sides report.

Two years ago, Boeseke negotiated for the Santa Barbara Polo Club the purchase of the Cox stables, field and gallery, but in transferring the title to the club, it was asserted in the suit, he withheld the ownership of the stable, extra grounds and the gallery. The local club did not even receive a right of way to the polo field with the deed.

Stipulations deeding the stables and land surrounding the Cox field and giving a right of way from Valley Road to the field, are to be filed in Superior Court tomorrow, it is reported authentically. With the report is word that Boeseke will cease to be a member of the Santa Barbara Polo Club.

Coincident with the court victory, Maj. Fleishmann, whose personal interest in polo, personal participation in the game, private fields and fine string of ponies, have been a mainspring of polo success and expansion in this city for a number of years, said today that Santa Barbara this winter and spring will have the greatest polo season in its history.

Maj. Fleishmann reported three fine polo teams coming here to stay for the season, one from Ponca City, Okla.; one from Rye, N. Y., and one from Oak Brook, near Chicago. He said that polo interest in Santa Barbara has grown most satisfactorily during the past year. Newcomers to the community are supporting polo and the younger generation is taking an interest, the major said.

FARM WAGES SINK LOWER

Forty Per Cent Excess of Labor Reported on 1st Inst., With Poor Crop Outlook

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. (AP)—Poor crop prospects, declines in farm product prices and a 40 per cent excess of farm labor brought farm wages on the 1st inst. to the lowest level since January, 1923.

The Department of Agriculture said today the excessive supply of farm hands "is a reflection of the continuance of the present extensive business depression which has scattered unemployed industrial workers throughout agricultural sections in search of a livelihood."

"The supply is in excess of the demand in all geographical sections," the report continued, "ranging from an excess of 24 per cent in the North Atlantic States to 49 per cent in the South Central States."

The farm wages index on the 1st inst., was placed at 150 per cent of the 1910-1914 prewar level. This index reflected a drop of 10 points since July 1, last, and a drop of 24 points since October 1, 1929.

Wages declined from July 1 to the 1st inst., whereas, in the past five years there has been an average seasonal advance of 2.6 points during this period.

Day wages of farm workers not provided with board now range from about $3.50 in the northeastern industrial States and $3.40 on the Pacific Coast down to $1.05 to $1.15 from South Carolina to Mississippi. The North Central States show an average of $2.60 per day and the average for the country is $2.12. Farm workers provided with board are receiving an average of $1.61 per day.

There are two things to be borne in mind in any consideration of current business conditions and economic trends. First, however acute some of us may have regarded the situation in America during recent months, business in the United States has been much better than it has been in Europe. Second, this last depression can be made to serve a very useful purpose if industry utilizes its lessons, and learns to treat causes before they create their injurious effect.

I believe—and the industry with which I am associated is proceeding on this basis—that there is going to be a general revival of trade. Not only are there indications pointing in that direction, but there are some evidences that a recovery already is setting in.

We cannot predict with any assurance when this will reach a restoration of full prosperity. If we were able to make an exact determination of business trends over a future period we would be so closely in charge of all the governing factors of trade that clogged markets, depressions and unemployment no longer would be bogies.

ACTION NEEDED

Our immediate task, as I see it, is for each industry to make the best contribution it can toward a resumption of normal conditions. We all know that eventually complete business and industrial recovery will come. The problem is to bring it about as quickly as possible, and it is not a solution to stand by idly and predict and await returning prosperity merely because prosperity always has been restored after a slump.

Radio has been an important factor in the gratifying business conditions that prevailed for a number of years prior to last autumn. But in some respects, radio does not afford a normal or average example of an American industry. It is still new. It has been moving rapidly over a period of eight or ten years in an endeavor to get the utmost of public value out of a new scientific discovery, the transmission of sound through space.

National prosperity is always stimulated by the creation of new and useful arts. But in many instances these have been built upon the foundations or over the ashes of some competitive but no longer serviceable industry.

Radio did not destroy any other great industry. It stimulated and gave new vigor to those businesses which might be regarded as its nearest competitors. It brought into existence the practical talking moving picture and it contributed new methods of recording that revitalized the talking-machine industry.

Of course, radio has made its rapid strides because the public has been receptive and able to buy its products. We anticipate a continuation of that ability. We have set about to contribute in every way posible toward resumption of business by beginning full-scale production operations ourselves.

GENERAL ACTIVITY

In many other industries new lines of products are now being offered, new models are being placed on the market, and there is much evidence that increased trade activity is anticipated during the remainder of the autumn and the winter months. Programs are being enlarged and extended.

There are always many remedies suggested whenever business shows a slight falling off, and when the depression has been of real duration those who wish to offer a diagnosis and suggest a cure are much more numerous. I do not minimize the importance of this kind of discussion. It is only by the application of a deal of effort and by much thought that the problem of removing these pronounced drops in business can be solved.

Certainly every industrial leader in the United States should consider at this time whether his own business has been conducted in a manner that would contribute to the general stability of the national economic structure. If it has not, very likely it has not been conducted in a manner that will yield the best results over a sustained period of operation.

SOUND THINKING

There is a great deal of difference between sound thinking and idle discussion. There has been a great deal of talk by professional optimists, who usually are amiable but indiscreet, and by professional pessimists, who very frequently are purposeful and who seek to profit by the thorns they sow. These two groups make no contribution, either in periods of prosperity or of stress. They trail, and should, in the rear of the marching column.

The substance of the United States and its reliance in periods of economic readjustment are the workers, whether they be artisans or executives, who have the energy to attempt and the courage and determination to go ahead. Business cannot succeed by being timid. It should not be shaken or misled either by the misgivings of the profesional "bear" or the misleadings of the professional "bull."

I mentioned that conditions in the United States are better than they have been in Europe. I returned from Europe last month, and while there had a good opportunity to observe conditions in England, France and Germany. Business in France is surprisingly good, but the depression is very noticeable in England and Germany. Europe's economic and financial situation seems to be dependent for its improvement upon that in the United States.

It is now generally recognized in Europe that the United States is the key nation in world economics. With Europe waiting for the United States to resume full-scale operations, the problems of the United States assume a world-wide significance. The problem cannot be viewed from the standpoint of one or two American industries. It is international in scope.

PLEAS FOR DAM WORK ANSWERED

Interior Department Says Boulder Project Labor to Be Matter for Contractors

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. (Exclusive)—The United States Civil Service Commission is receiving so many requests for information regarding prospects of employment on the Boulder Dam project that the following statement is made:

The Department of the Interior expects to let to private contract practically all construction work. Under this plan laborers, helpers, cooks, skilled mechanics and foremen will be employed directly by the contractors, and not by the government.

Employments in large numbers will not be made by the contractors until the second year of operations, when work on the major features will be under way. As contracts are awarded the Department of the Interior will publish in newspapers the names and addresses of successful bidders and applications for employment may be made to them direct.

Contracts for certain preliminary construction and development work will be awarded soon. Contracts for major features will not be let for a year or more. It is necessary to emphasize this to correct the general impression that a large construction force is to be organized at once, or is already at work.

LONG BEACH SCOUT WILL GET MEDAL

Youth Who Rescued Boy From Drowning One of Six Honored Heroes

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Boyd McGinn, 12 years of age, of Long Beach, Cal., is one of the six Boy Scouts who will receive through the National Court of Honor of the Boy Scouts of America the gold honor medal for life saving, the highest award bestowed within the Scout movement. The announcement of the action taken was made today by Daniel Carter Beard, national Scout commissioner and chairman of the National Court of Honor.

McGinn, a first-class Scout of Troop Fourteen of Long Beach, rescued Bruce Myers, 6, who was drowning in a swimming tan eight feet deep on a steamship. Young Myers, who could not swim, was playing in the tank with other children. Suddenly the boy lost his hold on a life ring and sank. Two women who witnessed the accident, shouted for help.

McGinn, who is small and frail for his age, instantly went to the rescue. He dived in, grasped the drowning boy, brought him to the surface and, treading water, held him up until others were able to come to their assistance. Scout McGinn, who is troubled with an affection of the heart, was almost unconscious when help arrived.

ENTRY OF RUSSIAN LUMBER PROTESTED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. (Exclusive)—Formal complaint against the failure of the government to prescribe regulations to prevent admission to this country of convict-made Russian lumber and a demand that it do so at once to protect the domestic lumber industry has been filed with the Treasury Department by the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association. Wilson Compton, secretary and manager of the association, made public today copies of a letter forwarded to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon in which he asserts the law requires the Secretary to prescribe regulations cutting out convict-made merchandise and that there is "ample reason for suspecting every Russian lumber importation as illegal."

BLEAK WINTER SEEN FOR IDLE

Green Cites Seriousness of Unemployment Situation

Doubt Voiced as to Official Realization of Its Gravity

Need for Action Set Forth Before Union Federation

BOSTON, Oct. 12. (AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, declared he believes government officials throughout the country do not realize the acuteness of the unemployment situation.

Basing his statement on information gathered from contact with the delegates to the annual convention of the federation here, Mr. Green said:

"Federal, State and municipal officials must prepare immediately for the distressing conditions that will accompany the winter months. They can't escape the facts. With the passing of each day and the approach of colder weather, the situation becomes more serious.

"Last winter the people of the nation were better prepared for conditions. They had a little savings and their credit was still good. This year their savings are gone and in many instances their credit, too. I don't think the government officials realize the acuteness of the situation."

Green said he does not expect to see any substantial change in economic conditions until next spring when, he said, "I hope we will move out of the depression."

The federation will outline a policy and suggest a remedy for unemployment, he said, and this will be submitted to government officials for application.

"The present situation has taught everyone a lesson," Green asserted. "It has shown us we can't fail to supply a remedy for unemployment. We must deal with the situation in a scientific way."

COLUMBUS DAY FETED AT GENOA

Thousands Turn Out to View Relics and Leave Wreaths at Birthplace

GENOA (Italy) Oct. 12. (AP)—This city of Columbus today, by express order of the Fascist government, celebrated as never before the anniversary of the famous October 12, 1492, when the intrepid explorer made his first landfall in the new world.

Large crowds turned out to view the Columbus relics preserved in the City Hall, and costly wreaths were placed upon his monument and at the house preserved as his birthplace.

At the house reputed to be his birthplace a guard of honor of Carabineers watched all day long. Diplomatic representatives of all the countries of the Americas filed through the doors to lay their wreaths and bow their heads in tribute. Representatives of the United States wore formal morning clothes and those from the Latin-American republics glittering gala dress.

From the balcony of the United States Consulate flew the Stars and Stripes, the Italian tricolor and the flag of Genoa.

Raiders Miss Capone but Net Twenty-nine

CHICAGO, Oct. 12. (AP)—Police squads from the State's Attorney's office swept into suburban Cicero early today in an attempt to capture "Scarface Al" Capone, but while they failed to corner the kingpin of the Chicago badlands they arrested twenty-nine men and women.

Their quarry includes three men who have been named as lieutenants to Capone in the new alignment of gangs under the single banner of the scarfaced chieftain. They are George (Red) Barker and William (Three-Fingered Jack) White, described by the Chicago Crime Commission as comptrollers of labor unions seized by force, and Claude Maddox, reputed leader of the circus gang suspected of participation in the St. Valentine's Day massacre.

Pat Roche, chief investigator for the State's Attorney, said the object of the invasion was to serve Capone with a vagrancy warrant, a weapon recently adopted by prosecutors to harass undesirables.

TARZAN AND THE LOST EMPIRE

It all happened so quickly and was over so quickly that scarcely had Caesar's shriek rung through the Colosseum when he lay dead at the foot of the carved throne, and Gabula, the assassin, in a single leap had cleared the wall and was running across the sand to von Harben.

"I have avenged you, Bwana!" cried the black man. "No matter what they do, you are avenged." A great groan arose from the audience and then a cheer as someone shouted, "Caesar is dead!" A flash of hope came to the breast of von Harben. "Now is our chance," he whispered.

"Follow me!" cried Mallius Lepus to the prisoners. The guards had been stunned by the murder of the Emperor. Everything was in confusion. Mallius Lepus started on a run toward the gateway and the shouting prisoners fell in behind him. No effort was made to stop them.

The sudden rush of the escaping prisoners so upset the guards beneath the Colosseum that they were easily overpowered and a moment later the prisoners found themselves in the streets of Castrum Mare. Von Harben, Mallius Lepus and Gabula dashed off together to find a hiding-place.

STARS SEW UP SECOND HALF RACE

Hollywooders Annex Twin Bill From Sacramento by 12-5 and 5-3 Scores

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 12. (AP)—Hollywood today, for the second straight year, pocketed the second-half pennant of the Pacific Coast League by taking a double-header from the Sacramento Senators. The scores were 12 to 5 and 5 to 3, giving the Stars four wins in the six-game series. The double victory clinched the pennant for the Stars with games to spare. Shellenback and Wetzel hurled the wins. On the season's play, Hollywood defeated the Senators twenty times, losing but seven games.

Trojans Bogged Down, But Regain Optimism

Jones Has Plenty of Plays Left for Stanford

BY BRAVEN DYER
"Times" Staff Correspondent

KLAMATH FALLS (Or.) Oct. 12. After having spent most of the night frantically searching for that extra point, which might have meant a tie with Washington State at Pullman yesterday, Trojan rooters aboard this southbound rattler awoke bleary-eyed and badly bogged down this morning.

Only the magnetic personality of Hap O'Conner, America's celebrated guest, kept the party from turning into a wake and gradually, under the influence of his relentless wise-cracking, things have brightened up considerably and everybody begins to realize that there will be other Saturdays and consequently other football games.

Mr. O'Conner, who has been going nowhere but to pieces during the entire trip, flits from car to car in his many impersonations. One minute he has on a purple bathrobe and races through the Pullman with imaginary sounds on leash.

The next, he gets out his easel and palette and paints this marvelous scenery through which we are passing.

Hap says he's going to rename the University of Southern California as the West Point of the Pacific Coast, only he'll change the west to one.

The boys on the football team were naturally well down in the mouth last night. Nobody seemed to know what to say, but all agreed that the Washington State line was plain dynamite and that the biggest stick of the pack was this 235-pound tackle, Glenn Edwards.

"He's the toughest player we have ever bucked up against," said Marshall Duffield and in his opinion Marsh had the support of all the Trojan backs, most of whom tried in vain to get Edwards out of the way. He was harder to budge than an army mule.

HE'S GOOD, TOO

And while passing out the bouquets, the Trojans dropped a few sprigs of heliotrope into the lap of Mel Hein, whose playing last Saturday was as good as that of the Coast's best centers of the past ten years.

GLENNA COLLETT SEEKS FIFTH GOLF CROWN AT LOS ANGELES

Three Former Champions Numbered Among Brilliant Qualifying Field This Morning; Thirty-two Survive for Match Play Tomorrow

BY EDWARD LAWRENCE

Long drive and crisp iron—deft putting touch and cool nerve—splendid courage and tremendous stamina—each will be seen at its best as the rank and file of America's women golfers swing down the flowing green fairways of the Los Angeles Country Club this morning in the eighteen-hole qualifying round for the thirty-fourth amateur golf championship of the United States.

This is distinctly a championship of Miss Glenna Collett vs. the field—the four-times national women's champion against brilliant golfers from every section of the country, any one of whom would be a worthy wearer of the crown.

MRS HELEN B. STETSON.

It is a championship of great and unknown possibilities.

Certainly no finer battleground could be asked than the beautiful, if strenuous, test created by George C. Thomas, Jr., in the north course, perhaps the most difficult ever selected for the championship.

The Far West for the first time is entered in strength and the East is playing under foreign conditions.

THIRTY-TWO SURVIVE

These are the ingredients of what promises to be the grandest women's championship of them all!

Only the stout-hearted will survive today's qualifying round, and only thirty-two will remain tonight of the gallant 160 who start out in high hopes this morning. This select group engages in the first round of match play tomorrow and then diminishes in number from day to day until the finalists match strokes over thirty-six holes on Saturday.

And who will be the next women's champion?

Will it be Glenna, running her total up to five and thereby equaling Bobby Jones's feat—perhaps one of the former American queens, Miss Marion Hollins of Santa Cruz, who reached the heights in 1921; that brilliant veteran, Mrs. Doro-

SIXTY-SIX ARE STILL UNBEATEN

Seventeen Teams Fall by Wayside Saturday in Grid Clashes

BY RALPH HUSTON

Seventeen hitherto unbeaten teams tumbled out of the national football picture over the week-end, leaving only sixty-six still in the running for the annual honors. Many of those remaining are of the minor variety, and can be depended upon to be eased out when they tackle some good teams.

Among the usual top-notchers who lost Saturday were Southern California, Yale, Princeton, Navy, Nebraska, Purdue, St. Marys, Georgia Tech, Chicago and Louisiana State.

Washington State, Washington and Oregon still stand out on the Pacific Coast, while Stanford is unbeaten, but tied.

In the East, Army, Columbia, Carnegie Tech, Cornell, Dartmouth, Fordham, Harvard, New York U, Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh and Penn State are the leaders.

The Midwest offers Notre Dame, Northwestern, Wisconsin and Michigan. In the South are Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, Georgia, Texas and others.

Louisiana State, which led the scorers last week, was tied by South Carolina Saturday, and lost considerable prestige.

The following table includes only those teams which are unbeaten and untied in three or more games. Those which have won two games include Notre Dame, Northwestern, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky and some minor teams.

The leaders:

Midget Wolgast Injures Mitt; Fight Friday With Genaro is Put Over

NEW YORK, Oct. 12. (AP)—Midget Wolgast of Philadelphia, who is recognized in his own State and in New York as flyweight champion, has injured a hand in training and so the first title bout of the new indoor season has been called off.

MIDGET WOLGAST

Wolgast was scheduled to battle Frankie Genaro of New York, who holds the title recognition of the N.B.A., over the fifteen-round route in Madison Square Garden Friday night. Madison Square Garden officials announced today the date would be filed by the meeting between Justo Suarez, sensational Argentine lightweight, and Louis Kid Kaplan of Meriden, Ct., former hold of the world's featherweight championship, originally scheduled for the 22dn inst. The revised arrangements for the preliminary program have not been completed.

Despite the loss of the championship battle, the fight faithful of the nation will have two champions to entertain them this week. Al Singer, light-

WASHINGTON STATE HAS ALMOST CLEAR PATH TO COAST GRID TITLE---JONES

BY HOWARD JONES
Football Coach University of Southern California

(Copyright, 1930, by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

KLAMATH FALLS (Or.) Oct. 12. Washington State's 7-to-6 victory over the University of Southern California eleven at Pullman, Wash. Saturday puts this strong Northwestern team in a fine position to win the championship of the Pacific Coast Conference, or at least get no worse than a tie.

HOWARD JONES

The Cougars still have Oregon State, Montana and Washington to play and may lose one of these games but the prospect of a clean sweep is more probable than that of defeat in one of the contests.

Coach Babe Hollingbery's team of last Saturday was unquestionably one of the toughest elevens I have ever faced since coming to the Pacific Coast in 1925. It is a powerful team, well coached and grounded in fundamentals. Credit must be given Hollingbery for the splendid showing of his men on two successive Saturdays which resulted in victories over California and Southern California.

TROJAN ERRORS

There were several errors in generalship which often occur in a game where two teams are as evenly matched as we were and there is no question but that we made more of these than our rivals. Failure to punt on fourth down in midfield with two yards to go hurt us badly twice in the fourth quarter.

Glenn Edwards, 235-pound left tackle for Washington State, was easily the outstanding player on the field.

Usually a man of his weight is not as active as he should be, but this is not the case with Edwards.

He is a versatile player and certainly warrants all-Coast, if not all-American honors.

Mel Hein, center, also played a great game for Washington State. He not only played one position well, but took care of a couple of others in addition, and this, despite the fact that Washington State employed a seven-man line during much of the game. Hein showed exceptional ability at diagnosing plays

INDIANS, SERAPHS DIVIDE

Seattle Cops Ten-Inning Opener, 6-5; Angels Nab Nightcap, 3-2, in Fifty-one Minutes

BY BOB RAY

Seattle's Indians, who appear to have gone on the war path now that all is supposed to be peaceful and quiet in Coast League ranks, folded up their wigwams and left Wrigley Field last night all swelled up over the fact that they took six out of nine games from the Angels in the series just ended.

The Seraphs managed to get an even break with the Tribe in yesterday's twin bill but had a tough time doing it, at that. After the Redskins had annexed the exciting ten-inning opener, 6 to 5, Carroll Yerkes bested Dutch Ruether in a southpaw duel that gave the Cherubs the nightcap, 3 to 2.

RUDY KALLIO

Important thing about that second game was the fast time in which it was reeled off. The athletes of both sides showed plenty of hustle and, aided by the splendid hurling of the two southpaws, reached a decision in just fifty-one minutes, which made it by far the fastest game played here for some time.

Yerkes had the Indians let down with one hit up until the seventh, when three more Seattle singles came within a run of tying the score and made it a bit unpleasant for the Cherub portsider.

In the first game Rudy Kallio outlasted Ed Beecht and Art Delaney to get a victory in overtime, but he, too, experienced considerable mental anguish before the final inning ended.

Beecht, trying for his twenty-seventh victory, didn't have his customary stuff and was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth with the score 4 to 1 against him. The Angels rallied in that round to knot the count and Delaney was charged with the defeat after yielding two Seattle runs in the tenth.

Both sides played snappy ball and there were several bits of good fielding to make it an interesting double-header, even though there weren't many there to enjoy it. The Indians

IGNATIANS STAGE RALLY TO BEAT GONZAGA, 13-12

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12. (AP)—After trailing until the last few minutes of play St. Ignatius College scored a brilliant and hard-fought, 13-to-12 victory over Gonzaga University of Spokane here today.

A blocked kick by Chisholm, substitute half, on the 20-yard line and recovered on the 4-yard line, with Hemovich, substitute quarter, driving over left tackle gave the Grey Fog the touchdown and 6 points necessary for the victory.

Gonzaga scored first in the opening period when Halfback Krause broke off left tackle and ran 70 yards through the St. Ignatius team for a touchdown. Luce failed on the try for extra point.

The Grey Fog came back in the same period with a great offensive drive to take a one-point lead. Immediately afterward Kleckner, St. Ignatius halfback, returned the kick-off 47 yards. A pass, Kleckner to Horgan gained 37 yards more. A 5-yard penalty against the northerners and a pass, Kleckner to Warford, for 9 yards, put the ball on Gonzaga's 5-yard line. After

Midwest Pleased With Minnesota's Showing Against Stanford, Says Bob Zuppke

WING-BACK HAS BIG DRAWBACK

Warner System Criticised by "Big Ten" Coach

Purdue's Defeat Surprises Football Experts

Northwestern Shows Punch in Conference Win

BY ROBERT C. ZUPPKE
Football Coach, University of Illinois

CHAMPAIGN (Ill.) Oct. 12. (NANA)—The big upset in the Middle West Saturday came when Minnesota held Stanford to a scoreless tie. "Pop" Warner was said to have his greatest team, while Minnesota had looked bad against Vanderbilt. Like everybody else I did not give the Gophers a fiddler's chance, and I was surprised, but of course, delighted.

"POP" WARNER.

The whole Big Ten is feeling good and no wonder. We play most of our games against each other and since distance lends a lot of hokum, as well as enchantment, our best teams often do not receive their due. I was afraid to go out after dark last year when, after giving Notre Dame full credit for having a great team, I had the audacity to assert that Purdue was just as good.

Our coast friends will excuse us for wondering what would have happened if Stanford had met one of the conference teams that was farther along offensively than Minnesota at this stage. Coach Herb Crisler and his assistant, Tad Wieman, must have done a great job of reorganizing at Minnesota last week.

DISADVANTAGE

Stanford's inability to score, despite plenty of opportunities, illustrates a drawback to the double wing-back system—the attack is not concentrated enough to score near the goal. It has many good points and is effective with clever ball manipulators, but this disadvantage at the goal is typical.

Knute Rockne hints darkly there is a conspiracy to bring back the old mass football by eliminating the shift, but of course, he doesn't take this seriously himself. The fact is, the object of the shift is to mass a lot of power against a few opponents and it concentrates power much more than the double-wing system. For years shifting teams have been obliged by the rules to come to a full stop before putting the ball into play. If they didn't it would be just like a foot race between one sprinter with a standing start and another with a running start. Last year the rules made the shift stop "about" a second and now they say "at least," a second.

Purdue was generally picked to beat Michigan, and I shared this feeling, but gave the Wolverines a chance, so Michigan's win can hardly be considered a real upset. A real upset, in my opinion, is only when the victors were not conceded the slightest chance.

Illinois, scout tells me Michigan deserved to win. Purdue outplayed the Wolverines the first period, perhaps, because Michigan's line lacked experience against a good running attack. But when Michigan got going they were a good-looking team. Purdue's fumbles were probably due in part to clever "tackling the ball" by Michigan. Auer, tackle, and Newman, quarterback, on Michigan, and Pope, Purdue back, looked good.

NORTHWESTERN GOOD

Northwestern made a fine start by defeating an Ohio State team that is much better than last year's and Northwestern itself showed much improvement over a week before. The Buckeyes seemed to lack resource at the time of scoring opportunities. They had the better of the statistics, but Northwestern coasted the second half.

Northwestern played without Capt. Hank Bruder, the hard-luck fullback, who is out for some time with smallpox, a tough break that everybody regrets. But Dick Hanley showed he has a real team without Bruder.

Wisconsin did not have to show much to beat Chicago, but the Badgers apparently have a big and powerful team, which, with a better balanced attack, had no trouble. We'll have to wait for a real test to get Wisconsin's measure, but the Badgers may be dark horse.

Against Butler, Illinois showed some bad spots, such as "blowing signals," a fault of new teams, but there was some improvement in other particulars. The blocking was not up to Illinois standard.

Notre Dame outclassed the Navy, which doesn't seem to have a first-class team at this stage of the season. This Joe Savoldi, who made three touchdowns, may be the best back in the country. Here is a 200-pounder who runs like a winged horse—they ought to call him "Pegasus" Savoldi.

BROWN DESERVES WIN OVER PRINCETON

BY W. W. ROPER
Football Coach, Princeton University.

PRINCETON (N. J.) Oct. 12. (NANA)—Brown defeated Princeton, 7-0, in a hard-played game.

Brown deserved to win. Its attack was stronger and the plays went off much smoother. At that there was considerable room for encouragement in Princeton's play. The Tiger team is a young green eleven. In the starting eleven Capt. Mestres was the only player who started in the Yale game last fall.

Brown had a powerful, rugged line and had the offensive edge throughout the game, yet the Princeton [illegible] as the exception of the third quarter. In the fourth quarter Princeton showed more drive than any other time of the game. This is a good sign in a green team and should help the team's development in the games to come.

Brown has a powerful line. Its forwards played one of the best defensive games I have ever seen. Its hard-charging line broke up the Princeton attack before it had a chance to get started.

The Tigers might have done better had they opened up the game more in its early stops. The Brown line was driving in hard and fast, with the secondary back up close. A few forward passes would have undoubtedly opened up the line and forced the secondary back.

Princeton got a bad break at the opening of the third quarter, when a low Brown kick-off was juggled in the backfield. A good run back at this particular moment would have been a big help. The experience gained in this game should do the Princeton players a world of good.

I was surprised at the outcome of the Yale-Georgia game. I expected Yale to win by a four-touchdown margin.

Georgia has an aggressive team, and played good football all afternoon. The southerners came from behind to win in the last few minutes of play. Both teams gained about the same amount of ground.

There was a good deal of loose handling of the ball by the Georgia backfield which might have proved disastrous.

COUGARS NEAR PIGSKIN TITLE

and fading on passes. Lainhart was the best ball carrier for Hollingbury's team, while the punting and passing of Ellingsen and the all-around play of Fullback Schwartz also stood out.

MOHLER STAR

For Southern California, Mohler, quarterback, was outstanding as far as ball-carrying ability was concerned.

This was convincingly demonstrated when he nearly pulled the game out of the fire in the last few minutes of play, carrying the ball to the 11-yard line as the game ended.

This was after he had combined a passing and running attack to give us our touchdown on a pass of 45 yards, which he threw to Apsit. Given an opportunity to tie the score, our boys were unable to make good on the conversion.

Washington State scored in the first quarter when a long pass from Ellingsen to J. Hurley, put us deep in our territory and then Lainhart plunged over from the 1-yard line, Maskell, end, converting.

It was rather evident that two or three Southern California players, of whom much had been expected did not come up to expectations. As predicted, the California-St. Mary's game was a tough contest, the Bears coming through with a running and passing attack to win out in the fourth quarter, 7 to 6.

Schaldach, Junior College transfer, was again California's outstanding star. He started the fourth-quarter drive from California's 31-yard line and finally flipped a 4-yard pass to Avery, for the touchdown and then drop-kicked the extra point, which meant victory.

BEARS GOOD

California's triumph bears out what I said about Nibs Price being destined to have a good football team this fall, despite his loss to Washington State last week.

St. Mary's was undefeated last year and it was by no means an easy victory for the Bears to attain.

Stennett, halfback, and Ebding, end, stood out for St. Mary's. Washington, playing under wraps, had virtually no trouble disposing of Idaho, 27 to 0. Idaho is pretty light this year and Washington's big team, won without being extended. The Huskies are pointing for Oregon this week.

Nevada surprised by holding Santa Clara to a scoreless tie. The University of California at Los Angeles defeated Pomona College, 21 to 0, which was exactly the margin figured.

In the Rocky Mountain Conference, Utah State displayed more strength than expected by holding Colorado U. to a scoreless tie. Colorado State swamped Western State, 45 to 7, and Montana State took an anticipated victory over Wyoming, 20 to 13.

TIDBALL, ROBBINS NAB TENNIS TILT

Dedicating seven pay-as-you-play tennis courts in West Hollywood, two exhibition doubles matches were furnished local racket fans yesterday afternoon. In the first encounter Jack Tidball, Pacific Coast doubles champion, and Cliff Robbins, Pacific Coast Collegiate title-holder, upset Henry Ellsworth Vines, Jr., 1930 Pacific-Southwest singles champion, and Lester Stoefen, prominent L.A.A.C. star, in straight sets, 8-6, 6-4. Vines manipulated his racket in his usual flashy style, but Stoefen appeared to be under the weather, and could not get going.

In the other match, Helen Marlowe and Vines split sets with Dorothy Workman and Robbins, 6-4, 4-6.

MAGYARS IN SOCCER WIN

Sons of St. George Eleven on Short End of 8-0 Game; Mercuries Blank Richfield, 4-0

In the feature soccer tilt at Loyola Field yesterday afternoon, the Magyars defeated the Sons of St. George 8 goals to 0, by playing brilliant and "heady" football throughout. In the preliminary encounter, the L.A.A.C. boys displayed little aggressiveness in defeating the Richfield Oilers, 4 to 0, in the 1930 debut.

SERAPHS SPLIT DOUBLE-HEADER

look like a much-improved club now and if Bill Klepper can raise enough money to keep his squad of youngsters together they ought to do pretty well next season.

Seattle opened the scoring in the first game with a run in the second on singles by Almada and Gaddy, a walk and Cox's sacrifice fly. The Angels tied it up in the third when Baecht singled and completed the circuit on Parker's hit and Harper's sacrifice fly.

Baecht started weakening in the sixth when singles by Almada, Owen and Knothe produced a run, Holland's double and Almada's fourth straight hit produced another Indian run in the seventh. Cox's double, Kallio's bunt and Muller's sacrifice fly gave the Tribe its fourth tally in the eighth.

Warren batted for Hannah and singled to start an Angel rally that tied the count in the home half of the eighth. Peters batted for Baecht and was safe when Muller booted his grounder. Parker's sacrifice fly and doubles by Harper and Haney sent over the tying runs.

The Angels threatened in the ninth but a sensational play by Knothe robbed Parker of a hit and choked off the rally.

Gaddy doubled to open the Seattle tenth and went to third on Knothe's bunt. Cox was purposely walked. Kallio hit to Haney, whose throw to Warren got Gaddy at the plate. But Muller doubled to right center, scoring Cox, and Kallio, mackinaw and all, also counted when Schulmerich made a low relay to Parker.

After two were out the Angels scored a run in their half of the tenth on successive singles by Schulmerich, Jacobs and Statz. But Kallio personally tossed out Moore to end the game and a lot of mental anguish for himself.

The Angels scored off Ruether in the first inning of the nightcap, singles by Parker, Burns and Schulmerich producing a run. Statz, who has raised his average up above the .350 mark during a phenomenal hitting streak, homed in the second inning for another run.

The third Seraph tally arrived in the fourth when Schulmerich walked, took second on Jacobs's hit, third as Statz walked and came home on Skiff's infield smash off Knothe's glove.

Seattle's first hit and run off Yerkes came in the fifth when Almada singled to center. Owen hit to Statz, who overthrew first and Almada took third and Owen second on the error. Almada scored on Lawrence's infield out.

Holland singled to start the seventh for the second hit off Yerkes, but was forced by Ellsworth, who batted for Almada. Owen popped to Parker. Then Lawrence and Knothe singled to score Ellsworth and put the tying and winning runs on the paths. Burns, however, pulled down Borreani's drive for the final out. Scores:

Hagen Victor Over Armour

PONTIAC (Mich.) Oct. 12. (AP)—Walter Hagen defeated Tommy Armour, 3 and 2, in the thirty-six-hole finals of the Michigan P.G.A. tournament today at Birmingham Golf Club to win his first championship of the year.

Hagen and the present national P.G.A. champion fought a close battle during the morning round and neither was more than 2 up until the eleventh hole in the afternoon. Hagen took the tenth and eleventh holes to become 3 up and ended the match at the sixteenth as Armour found a tree between his ball and the cup and got into two traps before he picked up.

Led by Capt. Bill Ray, who tallied four goals for the day's scoring, the White poloists whipped Yellow Jacket four, 11 to 6, today in a fast contest on the Riviera wood Polo and Hunt Club field.

The victors turned in a brilliant display of teamwork that was too much for the Yellow Jackets. I. D. Smith at back looked best of the winners with three goals to his credit. Capt. Joe Smith, R. Felix and Fred De Lay also all rang up a pair of goals apiece were outstanding for the losers.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12. — This of the country is still staggering Saturday's gridiron shocks. Wherever football fans gather you hear people repeating scores to themselves and wagging their heads slowly in apparent bewilderment. Georgia, 18; Yale, 14. Brown, 7; Princeton, 0. PICK HOLTZER TO WIN

Goldie Hess Underdog in Olympic Fight Tomorrow Night; Brown Favored Over Varner

Max Holtzer, French junior lightweight, is a 10-to-8 favorite to defeat Goldie Hess and Newsboy Brown rules a 10-to-6 choice over Claude Varner.

The double bill is the Olympic feature tomorrow night. Hess and Holtzer are due back today from rival camps at Soper's ranch and Murietta Hot Springs.

Hess is still belligerent over the main event angle. He is not entirely satisfied to risk the flip of a coin to decide the matter.

GOLDIE HESS

But since Jack Doyle is running his club again the fighters have been notified to be reasonable and let the promoter do his own promoting.

There will be no last-minute trouble. Hess is a sensible little fellow. He has been less dictative than any other headliner in the State.

Being a short-ender means nothing to Goldie. He has won on the little end of odds as high as 4 and 5 to 1 against him. The reason Holtzer is tabbed is due to his good fight with Eddie Mack here and his recent win from Kid Kaplan back east.

Promoter Jack Doyle and Matchmaker Wad Wadhams are hunting indoor naturals for future bouts. The one nearest to being made is Al Fay, who whipped Les Kennedy, and Max Baer for the Coast heavyweight title.

They are also hot on the trail for a good opponent to box Sammy Jackson, popular Negro welter. The eligibles being sought are Tommy Freeman, Sammy Mandell, Young Jack Thompson and Jackie Fields.

With Jack Kearns handling Fields it's possible he may be brought home for the Negro. Thompson and Jackson are being loudly talked by the voters.

Tomorrow night's preliminaries are Hymie Miller vs. Johnny Torres, Billy Papke, Jr., vs. Bud Baker and Jack Keenan vs. Frank Burnell.

TROJAN VARSITY FACES SHAKE-UP FOR UTAH TILT

disappointed in the way his boys performed. He's too good a sport to say so publicly or to ride the players because they were not functioning at their best. And it's tough that Jones has to be the one to take it on the chin, for there was nothing he could do personally to help matters. They had the plays, many of which were not called. They had an even chance to win at starting time and this was maintained right up until the start of the second half, when Jim Musick fumbled on the first play after the kick-off and the boys immediately bogged down again after Jones had succeeded in pepping them up between periods.

And, by the way, Musick's fumbling, which was certainly one of the turning points of the game along with Duffield's terrible punting, is likely to cost him his first-string post.

Jones stated today that for the time being, Gus Shaver will take over the fullback duties. Shaver, while not packing quite as much punch as Musick, gets good yardage, nevertheless, and does not fumble. Jim has turned in too many bobbles for a first class fullback and until he learns to guard the pigskin more carefully Shaver will be in there. In justice to Musick, it should be stated that he hurt his left elbow badly early in the game and this may have affected his gripping power. Those of you who followed yesterday's game and know any football at all, must already have guessed that Duffield has lost his first-string position to Orv Mohler, who with Arbelbide, Plachn, Wilcox and Apsit were the only Trojans to perform up to snuff.

MOHLER GETS JOB

"Mohler will be my starting quarterback now," said Howard Jones today. "He delivered in a pinch yesterday, and will get the call over Duffield. That we did not succeed in our final touchdown drive was no fault of Mohler." Although Mohler and Williamson share the blame for the failure to convert, most of the fault rested with Orv. The pass was not bad, just fair, skimming over the top of the grass without jumping along.

Orv had a terrible time trying to set it up, however, and when he did get his hands working properly the terrible Cougars were in there for the kill and Mohler could do nothing but flip the ball up to Johnny Baker in the desperate hope that Baker might be able to do something with it and get the extra point.

No one knows why Apsit, who has been steady as a clock holding the ball for place kicks, was not called upon in the pinch.

Orv decided to do it himself and that was that.

Mohler made one of the greatest underpressure punts that Trojan kickers have ever delivered. In the fourth quarter Ellingsen toed the ball out of bounds on Troy's 2-yard line. Musick, Pinckert and Apsit were in there with Orv which left no real punter in the combination. Mohler decided the shoulder of the task belonged to him and how the boy delivered. Kicking from 8 yards back of his goal, Orv banged out a hurried spiral which Tonkin took on Troy's 45-yard line, to be downed instantly by Arbelbide and Wilcox.

If Jones had any capable sub for Pinckert, it is likely that Erny would also lose his job, which must sound like so much applesauce to those of you who have come to know the San Bernardino boy's consistency, but Erny was away off Saturday and Jones is contemplating giving Barry Stephens a thorough trial in his place.

HALL DETERMINED

Al Plachn has won Bob Hall's tackle spot, but Hall, disappointed with his showing of Saturday but not discouraged, vows that he will fight his way back to the varsity.

Jones is also seriously considering using Shaver as his driving quarterback.

Not that Duffield is to be shelved, but Shaver is far and away the best triple-threat artist the Trojans have and as such should be in the ball games more, either at quarter or full. Mohler, aside from his one toss to Apsit for the touchdown, did not pass at all well, his heaves being short, going into the ground behind the receivers.

Secret practice will be the order during the next two weeks at Bovard Field, one of the few things that pepped the boys up last night was news of Stanford's scoreless tie with Minnesota. "If Minnesota can do that so can we" was the sentiment.

Incidentally, that was a terrific boot in the bloomers for coast football.

The irony of the Pullman defeat is that Jones still has plenty of stuff left for Stanford, his quarterbacks failing to use many plays which might have lighted the pathway to victory.

When Duffield was in there he'd call for a line buck and make three or four yards.

DUFFIELD ERRS

Then to the surprise of all and the consternation of Jones, Marsh would bob up with a pass on second down, and most of these tosses were unleashed while the Trojans were still dangerously deep in their own territory.

It was such tactical boners as these, plus Duffield's awful kicking, which kept the Trojans constantly in a hole. Washington State's offense, while strong, was pretty well taken care of after the first seven minutes, but what hurt like blazes was that the Trojans not only couldn't take care of their own offense, but in addition were always in the position of having to struggle out of a tight spot. Speaking of Duffield's kicking, I don't know whether it has been brought out that Marsh's three terrible boots were all made from virtually the same spot deep in Southern California territory.

He was within ten or fifteen yards of the sideline on his right and states that this chap Edwards, coming in like an enraged bull on Duffield's right, rushed him so fast that the only place Duffy could kick was off to the right and this, unfortunately for the Trojans, happened to be out of bounds.

This is another reason for seriously considering Edwards as all-American timber.

Some of us writers are only beginning to realize the great reserve strength which Jones had last year.

Had the 1929 team been at Pullman, and performed in the first half as the present eleven did, Jones would have had an entire new line, and at least one halfback in there in a hurry.

But there are no three-deep replacements this year and in several positions the drop to second string is an awful flop.

Arbelbide twice saved the Trojans from being scored on. When Musick fumbled on S.C.'s 40-yard line and Edwards recovered the Cougars drove to the 9-yard mark, where they had fourth down and 2 to go—not an awful lot of yardage for a fullback of Schwartz's power. But Quarterback Tonkin got foxy, tried a reverse around Garry's end and the big Trojan promptly smacked him down for a 6-yard loss and Southern California took the ball. The other occasion was described yesterday when Arbelbide caught Jones from behind when he was away to a touchdown in midfield, surrounded by three Cougar interference runners.

IN HOLE AGAIN

After Arbelbide's feat of heaving Tonkin on his collar button, the teams exchanged kicks and then Duffield, with 2 yards to go on fourth down in midfield, tried to smash it over and missed. The Cougars took the ball and came within an ace of scoring immediately. Ellingsen passed to S. Hansen, who was headed for a certain score when he slipped and fell on the 18-yard line.

The weather was ideal, but some of the plays skidded somewhat while cutting sharply on the turf.

The third quarter ended with the ball on S.C.'s 14-yard line and then the Cougars missed on a pass over the goal line to start the final period. Duffield promptly put the Trojans back in the hole with a kick which traveled only 18 yards before going out of bounds and that brought Mohler back in and also produced his own magnificent punt from behind the goal line a moment later.

The rest of the fourth quarter was all Southern California's with the exception of the spurt by Jones and his overhauling by Arbelbide, followed by Schwartz's fumble and recovery by Erne Smith.

Hollingbury handled his players splendidly, using four ends for his only line substitutions and only Jones for Lainhart in the backfield. The team, as far as I could see, has no weakness.

One thing that made the Cougars mad all season was yarn by George Varnell, grid official and Seattle sports writer. Varnell placed Washington State seventh in the Coast Conference and maybe you think Hollingbery didn't use that to spur his men on.

The Trojans get home about 1:30 tomorrow afternoon.

SONNENBERG TO WRESTLE HERE

Olympic Mat Victor to Meet Champion in Bout

A match here with "Dynamite" Gus Sonnenberg, world's mat king, is planned with the winner of the finish wrestling bout between Don George, the "Wolverine Express," and Bob (Bibber) McCoy, former Holy Cross grid star, scheduled as the feature event of Promoter Lou Daro's mat show at the Olympic Wednesday night.

GUS SONNENBERG

Sonnenberg agreed to terms for the match yesterday. The proposed title match will probably be held here late this month, it was reported. He agreed to meet either George or McCoy in a finish bout.

Of the two challengers, George has yet to meet the mat king. The former University of Michigan grappler was an amateur mat star for three years, winning the national title in 1928-29. Since turning professional last November he ha had forty matches and has yet to be beaten.

During the last few months George began displaying championship possibilities, and his workouts attracted a great deal of attention from mat instructors and veteran followers of the wrestling game. Following Marshall's defeat at the hands of Sonnenberg here two weeks ago, he asked to be given a chance at the champion. Both he and his backers felt certain that George could have beaten either Sonnenberg or Marshall on the respective showings these two made that night.

The match between George and McCoy was expected to be a very close, but spectacular one before Daro landed Sonnenberg. Now the experts are predicting a battle that that will rate with the best ever seen at the Olympic.

Joe Malcewicz, the mat panther, will clash with Jose Dominguez, 215-pound Mexican sensation, in the other finish bout on this program, while Nick Lutze, popular Venice grappler, will clash with Moose Norbeck, giant Canadian, in the opener.

MISS COLLETT DEFENDS TITLE

National Women's Tourney Starts Today

thy Campbell Hurd of Philadelphia, three times a champion in 1909, 1910 and 1924, or the 1926 title-holder, Mrs. Helen B. Stetson of Philadelphia, will crash through again, or possibly one of the younger stars?

To pick a winner one must either be a seer, or simply make a blind stab at a selection, as the situation is far too complex for casual guesses.

THE SITUATION

After a week of watching the greats and near-greats practice, however, it is possible to gain some slight insight into the possibilities and our impressions are presented, herewith, for what they might be worth.

(1.) Glenna has been off her game for some time. Her scoring, for a player of her caliber, has been poor in practice, and she seems to be fighting the course. There is a chance that she may make an unfavorable showing, but it must not be forgotten that she went directly to Oakland Hills a year ago after losing to Helen Hicks in the finals of the Canadian Women's championship and played sensationally all week long to win her fourth championship. When on her game, she is undoubtedly the finest woman golfer in America.

(2.) Miss Hollins, who has the game and the stamina, and likes the north course, must be rated a top favorite. She is scoring beautifully, has the shots and the background to win.

(3.) Miss Edith Quier of Reading, Pa., the personality girl, Miss Helen (Billie) Hicks of Inwood, N. Y., and Miss Virginia Van Wie of Chicago are the three younger stars who figure in the going. Of the trio, Miss Van Wie is playing the poorest and Miss Quier the best, but Miss Hicks is rated as the strongest.

(4.) Mrs. Hurd, who holds every golfing honor that can be won by a woman, is likely to cause plenty of trouble. She has the polish and the experience, and plays the north course well.

(5.) Mrs. Leona Pressler of San Gabriel, 1929 runner-up, will never have a better opportunity of winning the championship. Major competition is not new to Leona, she is playing well and that means brilliantly, and the north course is ideally suited to her game. She is, perhaps, laboring under the strain of trying to play up to her reputation and the hopes of her friends, but given the all necessary breaks is capable of winning the championship.

But these are only a few of the nationally famous players who tee off this morning. Players whom it might be well to watch are Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, a semi-finalist last year and western women's champion; Miss Peggy Watties of Buffalo, N. Y.; Miss Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, Wis.; Mrs. Harley Higbie of Detroit, and Mrs. Stewart Hanley of Detroit.

And then there are our own stars, Mrs. Gregg Lifur of Riviera, runner-up in the western women's championship a year ago; Miss Helen Lawson of Wilshire, Mrs. Roy Green of California, Miss Lucille De Long of San Diego, and Miss Margaret Cameron of Flintridge.

PINS FAIR

The north course will be a difficult, but not unfair, test this morning. Thomas. Mrs. A. E. D. Trabue, chairman of the women's auxiliary of the Southern California Golf Association, and Walter Leeds of the Los Angeles Country Club placed the pins yesterday afternoon.

"I do not wish the pins to be placed so as to make the course too easy," said Mr. Thomas, but the women will be given every chance to make their pars."

No water was put on the course yesterday, and it will be fast today. The greens are like glass, but absolutely true and uniform from first to last.

The leading stars tee off this morning between 9 and 10 o'clock.

SHEELY MAINTAINS LEAD

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12. (AP)—Earl Sheely, Seal first baseman, held his lead in the Pacific Coast League batting race last week. The Seal star has an average of .403 against his next nearest competitor, Wes Schulmerich of the Angels, who has .377.

Blue Streak Race Winner

MIDDLETOWN (Ct.) October 12. Harold G. Ferguson, California's bid for honors in the national outboard championships being held here, took the first step toward new laurels by winning the C. Class preliminary today. His Johnson-powered Blue Streak averaged 43.79 miles an hour as he ran far in the lead over the East's best drivers.

The finals in the national championships will be held here tomorrow, and their completion will see vast changes in the roster of world's records. Sixteen records have been shattered during the racing here, and new marks tomorrow will be a certainty if the same weather conditions prevail.

PLANE TO CAST SELLEW ASHES

Colorado River Will Receive Dust of Dam Builder

Family Forms Plan Due to Achievements There

He Directed Construction of Laguna Project

Sometime within the next month an unusual funeral service will be conducted when the ashes of Francis L. Sellew, engineer, will be scattered from the air over the Colorado River, the end of the career of a man who spent a large part of his professional life in an effort to curb the waters of that violent stream.

Mr. Sellew died unexpectedly on the 3rd inst., in the lobby of the Barclay Hotel. He was 61 years of age.

The decision to cast the ashes from a plane droning over the Colorado River came last week when members of his family approved the plan as a memorial to the years of engineering service Mr. Sellew rendered on various projects along the river.

HIGH RENOWN WON

He went first to the Colorado River as project superintendent of the Laguna Dam and served there from 1906 until 1916. Both the dam and the siphon leading under the river from the California side to Arizona, were built under his direction. During the course of his work on the Laguna project, he became internationally known for his engineering skill and was considered one of the best-posted experts on the Colorado River.

From 1915 until 1929 he examined and acted as consulting engineer for various projects in Colorado, Utah, Arizona, California and Mexico and his work in Lower California with the Colorado River Land Company won him much fame. At the time of his death he was acting as a consulting engineer with offices in this city.

Mr. Sellew began his professional career in 1890 with the Metropolitan Sewage Commission of Massachusetts and during the time of his work there advanced from transitman to assistant chief in charge of investigations. From 1903 to 1906 he was general manager of construction on a three-mile sewer project near Boston and later built a masonry dam and powerhouse in South Carolina and drove a mile-long tunnel on the Shoshone project in Wyoming.

Since 1907 Mr. Sellew had made his home in La Jolla and leaves there his widow, Mrs. Imelda Peate Sellew, and two sons, Sibley Sellew, assistant cashier of the La Jolla National Bank and Philip Kirk Sellew, assistant secretary of the La Jolla Guarantee Building-Loan Association.

The date of the services when the ashes of Mr. Sellew will be taken in a plane over the Colorado River has not been set, but relatives yesterday said the ceremony probably will be conducted some time in November.

PAIR TO HEAR PENALTY

After pleading guilty to a charge of counterfeiting, James Curleo and Robert E. Johnson are to appear today before United States District Judge James for sentence. Claude E. Johnson, a brother of Robert, is to appear to have his case on the same charge set for trial. David Thomas and Thomas B. Crow, also accused, are to appear for arraignment and plea.

TRAFFIC LEADS DEATH RACE FOR SEPTEMBER

Statistics released yesterday in the September report of Coroner Nance show that motor vehicles were responsible for most of the violent deaths investigated by that office. The total of traffic fatalities was given as fifty-eight. This number was closely followed with forty-four suicides.

The report covers the investigation of 333 deaths from all causes reported to the Coroner's office in which a physician's death certificate was not issued. Fatalities in the city proper were given as 213.

The classification of traffic fatalities gave in part the following: Auto and pedestrian, twenty; auto and auto, fifteen and auto overturned, five.

In the explanation of causes "crossing street not at intersection" and "incompetent handling" were each given a total of ten.

Industrial accidents accounted for fourteen deaths and the total of accidental deaths was listed at twenty-eight.

SINGER DIES FOLLOWING OPERATION

Mrs. Belle Chamberlin, Formerly Famed in Light Opera, Succumbs

Mrs. Belle Chamberlin, former noted light-opera singer, died yesterday morning at the Hollywood Hospital, where she underwent an operation for a bladder ailment.

Mrs. Chamberlin was born in Grand Rapids, Mich., fifty-seven years ago, and for sixteen years was one of the leading singers on the stage. She was a member of the original Bostonians and also of a New York company, presenting a number of the better-known light operas. About fifteen years ago she divorced her husband, W. C. Elisler of New York. Of late years she had been a dancing teacher in Detroit, and came here from that city seven weeks ago for the benefit of her declining health. She resided at 3206 West Forty-first street.

Funeral arrangements, according to Mrs. George H. Gillette, 3706 West Fourth street, a close personal friend, will await word from a sister, Mrs. N. E. Winslow of New York; a nephew, E. De Forrest Winslow of New York, and a niece, Mrs. Max Courtlander of Santa Barbara. The body is at the W. A. Brown funeral chapel, 1815 South Flower street.

TIRE OFFER TRAPS CAR-THEFT SUSPECT

His suspicions aroused because the driver of an expensive automobile offered to leave a tire as security for a supply of gasoline, H. B. Rose, gasoline-station employee at 230 Northwestern avenue, last night brought about the arrest on auto-theft charges of V. Latimer, 18-year-old transient.

Hollywood police investigated and reported that the youth had stolen the car from Louis R. Cohen, seven hours before he drove it to the station and offered the tire for gasoline.

OCTOGENARIAN BEATS SON'S GUARDIAN PLEA

Superior Judge Crail has refused to appoint a guardian for James Comer, 87-year-old Compton rancher, whose son, Albert Comer, of Kansas City, filed a petition to have his father declared incompetent because, it is asserted, the elder Comer was about to give his property, worth $15,000, to his housekeeper, Mrs. Harriet Alverson. "All I ever gave to Mrs. Alverson was a pair of silk stockings," said Comer. Neighbors testified that he is able to manage his own affairs.

BISHOP'S SON TO EXPLAIN BAD CHECKS

Fire Department Seeks Cause of Mystery Blaze in Young Cannon's Office

Richard M. Cannon, son of Bishop Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was quoted in dispatches from Washington last night as stating that charges filed against him here involving issuance of bad checks will be answered "satisfactorily at the proper time and place."

Cannon asserted that he has been the target of frequent attacks because he is the son of Bishop Cannon, and called "significant" a fire that he says destroyed valuable papers and important documents in his office here four days before he left for his present visit with his father.

Fire department officials last night revealed that a fire was discovered at the residence of Cannon at 2426 Allesandro street on the 5th inst. They said the cause of the blaze, which was found in a pile of papers and documents, is still under inquiry.

At the same time authorities of the El Monte Military School, formerly operated by Cannon, reported that three additional checks have been returned to them on account of insufficient funds. Two of the checks, they said, were written on September 26 and 27 in San Francisco and cashed at a hotel. Issuance of a criminal complaint against Cannon has been asked by the school officials, they said.

Sale to Honor Popular Store's Vice-President

Continuation of Walker's Silver Jubilee Sale today will be in honor of T. C. Palmer, vice-president of Walker's, Inc., for his twenty-four years' service with the store and will be known as Palmer Day.

Palmer entered the service of Walker's one year after the store opened its doors. He was employed as an assistant in the advertising department. Six years ago he was made vice-president and manager.

On Thursday, last, 22,000 persons were given a piece of the Walker birthday cake. Each one of these had made a purchase while thousands of others, who had also bought something, did not bother about the cake. Officials report sales as being from 15 to 20 per cent above those of the same day last year.

Pair Robbed by Masked Bandits

Jewelry valued at more than $2000 worn by R. A. Richardson, a health lecturer, 728 South Berendo street, was taken by two bandits who waited in the victim's garage late last night. Richardson told police the two men appeared as he was driving his car into a garage at 725 South Berendo street and after robbing him took valuables amounting to $210 from his wife.

Both men were masked, Richardson said, and he was unable to give a description of them.

JERITZA STARS IN "THE GIRL"

Puccini Wild West Opera Offers Favorite in Vivid Farewell Portrayal

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

Enacting the role of Minnie in Giacomo Puccini's rarely heard "La Fanciulla del West" (namely "The Girl of the Golden West,") Maria Jeritza Saturday evening bid farewell to a throng of opera-goers at Shrine Auditorium. The production was the next to the last for the engagement, which will close tonight with "Lucia." A personal victory was won by the favored diva in the Puccini curiosity, that is unique in having a California setting of the forty-nine days, and that might justifiably be called a real "horse opera" of the good old open spaces.

Despite its handicaps, I have always believed that Puccini's "The Girl of the Golden West" would some day find a place in the popular repertoire, but apparently the time is not yet. There was a certain coldness about the ultimate reception of this work by a favored Italian composer. Rich as the score is in instrumenetal color and invention, there remains something incongruous about the translation to tone of a once sensationally successful play by John Luther Long and David Belasco.

At all events, Maria Jeritza brought a wonderful wealth of acting power to the role of Minnie, and the art that she disclosed in the interpretation climaxed in the telling second act, which drew the huge ovation—one of the largest demonstrations that this songstress and actress received during the Los Angeles Grand Opera Association series.

Jeritza all but succeeded in justifying the revival of the Puccini work by the sweep, the sympathy, and one might also add, the whimsy of her portrayal. There is plenty of stressful drama for the heroine, what with the conflict with Sheriff Rance, her thrusting of the romantic Dick Johnson out of her domicile to be shot, and the dealing of the cards that is to decide whether he lives or dies. Jeritza infused into all of these events a very patent meaning through the care that she exerted over every detail of her performance. She made the character amusing, as well, in the scene of the tight shoes and the white cotton gloves that she dons in honor of her bandit caller.

Altogether "The Girl" was given with unusual excellence. Gaetano Merola's conducting had an inspirational spirit, and there was capable singing both by Frederick Jagel and Gaetano Viviani. The general ensemble of men's voices seemed to lack unity in certain scenes, but the work of the major principals deserved high commendation. Jagel's rendition of the only aria that the work boasts, "Ch'ella mi creda," in the last act, was rewarded with applause. He sings with authority and style. Portions of the duet with Jeritza in the second act were also very attractive. Viviani was the Sheriff Rance, less effective in the acting than vocally.

While time seems to be mellowing some of "The Girl's" worst faults, particularly obvious in the first and last acts, it is still an uncertain entity in the repertoire of this country. For all that, there are many moments when Puccini musically is on the heights empyrean, especially in the orchestra. And the opera association here and Merola deserve no small credit for presenting the work, and especially for giving it such quality in the mise-en-scene. The final act offered a majestic stage picture of beautiful redwoods and snowcapped peak.

Clare Clairbert and Frederick Jagel will sing in "Lucia" this evening.

FILM FOLK TO ATTEND PLAYHOUSE

Notables Plan Reception for Betty Bronson, Star of "Orchid Annie"

Filmdom will be generously represented at tonight's opening performance of "Little Orchid Annie" at the Hollywood Playhouse. Numerous reservations have been made by screen notables in honor of Betty Bronson, star of the Hadley Waters-Charles Beahan farce, it is reported.

BETTY BRONSON

Miss Bronson makes her stage debut in the name role of "Little Orchid Annie." The play has undergone many changes since it was first presented at the Mayan last year, it is said, and audiences are promised much that is new and unique in the production.

Earl McCarthy, who plays Orchid Annie's young husband, also makes his stage debut. The cast also includes Mabel Forrest, Georgie Harris, Julia Blanc, John Manning, Camille Rovelle, Frederic Sullivan, Arnold Walsh and others.

Majestic Books Gold Rush Tale

The wistful appeal of Ann Harding stands out vividly in "Girl of the Golden West," which starts at the Majestic Theater Friday.

The story of this First National feature was taken from David Belasco's stage drama bearing the same name. The story is set in the gold rush era of California, one of the colorful periods in American history. John Francis Dillon directed.

The cast includes James Rennie, Harry Bannister, J. Farrell MacDonald, George Cooper, Arthur Stone, Arthur Housman and others.

Indian Epic Records for History

Spotted Elk

Beautiful redskin princess, is one of the many players in "The Silent Enemy," now pleasing audiences at the Million Dollar Theater.

CHEVALIER FILM LISTED

Maurice Chevalier, termed "the entertainment idol of two continents," stars in "Play Boy of Paris," the new screen attraction at the Paramount Theater, beginning Thursday. "Anchors Aweigh," a Jack Partington production, will be offered on the stage.

In "Play Boy of Paris," Chevalier portrays a role different from any of his previous screen characters. By day he is seen as a waiter in a small Parisian cafe, and by night as a wealthy nobleman leading a gay life along the great white way of the French capital.

Featured in support of the star are Eugene Pallett, Stuart Erwin, Frances Dee and O. P. Heggie.

Inaugurating the first of a series of stage shows to be produced for the Paramount by Partington, "Anchors Aweigh" features Ray Bolger, master of ceremonies and dancer; Monroe and Grant dancers; Frances Shelly, personality prima donna, and the team of Bolger and Skeeter in a novelty dance routine.

Currently screening at the Paramount is "Her Wedding Night," starring Clara Bow, Horace Heidt and his band are on the stage.

Singing Career Turned Down by Noted Actress

Despite more than ten years of intensive study in singing, Rose Hobart, who makes her film debut in "A Lady Surrenders," has never had a role calling upon her musical ability. The Universal adaptation of John Erskine's "Sincerity" follows "Half Shot at Sunrise" at the Orpheum Theater Saturday.

Miss Hobart's parents had ambitious plans to launch her on an operatic career. But the classics only appealed to her from the listener's standpoint, and she chose a stage career, to sing professionally only when her roles called for it.

In "A Lady Surrenders," Miss Hobart shares principal feminine honors with Genevieve Tobin, another New York stage star who is seen on the screen for the first time. The two were seen respectively in "Death Takes a Holiday" and "Fifty Million Frenchmen."

FRENCH CONSUL TO ATTEND EGAN PLAY

Henri Didot, French Consul, will be guest of honor at the opening performance of Andre Ferrier's players at the Egan Theater Saturday night. Although established for several years in San Francisco, this will mark the local debut of Ferrier's company.

"Pour Avoir Adrienne," French farce by Louis Verneuil, has been selected as the first attraction. The engagement is limited to seven nights only. The cast includes Andre Ferrier, Mariette Cordona, Georges Simondet, Jeanne Ferrier, Rene Borlos and Helen Strause.

FILM CINDERELLA STORY TOLD AGAIN

Claudia Dell

Appearing at Warner Brothers studio during a psychological crisis provided Claudia Dell with the leading role in "Sweet Kitty Bellairs," the feature screen attraction now at Warner Brothers Hollywood Theater.

Executives had combed the list of available actresses for someone who satisfied type requirements for the Kitty Bellairs role. An official observed Miss Dell on one of the sets and persuaded her to take a camera test. A contract resulted.

Women's Club Official Lauds 'The Big Trail'

With a marked appeal, Raoul Walsh's "The Big Trail" at Grauman's Chinese Theater, is bringing praise from the throngs which have seen it.

Mrs. Will Le Austin, chairman of motion pictures for the Los Angeles district of the California Federation of Women's Clubs, writes: "It was my happy privilege to see and enjoy 'The Big Trail.' I most heartily indorse this picture for all ages, for its interesting historical theme, which is truly noble, portraying the hardships endured by the pioneers of the western plains, and their unconquerable spirit, which made it possible that we, of modern today, might enjoy our beloved land."

Carli Elinor and concert orchestra are also proving popular with the musical offering, "Pioneer Memories."

'Crimson Hour' Departs From Belasco Soon

The last week of Pauline Frederick in "The Crimson Hour" starts tonight at the Belasco Theater. "Young Sinners" makes its local debut on the 20th inst.

Pauline Frederick is said to have scored one of the greatest successes of her career as the feminine barrister in "The Crimson Hour."

"Young Sinners" deals with youth and its indiscretions. The cast includes Marian Marsh, John Darrow, Cecil Cunningham and Molly O'Day. Edgar MacGregor directed.

FOX FARCE COMING TO CRITERION

"Up the River" to Follow "Madame Satan;" Run Begins Wednesday

"Madam Satan," Cecil B. De Mille's society comedy, closes its engagement at the Criterion Theater tomorrow night. The following morning "Up the River" will be presented on the screen. The film is from the Fox studios.

"Up the River" is said to be a New York reference to Sing Sing prison. However, according to report, the new picture has no gunplay, no prison fights and no gloom. It has been characterized as a succession of laughable situations, being built around a humorous side of prison life.

John Ford directed the film from the comedy written by Maurine Watkins, author of "Chicago." Spencer Tracy, stage star, has the leading role. Other important parts are taken by Warren Hymer, Claire Luce, William Collier, Sr., Humphrey Bogart and others.

Rogers Vehicle Scheduled for Loew's State

The situations arising when a homespun American with a thorough dislike for the ways and personalities of Englishmen is forced to be the house guest of one with equally nurtured distaste for Americans provide Will Rogers with fine opportunities for humor in "So This Is London," which will open at Loew's State Theater Thursday.

This will be the first downtown showing and the first popular presentation of the Fox picture. Directed by John Blystone, the production is an adaptation of George M. Cohan's stage play. A romance between Rogers's son (Frank Albertson,) and the Englishman's daughter (Maureen O'Sullivan,) runs throughout the story.

Irene Rich, Lumsden Hare and Bramwell Fletcher are also featured in the cast. Farce comedy is provided in the current offering at Loew's State by "Those Three French Girls."

Tropics Form Background of Tower Picture

Another torrid drama of the tropics comes to the local theater row in "Isle of Escape," a Warner Brothers picture, featuring Monte Blue, Betty Compson, Myrna Loy and Noah Beery. The film is now at the Tower Theater.

The picture has a "gone native" theme, telling a familiar story of a dusky maid's romance with a white man, and the subsequent battle over his affections, with the plot terminating in the usual manner.

Dialogue is somewhat stilted in "Isle of Escape" and the story might well have been told in silence, with an appropriate musical score. One interesting sequence is that showing members of the native tribe accompanying the dusky beauty to the hut of the white man.

Myrna Loy turns in a good performance as the native girl, fitting into the characterization well. Monte Blue is the white man, and Betty Compson is the white girl who battles for his attention. Noah Beery fills his role adequately.

The surrounding bill at the Tower contains some interesting short subjects.

Bunola Kay on Bill at R.-K.-O.

Bunola Kay, dramatic soprano and radio entertainer, is now appearing at the R.-K.-O. Theater in a featured capacity with Bill Sharples in "Western Show."

Miss Kay, who is known for her numerous program and radio appearances in Southern California during the past two years, won recognition in Paris three years ago as soloist at the Holy Trinity Cathedral.

PRODUCING & REFINING — IN THE EARTH

NEW ORE LEDGE SOUGHT IN MINE

Kennedy Gold Pushing Drift to Promising Vein

Ownership of Noted Jamison Property Passes

Angeleno Group to Operate Old Mayflower

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 13. (Exclusive)—Drifting from the 4800-foot level of the Kennedy gold mine at Jackson is proceeding with the objective of reaching a promising ledge disclosed by a crosscut. The vein is said to show a three-foot width of excellent ore. Heavy production continues from the main workings of the property, which is the deepest gold mine in North America.

The historic Jamison gold mine, near Johnsville in Plumas county, has been acquired from the Plumas Eureka Annex Company by R. J. Jefferson of Reno, Nev. Old workings are reported to show substantial deposits of commercial ore, with large veins said to have been exposed below the 400-foot level when water drove out the early-day miners. The new owners plan to rehabilitate the drain tunnel, dewater the lower workings, install a flotation plant, and conduct developments on a large scale.

The Shenandoah Gold Mining Company has been incorporated by C. A. Haynes and William Laura of Los Angeles to operate the Mayflower gold mine in the Canada Hill district, east of Nevada City. The Mayflower is said to contain a series of promising ore bodies, and has produced a substantial amount of good ore.

Connections have been made between the deep workings of the Empire and North Star gold properties at Grass Valley by completion of a rise from the 5300-foot level of the North Star. The rise connects with the 4600-foot workings of the Empire. Both mines are operated by the Empire-Star Company, controlled by British capital, and are credited with a combined production of $60,000,000 to $70,000,000. With exception of ore from leases treated in the old North Star plant, the ore from both mines is crushed in the Empire eighty-stamp mill. An aerial tramline connects the mines.

Increasing activity is reported from the gold districts of Amador county. Heavy production continues by the Argonaut and South Eureka companies in the Jackson-Sutter Creek area. The Lopez Mining Company is producing steadily, and the Haverly Mining Company is erecting a small mill on the old Lavenso property, near Pine Grove. Good ore is said to have recently been uncovered in the Florence, Carrie and other properties at Pine Grove and Pioneer.

Officials of the Nevada Quicksilver Company state that a larger reduction plant will be erected in the spring of 1931 near Gloverdale to treat cinabar ores from the Buckeye and Cloverdale mercury properties. A 100-ton plant is in commission at the Cloverdale, with most of the ore being glory-holed from deposits near the top of the hill. An orebody eighteen feet wide has been developed on the 500 and 600-foot levels of the Cloverdale, and is also exposed in the Buckeye.

VAST NEW OIL RESERVES

Recent Completion in Belridge District Viewed as Holding Great Possibilities

Attracting attention of oil operators throughout the country, the recent completion of the Belridge Oil Company's No. 15 in the extreme northerly portion of the north Belridge district is believed to have opened a vast area for development whenever oil curtailment has developed a marketing situation which will justify extensive new development work.

Within five miles of Lost Hills, where shallow production has been obtained for years, and already in the proven area discovered and developed by the Belridge Oil Company, the new project has opened a new source of light oil supply which is of tremendous importance.

That a unit plan of development may be required for Belridge is already acknowledged by prominent oil men. The acreage there held by the Belridge Oil Company in both the north and south Belridge districts exceeds 31,000 acres, but less than that is believed to be proven. Perhaps 13,000 acres may prove to be productive, some petroleum engineers think.

The Associated Oil Company holds in fee a 160-acre tract that virtually offsets Belridge's No. 15. Associated also has 10,000 acres north of the new deep producer. The project nearest to Belridge's No. 15 is the Richfield Oil Company's No. 1 on Sec. 22, 27-20. Yesterday it was coring ahead in oil sand showings below 5000 feet and is expected to continue to at least 6000 feet before a production test is attempted. Belridge's No. 15, completed with bottom of the hole at 5474 feet, having 563 feet of oil sand to draw from.

Another interesting test is the Alferitz No. 1 being drilled by the Standard Oil Company on a lease at Devil's Den. The latter is in a direct line with North Belridge and is northwest of it about fifteen miles. It is one of the oldest producing areas in the State, having put out oil at depths from 500 to 700 feet in depth for years. Standard's Alferitz No. 1 is its first deep test. Richfield controls nearly three sections there and is awaiting results of Standard's prospecting.

In the Shale Hills district the Rio Cal Petroleum Company has a project drilling below 2500 feet. A few scattered showings of oil sand have been encountered. Shale Hills is due south of Devil's Den and perhaps ten miles westerly from the North Belridge district.

Another test that will be closely watched is the General Petroleum Company's Berry No. 1. This undertaking is located in the South Belridge district and about six miles south of Belridge's No. 15. Several days ago it had a wet cement job and was recemented at 728 feet with bottom of the hole at 733 feet. It will be a deep test.

The Rio Grande Oil Company also has acreage not far from Belridge's No. 15. The company's Garcia No. 1 is cleaning out to bottom below 3600 feet. This project is located on Sec. 18, 28-22, and is a deep test. It has encountered showings of oil sand and gas.

ELECTRICITY HELD AID TO MINES AREA

Lines of Arizona Power Company Now Reach All Central Field Estates

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) Oct. 13. (Exclusive)—Power necessities for the mines of Central Arizona in late years have been met satisfactorily by extension of the lines of the Arizona Power Company, which secures its current from two plants that utilize the fall of Fossil Creek, and from a 10,000-k.w. steam-generating plant at Tapco, north of Clarkdale. In the early days of Yavapai county, mining fuel was secured from the hillsides, as well as lumber for construction and underground necessities. Later fuel oil had to be depended upon. Now the mountain districts are penetrated by electric power lines that serve patrons all the way from Jerome to Phoenix.

The latest electric extension is into the Crown King mining district, from the DeSoto plant, near Mayer. This is of importance especially in gold production, as the district has scores of pyritic veins, some of them developed to a considerable depth and averaging well in the precious metal. These iron sulphurets are readily concentrated, being of rather simple character. Heretofore, in the winter time, these districts have been hard to reach, as the roads at times were impassable on account of snow. Power now can be assured the year around.

OIL SEARCH EXPANDS IN SAN JOAQUIN

Leases on Huge Acreage in County Reported on Official Records

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 12. (Exclusive)—The quest for oil in Northern California is gathering strength. Oil and gas leases on approximately 6000 acres in San Joaquin county, between San Joaquin and Vernalis, by the Union Oil Company were filed last week. Lewis B. O'Neil, Los Angeles capitalist and independent oil operator, has secured leases to 30,000 acres southeast of the Union holdings, in the Corral Hollow district.

Plans are proceeding for extensive drilling of the O'Neil holdings. Several strong corporations, including the Union, have recently acquired leases on several sections in the upper San Joaquin Valley.

The Crocket Drilling Syndicate of Los Angeles is reported to have found oil seepages and gas on its holdings in the Flourney field of Tehama county. The company is drilling its No. 2 well. In the Happy Valley area of Shasta county, the Red Head Oil Company has drilled to 400 feet. Other companies are exploring wildcat territory in Yolo, Sacramento and other counties.

United States Copper Estate Survey on Way

MORENCI (Ariz.) Oct. 12. (Exclusive)—An expert examination is being made of the property of the United States Copper Company, recently taken over by the M. A. Hanna Company of Cleveland, O.

It is stated that R. J. Ryan of Superior has been awarded a diamond drilling contract, following investigations made by Mark C. Lake of Duluth, Minn., Orrin P. Peterson of Los Angeles and Ira B. Joraloman of San Francisco, mining engineers. The option, taken from Mark C. Lake, is said to have set a purchase price of $300,000.

It is told that 1,000,000 tons of ore have been blocked out in the Leszynsky group, one of three, aggregating, sixty-three claims, or 1260 acres. The property is on the east side of Chase Creek in Metcalf Canyon. There is report that the ore in sight samples an average of 2.44 per cent copper and that smelter returns ran 2.69 per cent for 28,000 tons shipped.

ROSETTA MINING TO SINK SHAFT DEEPER

RENO (Nev.) Oct. 12. (Exclusive) The management of the reorganized Rosetta Mining Company is reported to be preparing to sink its main shaft to greater depth to further develop the showings of free milling gold ore that have been opened by three shafts and considerable drifting on the vein. The Rosetta property is located in a strongly mineralized zone near the Comstock district at Virginia City.

New Tideland Completion at Elwood Near

The Pacific Western Oil Company's Tideland Permit No. 92-6 is expected to be the next completion in the Elwood oil field. It is standing cemented at 3199 feet with bottom of the hole at 3475 feet and is prepared for swabbing in a day or two.

Pacific Western has brought in five producers on Tideland Permit No. 92, all of which have been beaned down to permit new wells to be brought in without endangering the curtailment program at Elwood.

United Verde to Explore Claims

MIAMI (Ariz.) Oct. 13. (Exclusive)—Diamond drilling has been started in Pinto Creek district by the Continental Drilling Company of Los Angeles on a tract of over 100 claims optioned by the United Verde Copper Company of Jerome.

The first hole is being sunk a mile north of Summit camp on the Superior highway. There is belief that the area contains immense deposits of low-grade copper ore in schist, and hope is expressed that there will be outlined productive areas as large and as rich as in Miami.

HUGE OIL ROYALTIES SUIT FILED IN TEXAS

McCAMEY (Tex.) Oct. 13. (Exclusive)—Suit has been filed in the Federal District Court by R. B. Whiteside against Ira G. Yates for the recovery of $7,000,000, which Yates is alleged to have received in royalties on oil production from his ranch, which embraces the Yates oil field in Pecos county.

PILGRIM MINE RESUMES WORK

New Owner Now Operating Chloride Estate

Gold Cliff Central Bullion Shipped to Mint

Mineral Park Turquoise to Adorn German Club

KINGMAN (Ariz.) Oct. 13. (Exclusive)—E. D. Dudley announces that work has been resumed on the Pilgrim property, near Chloride, following payment of $10,000 on the purchase price to the William O'Dea estate. There is explanation that details of finance have caused idleness at the mine, from which was report, months ago, of striking "picture rock" of amazing richness.

There has been a clean-up at the Tin Cup mill of the Gold Cliff Central mine, with shipment to the mint of a bullion bar from over five pounds af amalgam. Ore at the bottom of the Orphan shaft is reported to have run $60 in gold. The vein matter is said to have hardened and assumed all evidences of permanence.

In the Secret Pass section, Walter Harrison reports opening a good-sized vein of $15 gold ore in claims under development.

Near Mineral Park, a German company, locally represented by Guy Atlee, is shipping abroad large quantities of turquoise and turquoise matrix, the latter used in interior decoration. It is told that the material is being inset and polished on the walls of a German clubhouse, securing a beautiful artistic effect. This county has a number of turquoise-bearing areas, from which shipments have been made for many years, largely to the Tiffany interests of New York City.

FORMATION OF NEW OIL UNIT NOTED

Tideland Company, Ltd., Plans for Operation in Venice District

With the organization of the Tideland Oil Company, Ltd., announcement is made of its entrance into the Venice field.

William Walker, associated with the General Petroleum Corporation for seventeen years, and who retired as vice-president and director of General in 1927, has been elected president of Tideland. Officers of the company include Capt. Frederick Libby, vice-president and general manager; Robert Burhans, Jr., secretary and treasurer; W. T. Bill, director. W. C. Resser, Charles Henebry and Milton A. Krug complete the board, according to the announcement.

The Tideland Oil Company subleased eleven lots originally leased at Venice by the Pacific Western Oil Company. These holdings offset acreage belonging to Union, Ohio, Barnsdall-Cypress combination, Superior, George F. Getty, Inc., and several other operators who are developing the shallow oil sand in the southwesterly portion of the field. Tideland's No. 1 at Venice is a direct offset to the Superior Oil Company's Moses No. 1, a steady producer. It is making progress with the drill below 2500 feet and is expected to test upper oil sand.

Operations on Arizona Placer Area Under Way

CLIFTON (Ariz.) Oct. 13. (Exclusive)—The largest placer operations ever known in the Southwest are indicated in activities of the Howard Kenyon Dredging Company of Houston, Tex., which has brought in a fifty-five-foot boom one-yard drag-line dredge, with capacity for handling 1500 tons of gravel a day.

The company has secured a large acreage of placer ground from a point a few miles south of Clifton to the mouth of the San Francisco River, and has available millions of yards of gravel along the river, ground that samples well in placer gold.

The company is one that has operated dredges on placer deposits in Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico and Mexico. It is a closed concern with only four stockholders and is reported financially able to make demonstration concerning the value of the local deposits. A camp has been established near the old Morenci Southern railroad bridge across the river.

Placer mining has been prosecuted intermittently in this district ever since the earliest pioneer times, when prospectors from Silver City invaded what then was an Apache-infested wilderness. The present effort, however, is the first ever made on any large scale.

RIVAL OF HOBBS FIELD LOOMING

New Eunice District on South Attracts Attention

Performance of Tidal Oil's Project Interests

Output More Than Doubled After Nitro Shots

ARTESIA (N. M.) Oct. 13. (Exclusive)—The Eunice district south of the Hobbs field has divided interest with Hobbs since the recent performance of the Coleman No. 1 of the Tidal Oil Company at the southwest corner of the northeast quarter of Sec. 17, 21-36. After doubling its initial production from the first shot the Coleman was shot a second time between 3901 and 3965 feet and responded with 1215 barrels in twenty-four hours.

This producer was originally drilled to 4147 feet, but plugged back after encountering sulphur water. Prior to the second shot the well had averaged around 500 barrels daily. The Coleman No. 1 is a half-mile northeast of the A. E. Meyer well of the Continental Oil Company, which discovered the Eunice area. The State No. 1 of the Getty Oil Company on Sec. 19, 21-36, in this area has moved a standard rig back to the location and is making swabbing tests. On a prior test the well made 333 barrels in twelve hours.

A number of wells have been completed in the Hobbs field awaiting proration tests. Two wells feature developments in this area so far. One, the Continental Oil Company, State No. 3-A, 2310 feet from the south line and 1650 feet from the west line, Sec. 29, 18-38, flowed 920 barrels in one hour through an open casing, on a proration test, according to field information. The Continental well is an offset to two small producers. The McKinley No. 2 of the Texas Company, 1980 feet from the south line and 660 feet from the east line, Sec. 5, 19-38, was given a potential rating of 9400 barrels from a depth of 4175 feet. The State No. 3 of the Ohio Oil Company in Sec. 30, 18-38, third well to be completed and tested, was given a company rating of 7632 barrels after flowing for one hour open.

The Shell Petroleum Corporation has started operations at its casinghead gasoline plant northwest of Hobbs, and is running about one-third of the capacity. The plant is using 7,000,000 to 8,000,000 feet of gas daily and turning out about 11,000 gallons of gasoline daily. The new $750,000 plant of the Phillips Petroleum Company, west of Hobbs, expects to start operations about the 20th inst.

FIVE WELLS STARTED IN KERN FIELD

Sunset, River Front and Midway One Each; Round Mountain Two

BAKERSFIELD, Oct. 12. (Exclusive)—During the past week in Kern county five wells were spudded in—two in the Round Mountain field and one each in the Midway, Sunset and Kern River areas.

The Shell Oil Company has begun two new holes in the Round Mountain field—Freeman No. 9 on Section 20, 28-29, and Jewett No. 14 on Sec. 29, 28-29.

The Standard Oil Company spudded in No. 112 on Sec. 33, 31-24, in the Midway and No. 118 on Sec. 31, 12-23, in the Sunset field.

The California Star Oil Company has a drilling crew at work on its No. 2-40 well on Sec. 22, 28-27, in the Kern River field.

Deepening jobs numbered four and all belong to the Standard Oil Company. The wells are No. 2, No. 87 and No. 88, on Sec. 36, and 35, 30-24, respectively, in the Elk Hills field and No. 13 on Sec. 25, 31-23, in the Midway.

The North American Oil Consolidated reports a successful water shut-off in its No. 6 well on Sec. 8, 11-23, at Maricopa Flat.

Three abandonments were reported for Kern county as follows: Standard Oil Company's No. 111 on Sec. 1, 32-23, in the Midway; Belridge Oil Company's No. 325 on Sec. 33, 28-21, in the Belridge field and Shell Oil Company's Jewett No. 3 on Sec. 29, 28-29, in the Round Mountain area.

New Texas Gas Supply Opened

RIO GRANDE CITY (Tex.) Oct. 13. (Exclusive)—Opening of a new natural gas supply in Starr county, situated adjacent to the pipe lines of the United Gas Company that run to Monterrey, Mex., and to Houston and other cities of Texas, has been accomplished by the completion of the discovery well of Las Alamo Oil and Gas Company, located eight miles north of here.

NEW PRODUCER AT BIG LAKE

Fourth Deep Project of Texas Operator Comes in With 1187 Barrels Daily Output

AUSTIN (Tex.) Oct. 13. (Exclusive)—Coming in from a depth of 3697 feet, with an initial production of 1187 barrels daily, the fourth and latest deep test of the Big Lake Oil Company in the Big Lake field surpassed in primary flow all of the other three wells that are producing from the deep horizon.

The gas production of the new well gauged 32,610,000 cubic feet daily, and its unrestricted escapement adds to the conservation problem in that field with which the Railroad Commission was already confronted. This latest producer of the Big Lake Oil Company originally blew in on November 8, 1929, from a depth of 3220 feet. It produced small daily quantities of oil from that depth until about a month and a half ago when the work of deepening it was started.

Besides the four wells of the Big Lake Oil Company which are producing below the 3000-foot stratum, the Texon Oil and Land Company (Continental) has three wells in the field which are below that mark. All seven of these wells are showing gradual increases of production. The discovery well which was brought in on December 1, 1928, by the Texon Oil and Land Company showed a considerable drop about two months ago after attaining an apex on May 19, 1930, of 2926 barrels in twenty-four hours. This well, however, is again on the upgrade and is now producing at the average rate of approximately 2775 barrels daily from a depth of 3525 feet.

The record depth of the third deep test of the Big Lake Oil Company in this field is 3923 feet, and from that level the well is flowing an average of 186 barrels daily. It is the deepest producing oil well in the world. The present daily average of the seven deepest oil wells of the oil industry is approximately 12,000 barrels, and their total average gas flow daily is more than 150,000,000 cubic feet. All of the deep oil is around 56.3 degrees gravity.

All of the producing deep wells are spaced one-half to one mile apart and the proved field covers an area of several square miles.

Fencing of Mine District Halted

TUCSON (Ariz.) Oct. 12. (Exclusive)—An item of interest to mine owners is in determination of a Federal Court suit that fencing must be removed when it constitutes "an interference to forest areas."

The case at issue is one in which the Arizona Imperial Company was sought to be enjoined from maintaining fences around certain mining claims in the Huachuca Mountains. Parts of the defendant's fencing, relating directly to its mining claims, will be permitted to stand.

FIGHT FOR OIL TRACT WARMS UP

Second Suit Involving Ownership of Kettleman Hills Acreage Filed

FRESNO, Oct. 13. (Exclusive)—With one suit already on file attacking the title of M. D. Huffman and Mrs. Idyll Hardie to the quarter-section of the Kettleman Hills oil field on which the Superior Oil Company's Huffman No. 1 well is located, another similar action is being prepared here.

The first attack on the title is that of F. R. Kellogg, Elmer Wegley and G. J. Symington, directors of the British-California Oil Company, former owners of the property.

The second action, which now is in course of preparation, is that of J. Foster Kell, former president of the British-California Company. Kell and W. A. Shearer, a former director of the company, are also named as defendants in the actions filed by the other directors.

The complaint states that the British-California Company, which was formed June 3, 1914, owned the quarter-section, which was later conveyed to Kell for "no consideration," the deeds having been a trust.

The company lost its charter in 1915 for failing to pay its franchise tax and Huffman purchased the property at a tax sale in June, 1920, subsequently deeding a half interest to Mrs. Hardie.

When it was first rumored recently that Huffman's title to the land was to be attacked Tax Collector Baker issued an amended tax title as a precautionary measure.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE A GOOD UTILITY

No. 1 of a series of advertisements

SALT WITHOUT SAVOR

INVESTORS have made a fetish of assets—as though assets in and of themselves were a guarantee of safety.

Very little thought will demonstrate that assets without earnings are of no value. A building without tenants—a farm without crops—a railroad without passengers—a power plant without customers—all may represent huge expenditures of money. But without earnings they are utterly worthless and of no value—they are as salt which has lost its savor.

Assets are valuable only as they are tangible evidence of facilities to produce earnings—a building to hold occupants, a farm to raise crops, a railroad to carry passengers, a plant to produce power.

But present earnings alone are not sufficient—there must be assurance of continued earnings—earnings whose future is assured by growth, by continued need, by increasing service.

On the basis of this fundamental principle, what may ordinarily be regarded as less secure obligations of one industry or business, may be far more secure than those of another industry customarily regarded as of prime safety.

The safety of first mortgages, secured bonds, debenture bonds, or obligations of any kind therefore is measured only by their claim upon the continued earnings of the particular business concerned.

Thorough students of investments now generally agree that the public utility industry offers a more stable and secure field for long time investment than practically any other major field, including securities of those industries in which savings banks, insurance companies and other institutional investors now make large commitments from force of habit or favorable legal status.

Accordingly, we have applied a series of basic criteria, such as are used by scrutinizing investors, banks and institutions, in the evaluation of the debenture bonds of leading public utility companies. These criteria will be discussed in a series of advertisements.

Persons desiring immediately the complete set of 10 charts with the letter showing how to weigh the worth of such public utility bonds, may obtain them by writing to

BY WALDO DRAKE

Announcement of the availability to mariners, and others interested, of publications on twenty phases of its work is made by the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey in a circular in which the survey explains its desire to extend its services to all channels where they may prove useful. Expedition of the work and problems of mariners, aviators and shipping executives will be gained by use of the new publications.

The Coast and Geodetic Survey therefore offers to notify all interested parties who will forward their addresses to the director, at Washington, when new, or new editions of nautical charts, airway maps or publications are issued by the bureau. No charge is made for the service.

Hydrography, publications on the subject relating to new methods and apparatus used in hydrographic surveying. (2.) Coast pilot, supplies to the navigator detailed information relative to coasts and harbors, port information and sailing directions. (3.) Currents, there being three tables issued, viz: (a) annual charts for the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, (b) harbor chart tables, (c) general current publications. (4.) The Navy, Merritt, Chapman Scott and the Wilmington Transportation Company are all aiding the local Sea Scouts in obtaining a fifty-foot motor sailer which will arrive at the port Wednesday morning aboard the navy transport Chaumont, from the Mare Island navy yard.

ORPHANS OF SLAYER GET INSURANCE

Policies in Murder and Suicide Case Settled for Total of $12,000

AMARILLO (Tex.) Oct. 12. (AP)—The scheming of A. D. Payne, Amarillo attorney who caused the death of his wife by a dynamite blast, then killed himself with an explosive while in the jail here, came to at least partial fulfillment today when his children were paid $12,000 by the Lincoln National Insurance Company.

Payne, in a written confession before his death, said he planned his wife's death and his own in order that their children might have the money from their insurance policies.

The payment today was in settlement on the two policies, $10,000 on Payne's life and $5000 on his wife's. The company paid $9000 on the larger policy and $3000 on the smaller one.

Two other policies for $5000 each with the American National Insurance Company have not yet been adjusted. All of the policies carried double indemnity.

PHYSICIANS BAFFLED BY STRANGE ILL

Ventura Woman's Malady Mystery to Medical Men of Denver Hospital

DENVER, Oct. 12. (AP)—The mysterious illness of Mrs. Wilbur Allen of Ventura, Cal., who is in a serious condition at Mercy Hospital, continued to baffle medical men here tonight after nearly two weeks of attempts to diagnose her ailment.

The woman came to Denver from California two weeks ago to consult her brother-in-law, Dr. P. C. Allen. After a preliminary examination Dr. Allen called ten other physicians for consultation. For many days they have been seeking to determine the source of Mrs. Allen's strange afflictions.

Fevers of more than 106 deg. wrack the woman's body, alternating with severe chills, physicians reported. Her high fever, in their opinion, indicates some sort of infection, but laboratory tests have failed to disclose any.

OIL-SHALE VALUATION DECLARED "FANTASTIC"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. (Exclusive)—Branding Ralph S. Kelley's $40,000,000,000 estimate of the value of Colorado oil shale lands as "a fantastic dream," Dr. George Otis Smith, director of the Geological Survey, declared in a statement that some of the land has a grazing value, but that "its present worth for oil-extraction purposes is nil." The statement was prompted by inferences in Kelley's published attacks on the Interior Department's oil-shale policy that the lands have been found of vast value by the Geological Survey.

Snowy Baker's Talks Engage Interest of Public

Juvenile Problems Special Object of Speaker

BY JOHN S. DAGETT

"Sportsmanship," a theme handled by "Snowy" Baker each Tuesday for several weeks on the world-wide noontime period, has proved so popular with the radio audience that it is to become a permanent feature of the Monday Forum.

SNOWY BAKER

"We want more sportsmanship, it is the greatest thing in life," writes one listener-in. "My wife, my kids and I have already learned from Mr. Baker that his doctrines apply to everything in our home from the time we get up until we retire. Bill, 3 years of age, went to bed last night on time and without a wrangle because I told him that 'Snowy' would consider him a poor sport if he didn't. My wife helped me wash the automobile last Sunday—first time in eight years—and I am learning miniature golf."

Particular attention is to be paid by Mr. Baker to juvenile problems in their relationship to sportsmanship. Parents are invited to write in questions and observations.

"I believe the instilling of sportsmanship in the minds and hearts of our young people is the strongest foundation for American citizenship," said Mr. Baker. "People of all nations need careful study of sportsmanship, particularly at this time. The art is not confined to the track, gridiron and other sports but applies equally to all phases of life."

PLATICAS DE LOS LUNES

POR EL PROFESOR L. GUERRERO
Encargado de la Sección Española de Este Diario

Me escribe de Long Beach una estimable lectora, que, si no me equivoco, es la distinguida profesora con quien ya he tenido el gusto de estudiar y discutir algunos puntos de construcción castellana, para hacerme las consultas siguientes:

"Aunque la mayoría de las gramáticas", dice mi lectora, "asientan que el adjetivo interrogativo 'qué' significa 'what', y que 'cuál' significa 'which' (of a number in mind), me encuentro muy frecuentemente a 'qué' usado en casos que parecerían pedir 'cuál'; por ejemplo, en la frase '¿qué hora es?', en la que nuestro ánimo es preguntar cuál de las veinticuatro horas del día señala el reloj. '¿Qué día es?, o sea, '¿cuál de los siete días de la semana es hoy?'

"Cual de las dos interrogaciones es correcta?", sigue diciendo mi lectora, "o ¿lo son ambas?"

Una señora fue al mercado a comprar carne. Había allí carne de vaca, carne de puerco, carne de ternera, etc. La señora compró carne de vaca. ¿Cómo hay que preguntar?: ¿Qué carne compró? o ¿Cuál carne compró?

Había en la mesa naranjas, manzanas y peras. Juan escogió una manzana. ¿Cómo preguntamos?: ¿Qué fruta escogió Juan? o ¿Cuál fruta escogió Juan?

Termina mi lectora su carta preguntándome si está correctamente usado el verbo "pensar" en la siguiente oración: "Juan compró muchas cosas sin pensar en el precio".

Todas las frases que cita mi lectora son correctas, si bien es más común construir la pregunta con "qué": "¿Qué carne compró?", "¿Qué fruta escogió?", que con "cuál". La mente castellana, con todo, aprecia cierta diferencia entre la pregunta con "qué" y la pregunta con "cuál". El que dice "¿cuál fruta escogió Juan?" tiene presentes a la mente las diferentes frutas, en número limitado, de entre las que Juan hubo de elegir. El que dice "¿qué fruta escogió Juan?" puede referirse a número limitado y presente a su mente de frutas, a numerosas variedades de las que ni conocimiento tenga. La diferencia de matices, sin embargo, es demasiado sutil para que la aprecie bien el que no tiene por lengua nativa el español, y, por lo tanto, puede decirse grosso modo que las dos construcciones son equivalentes.

La expresión "sin pensar en el precio" es correcta. Puede usted también decir "sin reparar en el precio" o "sin preocuparse por el precio".

Respecto al uso de "qué" en las frases "¿qué hora es?" y "¿qué día es?", se explica porque "qué" tiene casi todos los usos de "cuál", y porque va seguido inmediatamente del nombre. También en inglés se usa "what" en ambos casos. Se usaría "cuál" si el nombre estuviera en plural y precedido de la preposición "de" con artículo: "¿Cuál de los días de la semana es hoy?"; "¿Cuál de las frutas del mercado escogió Pedro?", etc.

Veremos ahora lo que nos dicen algunos tratadistas sobre los usos de los adjetivos "qué" y "cuál" en las oraciones interrogativas. "Qué", nos dice la Gramática de la Academia Española, puede ser substantivo y adjetivo. Como substantivo, pregunta siempre por cosas y equivale, por lo tanto, a "¿qué cosa?" Puede ser sujeto, predicado y complemento; v. gr.: "¿qué sucede?"; "¿qué es Geografía?" "¿qué haré?"; "¿a qué vienes?"; "¿en qué fundas tu opinión?" Contestan a este interrogativo el indefinido "algo", o los demostrativos neutros "esto", "eso", "aquello", o el negativo de cosa "nada".

Como adjetivo, pregunta "qué" por una cualidad o condición del substantivo, que puede ser sujeto, predicado o complemento; v. g.: "¿qué gente ha venido?"; "¿qué libro es ése?"; "¿qué rostro hizo?"; "¿en qué opinión te fundas?"; "¿con qué ojos me miras?" La contestación en este caso es un adjetivo, predicado o atributo del substantivo a que se refiere el "qué"; v. gr.: "gente buena"; "el Quijote"; es decir, "este libro es el Quijote".

"¿Cuál" puede, como "qué", emplearse como adjetivo y como substantivo. Como adjetivo pregunta por la cualidad o estado de personas o cosas y se refiere como predicado, ya al sujeto mediante un verbo copulativo, ya al objeto directo; v. gr.: "Si el criado es tan discreto, ¿cuál debe ser el amo?" ("Quijote", II, 66); "¿Cuáles estarán las mismas tinieblas?" (Granada, "Símbolo", I, 4). Refiérese al objeto en oraciones, que más que interrogativas son exclamativas; v. gr.: "¿Salomón no fue discreto? — ¡No lo fue el sabio que mas nombran? ¡Cuál le pusieron el alma — Las muchachas de Sidonia!" (Quevedo, "Musa", 6).

Puede también referirse a un substantivo que le precede o le sigue, sin construirse directamente con él; v. gr.: "Hallo una falta, marqués, — Que no negaréis. — ¿Cuál es?" (Alarcón, "El examen de maridos", II, 5); "Cuál ocupará más papel, una obra en verso o una en prosa?" (T. Iriarte, "Donde las dan las toman").

A veces deja "cuál" de preguntar por la cualidad y lo hace por el nombre, situación u otras circunstancias puramente externas de las personas o de las cosas, construyéndose, ya como atributo junto al nombre, ya como predicado. La primera construcción se usa más en verso que en prosa; v. gr.: "¿Con cuáles ojos — Verás tu amante con ajeno dueño?" (Jáuregui, "Aminta", I); "¿Cuál hombre, — Cuál héroe a ensalzar va tu lira de oro?" (J. Burgos, "Traducción de Horacio, Odas", I, 12); "Cuál fue la mano que así os plantó?" (Quintana, "A Cienfuegos", Poesía).

Planes, Radio, Lines of Outposts, Antiaircraft Nests and Searchlights to Play Roles

AERIAL ATTACK AWAITED TODAY

How City Would Fare in War to Be Tested

Bombers Will Try to "Ruin" Airport in Burbank

Planes, Guns and Lights to Be Used in Defense

How Los Angeles would fare if attacked from the air by hostile forces will be determined in part today and tonight when three giant United States Army bombers and six pursuit planes—simulating Red enemy ships—attempt to bomb the district with their definite objective as United Airport, Burbank.

The nine planes, attached to the Seventh Bombardment Group, Rockwell Field, San Diego, are scheduled to swoop down on the district between 6:30 and 11:30 a.m. on the first "attack" as the opening maneuver in the war practice problem that will be concluded next Wednesday.

Nearly 400 men and officers who comprise the defending Blue forces—including 250 from the Sixty-third Regiment, Antiaircraft, Fort MacArthur, San Pedro—have laid a net of observation and communication outposts, and established five "nests" of aircraft detectors, antiaircraft guns, machine guns and 8,000,000,000-candle-power searchlights.

SHIPS TO AID DEFENSE

Besides the Blue ground forces six of the fastest Army pursuit planes—Boeing P-12 single seaters, also attached to the Seventh Bombardment Group — have been detailed to aid in the defense and will go aloft to aid in repulsing the invading Reds.

Lieut.-Col. Willis G. Peace, commanding officer during the three-day maneuvers, in outlining today's program, pointed out that the local "battle" will mark the third time in the history of the Coast Artillery that aircraft will have been used to supplement the ground forces.

The "Red" planes will have to run the gauntlet of outposts established in two bands between here and San Diego and the armed "nests" surrounding the airport—besides fighting off the defending "blue" planes—before they can theoretically bomb the district successfully.

WARNINGS TO BE FLASHED

The outposts are equipped with radio and telephone communication systems and will flash a warning as soon as the "Reds" are spotted on their way northward from San Diego. The bands extend inland from Oceanside to Ramona and from Newport Beach inland to Riverside.

When the flash reaches the airport base the "Blue" ships will take to the air to engage the "invaders." Through the recently perfected radio communication system between ground and planes Lieut. E. C. Batten will direct the ships from the ground through Lieut. D. D. Graves, who will fly the leading plane in the squad of six fighters.

The "Blues" will go out to meet the "Reds" and engage in mimic air combat, but regardless of the theoretical outcome the "Reds" will continue to the airport to give the antiaircraft batteries a chance to practice a repulse.

NO ACTUAL FIRING

There will be no actual firing, but accurate check will be kept on the mimic battle and the directing officers will be able to tell whether the "attack" would have been successful had it been made in war time.

The "Reds" will be allowed to come northward any time during the specified hours, but must come over a course that will force them to fly above the outposts.

After this morning's "attack" they will return to San Diego and return any time between 1 and 6 p.m. for a second attempt.

Tonight they will be allowed to attack a third time between 7 and 11 o'clock. At the night repulse the ground forces will depend on their five giant searchlights—each capable of sending a dazzling finger of light eight miles into the air—to pick the "Reds" out of the darkness so gunners can train their antiaircraft pieces on them.

The night "engagement" should

by Harry Carr

IF Al Capone comes to Los Angeles, his theme song will be: "I Walked Right In and Turned Around and Walked Right Out Again."

GANGSTER INVASION

Chicago has become, for the moment, a hot spot for gangsters. They think that Southern California will be a pleasant and profitable place to spend the winter and they are headed this way in hordes. They may be surprised.

PROSPERITY

The lean period of starvation is now over and we can eat again. I tell myself that, from this point on, I will be so wise and hard-boiled that nobody could sell me the City Hall for a dollar without throwing in the Federal Building. But I know from painful experience that, within two years, some highbinder will be handing me the same old wheeze—about the people who are on the way out to buy the lot at which I am looking and I had better hurry. And I will, as ever, be grateful when he sells me a "business" lot on the side of a rock mountain so far from Los Angeles that a radio message would have to be spliced to reach halfway.

Which doesn't alter the fact that it is possible to buy real estate right now and clean up a young fortune—if you have good sense.

STEER 'EM THIS WAY

This Mexican-American road conference to be held this week in Los Angeles is of importance beyond estimation. The greatest tourist trip in the world—one by far more fascinating than Europe—is in old Mexico. In addition to all other considerations it behooves Los Angeles to see to it that we are hooked on to that route.

WHAT PRICE VIRTUE

Vincent Kerens of St. Louis and Dallas is to receive $1,900,000 from his uncle's will as a reward for being good. Oh, how good I could be for $1,900,000! Little Rollo of the Sunday-school stories would be a tough guy by comparison.

EMBARRASSING

I heard of a case like this recently which I commend to Harold Lloyd for a comedy. A young fellow in New York was to receive a large fortune if he behaved himself until he was 21 years of age. He got involved in a partnership; his partner lit out leaving him liable for a crushing debt. If he got the money, it would be grabbed by the creditors. His only defense was to be so tough that the executor could not pay him the money. As he was engaged to a young lady who sang in the Methodist church choir, his problem became complicated. He had to be good when the young charmer was around, but a demon in the sight of the executor.

WHO IS RED?

The tempest continues to rage in the teapot over the case of Sergei Eisenstein, the Russian director who is making pictures in Hollywood. It has come before the Congressional committee investigating Red activities in America.

It would seem, on the face of it, as though Paramount might have found other directors without bringing over from Russia one who had made propaganda pictures for the Russian government.

Accident at Beach Fatal; Octogenarian May Die of Injuries in Another Crash

Injuries received when his motorcycle collided with an automobile on Roosevelt Highway near Castle Rock proved fatal to Harold W. Bell of 1348 Seventh street, Santa Monica, yesterday. He died at the Santa Monica Hospital. The body was removed to the Kirkelie, Bernard & Peek undertaking establishment.

The accident occurred late Saturday night. The automobile, according to West Los Angeles police, was driven by J. M. Jordon, Jr., of 2229 Walnut street. He was not hurt.

Walking against the side of an automobile, according to police, Rosalino Maldonado, 80 years of age, of 3157 Malibu street, Pomona, was probably fatally injured yesterday afternoon. The accident occurred at Fifth and Los Angeles streets.

Maldonado was taken to the Georgia-street Receiving Hospital, where police surgeons stated his skull was fractured. The automobile was driven by Mrs. Laura Snape of 1650 North Marengo street, Pasadena, police stated.

After wrecking his automobile in a collision with a parked machine at Custer street and Sunset Boulevard, Kenneth C. Randall, 29, an accountant, of 40 North Hemlock street, Ventura, was arrested by Officers Toledo and Baker on suspicion of driving while intoxicated early yesterday morning.

Lawrence Burnham, 23, of 415 North New Hampshire avenue, a passenger in Randall's car, was held on a charge of being drunk in an automobile and for violation of the Wright Act. The officers reported finding a quart bottle of liquor in the machine.

Republican county committees throughout Southern California will conduct campaigns for legislative candidates in those counties, while the State committee will direct the drive for the State and Congressional nominees, it was stated by M. B. Silberberg, Southern California campaign director.

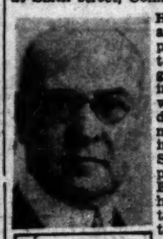
SOD-TURNING FOR TEMPLE NEXT MONTH

Congregational Church Edifice Will be Started Under Dr. Patton

Specifications for the new First Congregational Church to be erected at Sixth street, Commonwealth and Hoover avenues, are being prepared by architects, and ground-breaking ceremonies will be conducted next month, according to Dr. Carl S. Patton, the pastor. Charles E. Richards will have charge of the construction.



DR. CARL S. PATTON

The new temple, which, with furnishings, will be built on a lot valued at about $300,000, which was donated by Mrs. Clara Shatto. The auditorium will have a seating capacity of 1600, the present membership of the church. Sunday-school rooms will accommodate 800 persons.

The church will be of Gothic architecture with a tower rising over the "crossing," the point at which the transepts join the nave. The church will face on Commonwealth avenue.

First Congregational Church is one of the oldest and most famous churches in Southern California and has been served by many noted pulpiteers. Dr. Patton was pastor for nine years, beginning in 1917, and recently was recalled to the pastorate from his professorship at Chicago Theological Seminary. The First Church choir (A Cappella Choir,) directed by John Smallman, is one of the most famous musical organizations in the United States.

MRS. GIBSON MEMORIALIZED

Representatives of Many Social Groups Honor Memory of Notable Woman

Friends and associates of the late Mrs. Frank A. Gibson, civic worker and club woman, who died here a month ago, gathered at the Figueroa-street Playhouse yesterday afternoon to honor the memory of a woman whose life they declared had been devoted to public interest. Representatives of a score of organizations were present and speakers paid tribute to her work in many phases of California public life.

The memorial service was arranged by the Friday Morning Club and Florence M. Kreider, representing that organization, presided. Gov. Young was represented by Lieut.-Gov. Carnahan, who read a tribute to Mrs. Gibson, from the State executive.

The platform was beautifully decorated with flowers and all the speakers were friends who had associated with Mrs. Gibson during her lifetime.

WORLD-MINDED

Mrs. Susan M. Dorsey, former head of the Los Angeles schools, declared that Mrs. Gibson was a world-minded woman and that she eschewed the small things of the day for that which was international. She told of her efforts, especially in the field of education, and said that she was always interested in advancing the cause of knowledge.

Mrs. Seward A. Simons told of her work in the cause of woman's suffrage and the part she took in the formation of the League of Women Voters.

"The will to do was one of her characteristics—that and her loyalty and love," Mrs. Simons said.

DEVOTION TO SON

Coming from San Francisco to be present at the service, Chester A. Rowell declared that through her loves she encircled the world. He told of her devotion to her noted son, Hugh Gibson, world famous as a diplomat. He spoke of her political activity as well.

Marshall Stimson said that the part she had played in the two eras of Los Angeles would be a factor in the larger and metropolitan age of this city and State. He declared that a great characteristic was her ability to realize her ideals.

Mrs. Joseph P. Sartori, former president of the Friday Morning Club, spoke of her work among the women's clubs of the city and of her tremendous influence there.

Organizations represented besides the University of California at Los Angeles, University of Southern California, Pomona and Occidental colleges, included the League of Nations Association, Council on

"President's Own" to Be at Coliseum 26th Inst.; Four Soloists Named

The United States Marine Band, also known as "the President's Own," will give a concert on the afternoon of the 26th inst., at the Coliseum, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. Mabel V. Socha, president of the City Park Board.

By special permission of President Hoover the band is making a limited concert tour and the local Park Board sent a plea to Washington for Los Angeles to be included in the itinerary. Capt. Taylor Branson, director of the band, will accompany it and wield the baton at the concert here.

Among the soloists will be Arthur Whitcomb, John P. White, Wilbur D. Kieffer and Robert Clark. On the program will be some compositions which it was once thought could be effectively played only by symphony orchestras, but whose rendition by the Marine Band has served to give it the reputation it now enjoys.

NEW TUNNEL PROJECT TO RECEIVE AID

Supervisor Graves Thinks Griffith Park Plan Can Be Extended Outside Help

The opinion that the Griffith Park tunnel project can be accomplished without expense to property owners in the district was expressed yesterday by Chairman Graves of the Board of Supervisors. He said that the project undoubtedly will receive both State and county aid.

The tunnel would provide a new arterial link between the San Fernando Valley and Hollywood and downtown Los Angeles. The two routes now in use are Cahuenga Boulevard and Riverside Drive, which are approximately five miles apart.

The proposed tunnel would be through the Griffith Park hills, midway between Cahuenga Boulevard and Riverside Drive, connecting Bronson avenue, Canyon Drive and Van Ness avenue in Hollywood with Riverside Drive, Main street, Western avenue, Buena Vista avenue and the proposed Whitnall highway in San Fernando Road.

According to plans the tunnel would consist of two parallel bores, each 3580 feet in length with a twenty-foot roadway and a pedestrian sidewalk.

Ordinarily such a project would be accomplished by the formation of a special improvement district.

Austin, president; Abe Richman, first vice-president; Sam Rosenthal, second vice-president; Larry Doyle, secretary, and Rosalind Goodrich Bates, treasurer.

CAMPBELLS ARE COMING HERE TO SEEK LOST KIN

Statistical records of Los Angeles county are being gone over with minute care for trace of two brothers, Edward and William Campbell, lost heirs to a $300,000 estate now being administered in New York. The two men left their native city in the latter part of 1888 for the west coast and their sisters have heard from them only once, in 1898, in an indirect way. It is believed they were in Los Angeles at one time.

In the settlement of the estate a surrogate of New York has requested the known heirs to establish, if possible, by every means available, whether the two brothers are still alive. As a result the records of every leading city of California are being combed by eastern operatives.

According to the records in the case, Edward and William Campbell lived at 402 East Eighteenth street, New York City, in 1888. Both were members of the Catholic church. Edward followed the trade of a carpenter and William that of a plumber. They left New York for Baltimore but returned six months later and then left for the west coast.

Two uncles of the Campbell brothers, Bernard and Patrick Campbell, had migrated to the Coast before them and had "struck it rich" in gold-mining properties. Interested in these mines was another brother of Edward and William whose name was Daniel J. Campbell.

In 1898 one of the sisters of the lost heirs heard indirectly from Edward, through her uncle, who informed her that he had joined the Red Cross and had seen service in the Spanish-American War. There was no mention of William. Since that time no word has been received from them.

The mines of the uncles of the Campbell boys were located in Nevada county, California. Both the uncles now are dead and their relatives scattered.

No time or money will be spared in the search for the two lost heirs, according to the operatives investigating the case.

JULIAN FINALE SCHEDULED

Last Scandal Case Expected to Be Dismissed in Court Tomorrow by Judge Crawford

Closing a three-year maelstrom of investigation and prosecution which had as its vortex the notorious Julian Petroleum Corporation overissue collapse in 1927, the last of the Julian cases is scheduled to come up before Superior Judge Crawford tomorrow and in all probability a dismissal will follow—for the major witnesses in the case, S. C. Lewis, former president of the firm, and Jacob Berman, once Lewis's right-hand man, will not be brought back to testify.

This was the most definite information available yesterday. Dist.-Atty. Fitts declined to discuss the case, stating that the prosecution is completely in the hands of Robert P. Stewart, chief deputy in his office. Stewart was out of town.

The defendants named in the remaining case are Lewis, Berman, I. L. Rouse, E. H. Rosenberg, Adolph Ramish, Alvin Frank, Henry S. Mackaye, Jr., Charles E. Reese and R. M. Reese. Berman and Lewis are now serving terms in McNeill's Island penitentiary for using the mails to defraud.

Rosenberg is serving a term in San Quentin prison for bribery. All of the defendants in the single remaining case are accused of conspiring to overissue the stock of the Julian Petroleum Corporation which collapsed causing a loss of millions of dollars to thousands of stockholders.

As a direct result of the debacle, Asa Keyes, former District Attorney, was convicted of accepting bribes to "lay down" on the original prosecutions. At the same time Rosenberg was convicted of giving a bribe to Keyes.

Later the entire list of original defendants was reindicted by this year's county grand jury. The first group to be tried on charges of conspiracy to commit usury was acquitted in Superior Judge Aggeler's court by an instructed verdict in which the court held that no evidence had been produced to prove the crime, as charged, had been committed.

Meanwhile Berman became a prominent figure in the case by appearing as a prosecution witness before the grand jury and in Superior Court at the trial of two original Julian case jurors who were charged with bribery. Berman, himself, later was prosecuted and convicted of forgery in connection with the forgery of Julian stock certificates and now faces a term in San Quentin prison after serving his sentence in the Federal prison.

PACE OF JUSTICE QUICKENS

Superior Court Appellate Department Reports 961 Cases Handled During Its First Year

Appeals totaling 961 were disposed of by the appellate department of the Superior Court during its first year of operation, according to its first annual report, just filed. The first year ended September 10, last. The total represents 502 decisions affirmed, 244 reversed, and 215 dismissed. These decisions were carried up from the Municipal Court and other inferior courts of the county.

Presiding Judge McLucas, commenting on the fact that there were only 244 reversals in 961 appeals, said it reflects great credit on the ability of the lower-court judges.

There were decisions in 546 criminal matters and in 415 civil. This ratio does not obtain at present, criminal appeals now constituting only one-third of the department's total business. Decisions setting out the law on the more-frequently occuring criminal issues explain the decrease.

The appellate department's first-year record justified the efforts to relieve congested court calendars and speed lagging litigation. Municipal Court cases cannot be appealed beyond the appellate department. This limitation applies to cases which formerly were permitted a hearing and rehearing in the District Court of Appeal and in the Supreme Court, four steps saved. Under present conditions in the District Court of Appeal and the Supreme Court, several years are required to take a civil appeal through them. This time now is saved in appealing cases arising in Los Angeles, Long Beach, and townships of 30,000 or more population.

Rules, operation and administration of the new tribunal were worked out by Presiding Judge McLucas, and Judges Shaw and Bishop. Judge McLucas is former City Attorney of Santa Monica, former presiding judge of the Superior Court, and served a year on the District Court of Appeal. Judge Shaw served in the District Attorney's office, was City Attorney of Glendale, and has been on the Superior bench since 1923, serving ten months on the District Court of Appeal. Judge Bishop was County Counsel before ascending the Superior bench.

During the past year twenty-two formal opinions were written in novel cases and on questions which the department deemed unlikely to be presented to the District Court of Appeal. The department rendered seventy-nine memoranda or informal opinions for the guidance of counsel. In connection with the department have been established a branch of the County Clerk's office and a branch of the county law library. The local appeal bench is the first established in California.

OBSERVATORY DATA OBTAINED

Commissioner Griffith Home From Eastern Trip

Plans for $750,000 Park Project Furthered

Study Made of Planetarium Presented to Chicago

Data on observatories, in preparation for the drawing of plans for the observatory to be placed on the highest peak in Griffith Park, for which the late Griffith J. Griffith provided $750,000 in his will, have been obtained by Park Commissioner Griffith, the donor's son, who has just returned from a visit to eastern cities following his attendance at the convention of American park executives in St. Louis.

The commissioner made a close study of the huge planetarium donated to Chicago by Max Adler, philanthropist, with a view to working out something similar in connection with the observatory to be constructed shortly in Griffith Park.

The planetarium has a powerful projector which throws rays on the huge dome of the institution so that the whole resembles the sky at night, showing all the important stars. An illustration of a starlit sky as it would be in twenty-four hours is shown in twenty-four minutes.

The planetarium shows the relation of stars to each other, where they were located in the sky about the time the Egyptian Pyramids were started, and how they will be placed in the heavens 15,000 years from the present.

It was pointed out that Polaris, the mainstay of navigators at night because of its close proximity to a point straight above the North Pole, will not be in the north at all 15,000 years hence.

Recent completion of the Greek Theater, provided for by the late Griffith J. Griffith, has left the way open for study as to the best type of observatory to be constructed in Griffith Park and Commissioner Griffith is obtaining information on the subject from all parts of the United States and Europe to the end that the observatory will be a real monument of interest in the city.

First Lecture on Backgammon Due Tomorrow

Signs that backgammon, once a popular parlor pastime, is coming back into its own are seen in the announcement that a series of lectures on the subject will be given at Bullock's by Mrs. Francis Young Flinton of New York.

A studio has been fitted up for the purpose and will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The lectures will be given daily, except Saturday, in the auditorium, at 10 a.m. The talks will last one hour and the first will be given tomorrow. Following each lecture, Mrs. Flinton will supervise the play of all who wish to remain.

It was inadvertently announced that the lecture series would begin Wednesday of this week.

RUM-RUNNING SUSPECTED IN CAR CRASH

Clew Found in Santa Monica Canyon Mystery Wreck

Auto Plunges Into Wall of Home

Machine shoots 100 feet down steep road and barely misses bedroom in which two children lay asleep.

SANTA MONICA, Oct. 12. (Exclusive)—Finding of metal containers under the floor boards of an automobile which lay unclaimed for more than a week after it had plunged down 100 feet of steep road and crashed into the retaining wall of a Santa Monica Canyon residence have caused investigating officers to redouble their efforts to find the owner of the car, as they now suspect it had been used in liquor running.

It was at 1 a.m. on the 3rd inst. that the car failed to hold the road at a dangerous curve on Marquez Road and plunged down the hillside, finally coming to a stop against the wall of the home of Mrs. Lelia Jones at 175 West Channel Road. Had it landed six feet to the left the heavy green sedan would have crashed through the large French windows of a bedroom in which two children were sleeping. As it was, the car caused at least $500 damage to the house.

There were two occupants of the car, but apparently they were not seriously hurt. They got to Santa Monica Hospital for treatment, but how they did so no one knows. They did not report the accident and failed to claim the car, so Mrs. Jones finally reported it to the police.

The persons treated at the hospital gave their names as Howard Mason, 116 North Rampart street, and Nadine Tost, 1638½ South Serrano street, both Los Angeles. Policeman Davis and Detective Rinehart of the West Los Angeles division, who are co-operating with the vice squad of the Hollywood division in the investigation, were told at the Rampart-street address that no one by the name of Howard Mason lived there.

The officers did succeed in locating Miss Tost, but she asserted that after paying for her medical treatment Mason disappeared and she has not seen him since. After raising the car and taking it to a Sawtelle garage, which took almost a whole day, the officers found it was registered to Vernon Hind, whose address on the record is the Elks' Club, Los Angeles. At the Elks' Club they found that a man known as Harold V. Hind had been living there, but he was said to be away on a hunting trip.

While the car was being raised to the road Mrs. Catherine Gove, a Santa Monica real estate woman, parked near by and got out of her machine to watch the rescue work. Suddenly she heard a loud crash and when she looked for its cause she found that her car had slipped its brakes and rolled 300 feet down the road and crashed into a garage used by the county life guards, the car being almost demolished.

JUDGE CRAIG TO SPEAK

Superior Judge Craig of the Los Angeles bench is announced as the principal speaker today at the monthly luncheon meeting of the Santa Barbara Bar Association at Santa Barbara. He will speak on "A Visit to the Courts."

Weather Brings Flyers Down at Amarillo, Tex.

Forced down at Amarillo, Tex., by bad weather, according to advices received in Los Angeles, Robert Buck, holder of the junior transcontinental east-to-west air record, and Miss Laura Ingalls, holder of the women's record, expected to take off at dawn today to resume their eastward flights.

Buck is reported to have had engine trouble while passing over Tucumcari, N. M., and descended for repairs. He landed at Amarillo at 12:40, having left Albuquerque at 9:40 a.m. Miss Ingalls, who took off from the same city two hours earlier, arrived in the Texas city 10:25.

Buck's elapsed time from Los Angeles to Amarillo was given as nine hours and thirty-three seconds. On the westward flight he flew from Newark, N. J., to Los Angeles in twenty-eight hours and thirty-three minutes. Miss Ingalls crossed the continent in thirty hours and twenty-seven minutes, establishing a record for her sex.

MRS. KEITH MILLER NOW SEEKS RECORD

VALLEY STREAM (L. I.) Oct. 12. (Exclusive)—Mrs. Keith Miller, 30 years of age, who flew from London to Sydney, Australia, with Capt. Lancaster plans to take off tomorrow from Curtiss Wright Field for Los Angeles in an attempt to establish a new speed record for women which was recently set at 30h. 37m. by Miss Laura Ingalls of St. Louis. The Australian woman pilot is using a Whirlwind-powered Eaglerock monoplane. She plans to make refueling stops at Indianapolis, Wichita and Albuquerque.

Fifteen-Mile Zones Sought

The Glassell Park Business Men's Civic League has asked the City Council to order the erection of "fifteen-mile zone" signs along Verdugo Road and Eagle Rock Boulevard between San Fernando Road and Fletcher Drive. It also requests the installation of arterial stop signs at West Avenues 33, 34 and 35. The requests were referred to the Police Commission and to the Traffic and Lighting Committee.

REMOVAL OF PLAY DIRECTOR SUSTAINED

Removal of Wallace Brown as director of Stonehurst Playground, which resulted in petitions by patrons of the playground against the action, has been sustained by the Playground and Recreation Commission following an explanation from J. C. Henderson, playground supervisor that Brown "lacks the necessary judgment" to handle community matters. Henderson points out that Brown was not discharged, as his name still remains on the civil service eligible list, that the appointment was merely an emergency one and was given to a director higher on the eligible list.

CABRILLO BEACH ROAD SURVEY PETITIONED

The problem of providing a better roadway approaching Cabrillo Beach, at San Pedro, has been passed to the City Council by the Playground and Recreation Commission, which asks that the City Engineer be instructed to make a survey to find the best way to approach the beach. Petitions from the San Pedro Realty Board and others point out that the present approach is unsatisfactory because of the steep slope used over private property which becomes slippery and muddy in wet weather.

DRAMATIC RECITAL TO BE GIVEN TODAY

Channing Pollock's successful "mixing of oil and water" play, "Mr. Moneypenny," and the Drama League's prize-winning play, "The Curtain," by Hallie Flanagan, will be the subjects of a dramatic recital to be given by Ethel Elliott Swan in the May Company's Exposition Hall today at 2 p.m.

Mrs. Swan's recital, which marks the third of a series to be given in the May Company's downtown cultural center, is presented in collaboration with the University of California extension division.

AT VARYING ALTITUDES

As the maneuvers progress the "Red" planes will alter their "attacks" by flying at varying altitudes up to 15,000 feet and breaking up their formation so as to swarm down on the airport from various directions.

The same time schedules of the "attacks" announced for today will hold good tomorrow and Wednesday.

The entire maneuver, it was pointed out by Col. Peace, is intended to test the efficiency of the Coast artillery in the field; determine the best systems of communication; how far outposts must be from headquarters to assure defense flyers ample time to get into the air against the approaching planes; to determine whether planes can fly so as to render observation intelligence materially incomplete; to determine the extent to which ground observers can see aircraft at night; to determine and test a system for the use of fire units of machine-gun batteries of antiaircraft artillery against attacking planes; to determine time or distance from the target when or where defending aircraft should cease attacking and antiaircraft artillery begin firing.

SPATZ HEADS REDS

Maj. K. B. Lemmon, commanding officer of Fort MacArthur, and Maj. Felix E. Gross, commander of the Sixty-third Regiment, will aid Col. Peace in directing the maneuvers. Maj. Carl Spatz will command the "Red" planes—three Curtiss Condor bombers and six Boeing P-12 pursuit ships.

The tactical exercises primarily are for the benefit of the participating army units, but Col. Peace stated the public is invited to the airport to witness any of the action that may take place there.

The antiaircraft "nests" have been secretly located in the hills surrounding the airport. The "Blue" planes will be on exhibition at the field and the main body of Coast artillery is encamped between the landing runways.

Diamond Theft Trial to Open

Charged with stealing the same $1200 diamond from two women on different occasions, Carl L. Flynn tomorrow will go to trial in Superior Judge Warne's court. The complaint charges that Flynn borrowed the ring from Lily B. Gnau and pawned it, and then took Gertrude Lord to the pawnshop, and persuaded her to redeem the ring and buy it for $900.

Then, the complaint continues, Flynn borrowed the ring from Miss Lord, saying he wanted to wear it to a stag, and failed to return it.

Couple Wedded for Half-Century

Fifty years of marriage will be celebrated tonight by Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Driver, 4227 Brighton avenue, with golden-wedding festivities at their home, where they will hold open house for their relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Driver are former residents of Racine, Wis. They came to Los Angeles in 1919. Mr. Driver is a member of Belle City Lodge No. 92, F. and A. M. of Racine, and has been a Mason for fifty years.

JUVENILE PROBLEMS WILL BE DISCUSSED

Juvenile problems and situations of the community will be discussed at the luncheon of the new Hollywood City Club today at 12:15 o'clock at the Montmartre Cafe. Dr. William H. Snyder, director of the Los Angeles Junior College and a former principal of the Hollywood High School, will be the principal speaker. Other speakers will be Sheriff Traeger; Capt. Jack Finlayson, assistant Chief of Police, and Edythe Williams of North Hollywood. Mrs. Williams formerly worked with Helen Gould in New York City in philanthropic juvenile work.

ATTACK ON DEED FAILS IN COURT

Judge Yankwich Denies Plea on Realty Transfer

Benefits Declared Shared in Loan on Property

Intent of Case Challenged as Unsanctionable

When a man stands by and permits another person in whose name he has placed property to execute a deed of trust to obtain a loan, and receives the benefit of the loan, he will not be heard to complain later that neither he nor his wife executed the deed. This ruling was announced by Superior Judge Yankwich in holding as valid a deed of trust executed by Jessie Vaughan to Mrs. Sarah E. Chaney to obtain a deed of trust for $45,000 on property on Carondelet street near Wilshire Boulevard.

The validity of the deed was attacked by A. C. Vaughan, his wife, Libbie, and his sister, Jessie Vaughan, who contended that Mrs. Vaughan had not signed the documents. Originally, Mrs. Cheney loaned Vaughan $35,000 at 8 per cent, secured by a trust deed, the trial record shows. When the note matured Mrs. Cheney threatened foreclosure, but entered into a contract with Jessie Vaughan, whereby a new note and trust deed for $45,000 were executed, June 15, 1927.

DEED ATTACKED

The Vaughans sought to invalidate this deed, testifying that Jessie Vaughan held title for them. The sister testified that she did whatever Vaughan told her to do, and that all moneys were paid to him. His claim to the property was based upon an agreement with Harrison and Carolyne Henrich, who owned the property. Vaughan was to finance a hotel. The Henrichs received $5000 from the loan.

Judge Yankwich held that it would be inequitable to invalidate the deed because the Vaughans and Henrichs stood by, allowed Jessie Vaughan to sign all documents, and deal with the property as her own, they receiving the moneys under it, and have not tendered Mrs. Cheney the amount of the principal.

OPINION RENDERED

"If Jessie Vaughan holds the property in trust for A. C. Vaughan, who, in turn holds it subject to certain trust commitments to the Henrichs, in the last analysis, the holder of the legal title, Jessie Vaughan, holds it in trust for the Henrichs, while A. C. Vaughan merely has certain exclusive rights, as an attorney in fact, to negotiate the construction of a hotel, in the profits of which he is to share . . .

"The Vaughans and the Henrichs are, therefore, in this position: They allowed Jessie Vaughan to deal with the property as though she had complete ownership. They not only stood by, but they made her do their bidding. They received the benefits of the loan. It would be inequitable, under the circumstances, to make a declaration as to title which, in any way, jeopardized the rights of Mrs. Cheney to the deed of trust. To do so would mean to allow the Vaughans and Henrichs to take advantage of their own wrong. This the law abhors. And this court will not lend its aid to such injustice."

POLICY ASSAILED

Judge Yankwich called attention to Vaughan's contention that he should retain the money while asking the security to be voided, and said:

"Fortunately for society, such an attitude finds as little sanction in law as it should find in the enlightened business ethics which, in these days, should govern dealings between men."

Some of them sound like a revolutionary war whoop. Mr. Beetson of the Producers' Association assures the Congressmen that the Russian director has seen the light and now coos like a dove. At the same time, the soviet government must have felt pretty certain as to the state of Mr. Eisenstein's sympathies—or he never would have been allowed to leave Russia.

Mr. Eisenstein's pictures made in America will be watched with interest.

THE SUBS

In view of the fact that twenty-five submarines are to be retired from the active list, the Navy must feel pretty sure that the next war will be fought on top of the water.

The majority of navy officers are very skeptical regarding both airships and undersea craft in the first line of sea battles. They have their uses, but the real fighting will be done with the big guns and the big ships. The World War was not a real test. England's problems of defense are peculiarly her own—with no reference to ours.

DANIEL BOONE BRINGS PROPERTY-SALE SUIT

Daniel Boone pioneered a trail into Superior Judge Hazlett's court last week, appearing as plaintiff in a case. And by strange coincidence, the court reporter who recorded his case is George H. Boone, a descendant of the famous Daniel. The action was against Ole Robley, to enjoin sale of Boone's property under a trust deed. Judge Hazlett advised Boone that the matter is more of a business proposition than a legal action and suggested that if the plaintiff had more time, he probably could clear it up more profitably to all. Boone was given an order granting thirty days in which to clear up the matter or the property is to be sold under foreclosure proceedings. Boone is an architect.

SCREAM HINTS GORY DOOM

Blood on Sidewalk and Story of Woman's Body Being Hurled in Car Result in Inquiry

Blood spots on a doorstep a pool of blood on the sidewalk, a terrified woman's scream in the dark and an indistinct picture of a man throwing the body of a woman into a large automobile, are elements of a mystery which police began attempting to solve yesterday.

Was the woman beaten and kidnaped? Was she stabbed to death and her body taken away to be hidden? These are questions which loomed first in the minds of detectives. They remained unanswered last night.

The mystery came to the attention of police through Mrs. Clara Vance of 3014 Walton avenue. She reported that she was awakened at about 3 a.m. yesterday by the piercing scream of a woman. She walked to her window a few moments afterward and peered out. The street was quiet. She saw no one.

Then, soon after dawn, she found blood spots on the doorstep of her home and, farther along toward the curb, a pool of dried blood on the sidewalk.

Detective Lieutenants Huling and Holt, assigned to investigate the information, located Mrs. A. Johnson at 3022 1-2 Walton avenue, who declared her husband had seen a man and woman scuffling on the sidewalk and later observed the man throw the woman into a large car and drive away.

Further than this the detectives were unable to unearth any information which might help in the solution of the mystery.

Inquest Near on Trio's Death at Auto Camp

A Coroner's inquest into the causes of the death of three Iowa youths who expired from suffocation while sleeping in an automobile camp on Ventura Boulevard Saturday, probably will be conducted Wednesday. An investigation by Van Nuys police is under way.

L. J. Leonard, William E. Logan and Adam Karp, the ill-fated trio, left their homes in Des Moines, on the 5th inst., and came to Los Angeles by automobile where they had arranged for employment. Leonard and Karp were 21 years of age, and Logan was 18.

Logan was a high school senior and once was president of his class. He quit school a week ago when plans were formulated for the trip.

ERROR BANS PROPOSITION FOR BALLOT

Plan for Vested Pension Rights of Policemen and Firemen Ruled Out

Due to a technical error in the draft, City Charter Amendment No 8-A has been stricken from the ballot and will not be voted on November 4. The amendment would have provided a section of the charter declaring that when policemen and firemen have served their allotment of years which entitle them to a pension they shall be given a certificate showing their vested rights to the pension.

The City Council already has voted an ordinance to this effect, and the amendment was proposed in order to insure the pension rights. Many experienced officers who have served their allotment leave the department and draw their pensions because they have fear that City Hall political convolutions may result in their summary dismissal, thus depriving them of the right.

The error was discovered after it was too late to correct it for the official publication; therefore, the amendment was stricken. It may be proposed again in 1932.

Wife Will Get Alimony While She Hunts Job

Mrs. Merleen H. Poyet, who for the past six months has been drawing $40 a month alimony for her support while attending business college, will receive support for four months more while she is looking for a job, Superior Judge Hanby decided when Mrs. Poyet appealed for aid.

The court notified her, however, that she had better be self-supporting in four months or her alimony will be cut off.

"Alimony is not permanent support," Judge Hanby ruled.

Mrs. Poyet sued Harry F. Poyet, an attorney, for divorce on grounds of cruelty.

ACTRESS VALUES HER NOSE AT LARGE SUM

Ann Christy

Ann Christy, motion-picture actress, injured when her automobile struck a ditching machine, has sued the Herbert M. Baruch Corporation, owner, for $100,000 which, she says, is the amount of damage to her nose, which suffered a multiple fracture in the impact.

In addition, according to the complaint, filed by Attorney George B. Webster, Miss Christy suffered a cut lip and a bruised knee, as well as minor contusions. The accident occurred August 12, last, about midnight on Doheny Drive, where, it is asserted, the ditcher was negligently parked.

CHAMBER TOURISTS OFF TODAY

Good-Will Party Will Spend Four Days on Trip to San Joaquin Valley

With a message from Los Angeles business interests pledging greater co-operation in the development of reciprocal trade, a party of manufacturers and distributors will leave here on a Southern Pacific special at 10:30 o'clock tonight for a four-day good-will tour of the San Joaquin Valley, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

"I believe we need to do more of this sort of thing to encourage buying and assist business in getting properly back on its feet," President Austin of the Chamber said yesterday, commenting on the trade tour. "Showing the people of the valley that we have a genuine interest in their market problem, and stressing the extent to which their raw materials are consumed in this territory, will materially improve the market there for Los Angeles products," he added.

E. F. MacDonough, domestic trade manager of the chamber, together with Charles P. Bayer, field secretary, will represent the staff of the local organization on the tour. Sixteen of the principal cities of the San Joaquin Valley will be visited, and arrangements have been made in advance at all of these points to permit contact with merchants and farmers. Many of the executives of firms here will personally contact customers in the various cities.

The itinerary calls for stops during the next four days as follows: Tuesday: Porterville, Strathmore, Lindsay, Exeter, Dinuba, Reedley, Sanger and Fresno. Wednesday: Fresno, Fowler, Selma, Kingsburg and Hanford. Thursday: Visalia, Tulare, Delano, Bakersfield. Friday: Party remains at Bakersfield until 4 p.m., dinner at Mojave and back in Los Angeles at 10 p.m.

Water Board Pays Respects to City Clerk

City Clerk Dominguez has received from the Board of Water and Power Commissioners copies of the following resolution recently adopted by the board commending him for his work:

"Whereas Robert Dominguez, City Clerk, has been in the service of the city of Los Angeles more than thirty years; in the office of the City Clerk more than twenty years and City Clerk for the past ten years, and

"Whereas the loyal, honest and courteous devotion to duty always exhibited by Robert Dominguez has impressed itself upon the Water and Power Department and in particular his devotion to the department's interests in remaining at his desk until late at night every night for the past week in order to facilitate the consummation of the sale of the initial installment of $5,000,000 of the $38,800,000 issue of water bonds, this board feels that the citizens of Los Angeles are to be congratulated in enjoying the services of a highly competent and efficient public official in the office of the City Clerk.

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, that this board spread upon its records expression of its high regard for City Clerk Dominguez and sincere appreciation for the invaluable service rendered this department."

BITTINGER TRIAL TO BE RESUMED

Financier Scheduled for Appearance Tomorrow

Defendant Recovering From Attempted Suicide

Stands Accused of Taking $9500 Company Funds

Recovered from his suicidal attempt, George Bittinger, financier, is to be placed back on trial tomorrow before Superior Judge Hahn on charges of grand theft. At the County Jail yesterday Bittinger was reported as being on the mend in spite of his double attempt with poison and a bullet fired behind his right ear while alone in a room at the California Club a few days after his trial began four weeks ago.

Judge Hahn exonerated Bittinger's $5000 bail and remanded him to the Sheriff's custody last week, at which time the financier had recovered sufficiently to appear in court. At that time the judge set today as the date for resuming trial. Later, when his attention was called to the fact that today will be Columbus Day, the jurist corrected the continuance to tomorrow.

Bittinger, formerly was general manager of both the Mortgage Discount Company and the Calivada Securities Company. He is charged with appropriating to his own use $9500 of the companies' funds. He went to trial before Judge Hahn and put on several prominent men as character witnesses. On the third court day, Bittinger failed to appear, although he had conferred with Attorney William A. Simpson just prior to the session. That evening the missing financier was found in a room at the club. According to the police surgeons, he had taken poison and then had shot himself in the head.

UNEMPLOYED SERVED BY LAW CLINIC

Contractual and Domestic Relations Cases Handled Mostly by Students

Approximately one-half the cases handled last spring and summer by the legal aid clinic of the University of Southern California involved unemployed clients, a report of John S. Bradway, director of the clinic, shows. Mexicans led all other foreign clients seeking legal aid at the institution, while English and Canadians were second and third, respectively.

One-quarter of the clients were served as a result of information regarding the clinic gained from newspapers. Other sending sources were the State, county and local governments, lawyers, bar associations, other legal aid organizations, twenty-nine social welfare agencies and former clients.

The largest number of cases handled by the clinic grew out of contractual relations and had to do with wages and money claims, breeches of contract, and promissory notes. There were more than 250 cases involving domestic relations. The remainder were divided between estates, torts, property, and miscellaneous.

The clinic was established in 1929 to enable persons in serious difficulty and not able to employ regular counsel to obtain legal aid. It does not handle divorce or crime cases, nor those involving large sums of money.

The clinic is located at 3660 University avenue, and is open daily except Saturday or Sunday, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., and on Tuesday from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., and on Thursday from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m.

Assessments on Two Street Projects Hit

Objections to the assessments for the proposed opening and widening of Figueroa street and Rosecrans avenue have been filed with the Board of Supervisors by the E. Clem Wilson Company, claiming an interest in 130 acres of land at the northeast corner of the intersection of the two highways.

According to the company the assessment against it on the Figueroa-street project is $31,000 and on the Rosecrans improvement, $15,000.

"The assessments," the company states, "are entirely out of keeping with fairness and justice."

The property is underlaid with oil and the company asserts that aside from the heavy assessments it would be deprived also of several acres of valuable oil land if the improvements are made.

"The property owners are in need of action by the Board of Supervisors to suppress further development work of this kind until our laws become more equitable," the letter declares.

Girl Scouts to Honor Leader

The Council of Girl Scouts will honor Miss Alice Conway, national community organizer, with a reception this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Alexandria. Mrs. Edith W. Swarts is local Girl Scout director.

Helen Matthewson Laughlin, dean of women at U.C.L.A. and commissioner of the Council, will preside. Mrs. Gertrude Maynard, local representative of the national committee, will talk on the Girl Scout national convention which she attended recently in Indianapolis.

Before Miss Conway returns to New York, she expects to visit Scouts headquarters in many Pacific Coast cities, and on November 17, next, will open a training course here for Girl Scout leaders.

Today's Bible Text

Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.—Heb. xi:1.

PLAIN TALK

There are 600 languages in Africa and 321 in India. It seems that the less civilized folks are the more they talk.

MIND OVER MATTRESS

Edison says that four hours' sleep are enough for anybody. A wag says that shows the triumph of mind over mattress.

GOLF AT CHURCH

A New Jersey church has a peewee golf course on the side and the members are permitted to develop their putting between services. Maybe that would be a good place to take up the collection.

PEEWEE POLITICIANS

Since the authorities have difficulties in catching the bank bandits and in unraveling the murder mysteries of the city, it is intriguing the way they go after motorists who park too long in one spot or watch the peewee golf courses. Up and at 'em!

FRENCH GOLD

France has piled up more than $1,800,000,000 of gold reserves and has the greatest per capita stock of the yellow metal of any country in the world. If gold is both armor and argument the French folk are well-intrenched. They can even give Mussolini the laugh.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

The Americans at least have the highest standards of living of any people on earth. We have only 7 per cent of the world's population and 6 per cent of the area, but we use 72 per cent of the world production of silk and 69 per cent of its oil. These are the factors that at once suggest high living. We are just as stout in other expensive lines.

FOR SMALLER FARMS

The American farmer is himself in favor of smaller families and smaller farms. The Country Home Magazine has consulted with 15,000 representative agriculturists on various questions concerned with life on the farm and there seems to be rather general agreement on the points named. The big family is no longer an asset on the farm and the woman of the house is no longer willing to be anchored all her life to the upbringing of a flock of children. As to the size of the farm there is a feeling that the owner cannot get the best results from broad acreage. The smaller tract, with intensified cultivation, offers the best assurance of a livelihood for the family. There was also a wide opinion that the farmer did not need relief from the politicians or the government. All this may seem to be out of tune with the farmer as most folk know him, but the magazine has support for its assertions.

CHARLES F. CURRY

After serving his State and nation for more than forty years, for eighteen years of which he represented the Third California District in the lower house of Congress, Charles F. Curry has finished a long and useful career almost wholly devoted to affairs of public interest. Many House members at the convening of the next session will miss the familiar figure of the dean of the California delegation who for so long occupied a prominent place in the Republican politics of his State. His many friends on the Pacific Coast while mourning his demise will remember with gratitude his never-ceasing activities in promoting what he held to be good for the State and section he served so long.

Few citizens have spent so much of their time in public pursuits and so little in their private affairs as did this California Representative, who from an early start in agricultural and mining pursuits graduated from law school in his thirtieth year and thereafter gave forty-two years almost exclusively to building a political record. During that time he filled many positions; four years clerk of San Francisco, later for one year Secretary of State of California; Building and Loan Commissioner of California in 1911, representative to the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, member of the Flood Control Committee were other positions he occupied during his long political career.

Mr. Curry was a capable public servant and his loss will be felt in California.

THE REVOLT IN BRAZIL

Revolutionary forces for a week past have overrun some eleven States of the vast Brazilian confederacy and have made things decidedly uncomfortable for the administration of President Washington Luis, at Rio de Janeiro. So far they have made little impression, however, upon the richest and most populous States of Sao Paulo, Rio de Janeiro and Espiritu Santo and it does not appear clear that they have complete control of Minas Geraes, though they have had some successes there. During the first week, at least, there have been no battles of consequence and hardly even minor skirmishes, and there was little of either bloodshed or disorder.

The Luis government asserts that it will weather the storm, having retained the navy and the best-trained part of the army, and being well financed. The rebels assert they have well-trained armies aggregating 80,000 men, but they are not believed to have any great resources in either money or munitions, and it may easily be that the rapid spread of the revolt is a forerunner of equally rapid collapse.

The sending of United States and British warships to Brazilian waters is a precautionary measure, designed to insure the protection of life and property, and they may or may not be needed. American investments in Brazil total between $600,000,000 and $700,000,000, and there is a considerable group of American citizens resident there. In dispatching war vessels to the principal ports the administration is therefore taking no more than customary and desirable safeguarding action.

So far there has been little to indicate what the revolt is actually about. The so-called Liberal party, which has a red flag as its emblem, but disclaims either Socialism or Communism, is the nominal sponsor, but has made no announcement of a program, save that of establishing a provisional government and calling elections, which, of course, might have any sort of a purpose. Getulio Vargas, president of Rio Grande do Sul, was the Liberal party candidate for president of the republic last spring, and was defeated. Apparently he has decided to seek a decision at arms to challenge that at the ballot box. Gen. Jose Flores da Cunha is said to be his principal military backer.

It seems probable, however, that sectional feeling and jealousy on the part of the poorer and less-developed States against the richer and more populous may be at the bottom of the affair. Sao Paulo and Rio de Janiero have, generally speaking, been in political control for some years and have run things to their liking, and it has been complained that not enough attention was being paid to the other sections of the republic.

Brazil was hard hit economically by the collapse of the coffee-valorization scheme and the recent drop of coffee prices to levels said to be well below the cost of production. Coffee valorization was undertaken largely for the benefit of Sao Paulo; it was an attempted government corner of this commodity, with the purpose of withholding surpluses from the market. Though apparently successful for several years, the scheme went down finally under the weight of accumulated and unmarketable surpluses and competition from other coffee-growing countries, just as the British rubber monopoly was smashed earlier in a similar manner.

That jealousy of the capital and its near neighboring States gave rise to the revolt seems to be borne out by the manner of its occurrence. The uprising started at Rio Grande do Sul, at the extreme southern tip, but the three southern States of Rio Grande do Sul, Santa Catharina and Parana were almost immediately joined by half a dozen northern States, leaving the States at the center, at the extreme tropical north, and in the back country in government control. The back country consists of Para, the rubber country, temporarily of no great economic importance, and mainly unsettled, and the Matto Grosso, or vast plains region, also with few inhabitants.

Strategically the government forces are in a favorable position, being at the center and able to strike in either direction, while the northern and southern groups of States have no communication. If the navy and the government troops remain loyal, they should be able to handle the situation.

HOW IT STRIKES A BRITISHER

Mayor Reuben Salter of Boston, Lincolnshire, England, who has been in this country of late, helping our Boston to celebrate its tercentenary, says he will take home as his chief impressions of American life our breathless rush and our interminably drawn-out dinners. He liked the way Boston treated him and had some nice things to say of its hospitality as well as that of New York, but our craze for speed did not meet with his approval.

"With all your organization and time-saving devices," he said, "you don't seem to get to places or to do things any quicker than the English. Look at the time wasted between dinner courses here and long waits and perfect decorum of banquets. In Boston it took us over an hour to get through three dinner courses."

So it seems that those Americans who, by stretching out public dinners, thought they were following the approved European manner were not only not doing so, but were courting foreign criticism. As for our speed, which gets us "nowhere in particular in a desperate hurry," Mayor Salter after all, is not so critical as H. G. Wells, who found it "ludicrous," or Rudyard Kipling, who referred to our headlong habits as those of "perfectly mad people." The Mayor's is the kind of opinion which we really cannot resent, though it tends to make us thoughtful.

THE HOSPITAL RECORD

The Hospital Standardization Conference, which meets today at Philadelphia, as a section of the convention of the American College of Surgeons, will receive a report declaring that approved hospitals during the past year have had an average death rate of only 4 per cent, according to advance announcement. Considering that in the total are included emergency cases and others in which patients arrive in a comatose or dying condition, the record is a remarkable one and in sharp contrast to conditions a generation ago, when hospitals were generally feared, and with some reason, as death traps.

The American College of Surgeons began its hospital betterment movement only thirteen years ago. At that time only eighty-nine hospitals in the United States and Canada kept clinical records regarded as satisfactory, while now 2063 hospitals meet this and other requirements established by the association. That the higher standards insisted upon have had a great deal to do with the lowered mortality rate seems a reasonable inference. The hospital, of course, should be a place to inspire hope and not fear.

THE SAME OLD DEFENSE

By James J. Montague

Whenever a greedy political crowd
Collects every office in sight,
And fancies the boys in the jobs are endowed
With the right to get rich overnight,
A popular protest is bound to arise;
There is talk about justice and law
And from various quarters come murmurs and cries
That the gang is a trifle too raw.
Whereon they cry out: "What a shame and a pity
To injure the glorious name of our city!"

No doubt Captain Kidd, when he ravaged the main
In the search after vessels to loot,
Was wont, when the nations demurred, to maintain
That he followed a noble pursuit.
He probably said, when they caught him at last
And subjected his crew to a quiz,
That the manner in which he his spoils had amassed
Was nobody's business but his.
And declared that the raising of such a commotion
Was casting a slur on the name of the ocean.

The old robber barons, who ravaged and slew
In the days when few laws were in force,
Were averse, I suppose, to a hullabaloo
That attended their pillaging course.
The peasants who wailed at the loss of their gold
And objected to rapine and riot
By bands of high-handed assassins, were told
That the best thing to do was keep quiet.
The barons believed that talk of rascality
Would smudge the name of the fair principality.

The LEE SIDE O' LA

By Lee Shippey

OFTEN it is helpful to see ourselves as others see us.

The other evening we had dinner with a very intellectual Japanese, who is writing a book about our country, for circulation in his own.

"To us whose problems are so much greater than yours, especially the social and economic problems," he said, "it is at first surprising to find that not all of your people are happy and pleased with conditions here. The one thing which seems to us to stand out is the fact that Americans have more to be thankful for than any other people. There is more opportunity here for the average man, more prosperity for workers in all lines, more stability and confidence than most nations enjoy. Even the man who criticises the government wouldn't think of selling government bonds except at a premium—he knows the government is fundamentally all right. Even the man who mounts a soap box and asserts that Americans are being robbed of liberties knows his child can go to a good American school and not only shine there, if he excels his fellows, but step out of school with many doors of opportunity open to him because of his demonstrated ability. All about one sees innumerable proofs that, no matter what one's origin, he may win the highest success here. The people of my country and every other country are interested in this country because they want to copy it."

And How?

Leeside: Here is something promising I clipped from my home-town paper:

Wanted: Bome one to rent part of m" house. Will make it interesting for the tenant.

Little Nippon Is Growing

Little Nippon is on the wax. A couple of years ago the Japanese shops were mostly on First street, between Los Angeles and San Pedro streets, turning both corners a little way, and scattering on along East First street. Now Japanese business houses are scattered all the way from Aliso street to Fourth street and four blocks of East First street are almost solidly lined with Japanese shops. With two banks, two newspapers, a Buddhist temple, a Protestant church, a chamber of commerce, a theater and practically all lines of business in that one community, it is a complete city within a city. And a good many Japanese live elsewhere in the city.

At 353 East First street there is even a Japanese miniature golf course, where one hears only Japanese spoken. There one sees children, young folks and old folks playing the game as intently as one sees Americans on other courses. Evidently those folks aren't much smarter than we are, after all. But they have one advantage—they don't have to stoop over so far.

Second-hand Magazines

There are several places in town in which second-hand magazines are sold, but a rather new place on Spring street is going into the business with a vengeance. It seems to be buying up all the magazines from which the news-stand men have cut the covers to return them to the publishers—the publishers long ago adopted that plan of saving carriage charges on consigned magazines, not charging the news dealer for the number from which he returns the covers—and marketing them for 5 cents, or two for 5 cents. After all, in the case of many magazines, especially the more garish ones, what difference does it make whether it's this month's or last month's? But we doubt that the magazine publishers are greatly pleased.

Joshua Little Says

I know it's oversmoking which ran me down, but of course I got the doctor to tell my wife it was overwork.

You can't expect a tonic to take the place of the common sense which makes you live the way you ought to, and it's about the same with business sickness.

I'm glad the scientists refuted that story that toads shut up in rock chambers lived several hundred years. We've got too many fossils trying to live like toads now.

With most football teams choosing the bloodthirstiest names they could, such as the Tigers, the Thundering Herd, the Purple Tornado, the Bears, the Panthers and so on, was timid about mentioning our Whittier Poets until I saw in the paper that the New York University team is called the Violets. Why not an intersectional contest for the pretty-named division between the Poets and the Violets.

Just to prove that this is a land of democracy, there was a banquet to Mr. Robert A. Millikan in Eagle Rock the other night and only one of the 125 men present wore a dinner suit.

WHAT OTHERS THINK ABOUT IT

HEARST AND GALLAGHER

(San Francisco Chronicle)

The suggestion made by The Chronicle yesterday that Supervisor Andy Gallagher lead the great Hearst circus parade in a Fresh Air taxi with Supervisor Havenner playing "Amos" in the driver's seat did not meet with the approval of the committee of arrangements. We are glad of this, now that we have had time to think it over.

One thing stands out clearly, however. Mr. Hearst, as the last surviving American patriot, will have no entangling alliances with the French government. This seems to be unanimous on both sides. It was agreement on this point that caused Mr. Hearst's epic departure from Paris. That departure inspired the cross-country celebrations arranged in every city where Mr. Hearst has a faithful and enterprising advance agent.

We are not inclined to think that the Hearst managers touted any special tips to Mr. Gallagher. It was just his native quickness that gave him the jump on Mr. Stanton and Dr. Toner and left Mr. Havennet at the post. Mr. Gallagher is entitled to the glory of a winner.

It is pleasing to see Mr. Hearst giving Mr. Gallagher perfect co-operation. Mr. Gallagher seems to know just what Mr. Hearst wants. It is almost uncanny. Mr. Hearst is ready to give support to Mr. Gallagher's slightest suggestion. Not even publicity is withheld. In fact, Mr. Hearst is extraordinarily liberal with it, even to daily revealing the identity of Mr. Gallagher's candidate for honors as the greatest or, as we have said before, the last surviving American patriot.

WHEN THE CONSUMER HELPS

(Chicago Daily News)

Economists and practical financiers agree that, despite the business depression, the potential purchasing power of the American people is at a high level. Some experts assert that it is at the absolute peak in the history of the country. The reports of savings banks and insurance companies, the investments in building and loan associations, with other relevant data, leave no doubt as to the vast amount of unused purchasing power that is now available.

The release of any considerable part of this residuum of wealth in the purchase of commodities regarded as luxuries or semi-luxuries would stimulate many languishing industries and would go far toward restoring normal business conditions.

The railroads and other public utilities have shown intelligent foresight in building for the future. The average consumer is supposed to have been of late more pessimistic regarding the industrial outlook than the facts warranted. Now he should make his modest contribution to the return of sound prosperity and at the same time serve his own or his family's needs.

THE VALUE OF INFLUENCE

(Ohio State Journal)

For a young man of thirty the Prince of Wales is getting along well. In the Royal Air Forces he is promoted from group captain to air marshal; in the naval fleet he is advanced from captain to vice-admiral; in the army he becomes a lieutenant-general instead of a colonel. Thus merit is rewarded. Also, it pays to have influence.

WHEN WINTER COMES

(Minneapolis Journal)

Because of a deficiency of rainfall this last summer a weather expert predicts about ten feet of snow on the level the coming winter. Ten feet on the level means about twenty feet on the driveway.

THE WASHINGTON WASH

BY STRICKLAND GILLILAN

If the rainmaker doesn't stir his stumps vigorously before long, the people of this vicinity will have to use exclusively the "dry ice" we hear so much about for cooling purposes next summer. The other day out in Maryland, just over the District line, I caught a grasshopper and commanded him to "spit tobacco juice," as I used to do with his kind when I was a comparatively innocent child. But he couldn't make it. He strained till he got purple in the face, but he didn't produce a trace of moisture. He had plumb dried up. And when a grasshopper can't spit, there's been some drought!

One thing that makes your and my Washington so fascinating to the philanthropic humanist as well as to the philandering humorist, is that one obtains here such commonplace closeups of the great figures of history. A long, long time ago some early morning pilgrim — milkman or something—saw a nude figure making a straight—no, he had gone on—making a pale pink streak for the Executive Mansion, from Potomac Basin way. He was mystified for a while and then probably forgot it because nobody would believe him. But if he had known! The undraped human streak was the President of the United States Senate — John Quincy Adams. He had been swimming in the Potomac and somebody had hooked his wardrobe.

I have never seen anything like that around here, and don't believe it would pay to haunt the Tidewater Basin in hopes of it. But I did see a very humanizing feet-of-clay sight the evening of President Hoover's inauguration. I'll never forget it. I had to leave town that night in a sleeper. The Union Station was a veritable madhouse, a witches' sabbath. Nobody knew where anybody's sleeper was, and demented people with bands and everything were wandering and yelling or slumping dejectedly about the whole enormous shed and waiting rooms. There was even one man asleep under the plaster buffalo that the Indian is killing. It was terrible. Everybody there had been out soaking in the customary inauguration deluge and was wetter than a retriever after bringing in four mallards. The aroma from human forms was assertive. There was not only B. & O., but the same without the &.

After having tormented an already tortured usher till he was double-goofy, by asking him when my sleeper would be ready and where, I gave up. Great thing to be an American citizen. I though bitterly; at ten minutes of midnight in a reeking and whooping mob, wondering where was the sleeper that was scheduled to be anchored to the umpth track at 10 p.m.! Terrible to be poor and pull-less in the so-called land of the spree and the home of the crave! Huh! And repeat. Oh, to belong to the privileged class! I was as red as Trotsky.

Then, not far from the Inflammation Bureau, what do you suppose I saw? I saw two people sitting on up-ended suitcases looking miserabler than I felt. That in itself was an achievement. I didn't know it could be done. I thought I had reached absolute zero. But wait a m'nute, and let me tell you who it was, for that is still more wonderful: It was nobody else than Andrew W. Mellon, the world's greatest Treasury Secretary since Alexander Hamilton, and his daughter, Alisa Mellon Bruce! They also were poor as I and without any more pull than I had, in that emergency. Their palatial private car, if such they had for the occasion, was just as lost in the jumble as my own cheap upholstered kennel for which I yearned. Ha, ha! The Union Station became at once for me the Land of the Midnight Sun, for sunshine burst right through my every cloud and there were silver linings all over the place.

Just at that moment my red-cap came and said: "Boss, yo'all's cah is raidy on track eight."

I still think Herbert Hoover the best possible person to be at the head of the government in "panic" times. Charley Michelson and I differ on one point—Charley thinks Bert arranged for the "panic" just on the principle of the quack doctor who gave every patient something to bring on fits because that doctor, as he himself put it, was "hell on fits." My opinion is that Hoover's election merely deferred the inevitable panic for a while, and that he will get us out of the mess with the least possible abrasion.

However, all offers on the part of Mr. Hoover to trade places with me have been and will be stubbornly refused. I would be almost as great a failure at his job as he would be at mine. He did, however, pull a fast one in his bankers' speech when he spoke of those circulating evil tidings and disseminating depressing psychology "for other than economic purposes." That gentle and Quaker-like jab seemed to me to leave a whole landscape of flat tires among the Hooverphobes. But as a steady, professional joker, our President would be as much of a flop as Doc Hubert Work was at the national chairman game. Are further comparisons needed?

One time when Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, of Pasadena and elsewhere, the greatest and most useful 75-year-old woman the world has ever seen, was attending some public function in New York, Dr. Henry Van Dyke walked up and greeted her with a kiss, and Chief Justice Taft came over to where she was and put an arm around her. Seeing Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur (then president of Stanford and now our Secretary of Interior) standing a little distance away looking as dignified as nobody else on earth can look, Mrs. Burdette (who has as much humor as her late famous humorist husband) walked across to the ramrod-like figure and said:

"Did you see what Dr. Van Dyke and Chief Justice Taft did?"

"Yes, madam," said Dr. Wilbur, sternly.

"What are you going to do?"

"Nothing!"

"Thank heaven for that," said Mrs. Burdette, "if you did I'd fall dead."

HENRY FORD'S IDEAL DAY

BY EUGENE BROWN

Dear Henry: Just a few words with you: We saw in the paper the other day where you were telling the world that after a while the American worker will be pulling down his $27 to $30 a day for a five-day week.

We hope you are right.

It all sounds mighty pleasant. I know several of the boys who are ready right now to hook up under these terms. It isn't so much that they are crazy about working, but this sugary wage scale has a refined and genteel sound. It might even interest their sweeties. Almost any bozo would think it was worth trying at least once. Are you sure you are not spoofing us or holding something back?

Times do change, don't they, Henry? I remember when I was a kid back in Detroit when you were working for about a dollar a day and not always getting it. If you had struck and held out for $27 a day at that time you would never have done a lick of work since. If anybody had come to town with a proposition to employ any number of men—or one man, at thirty bones per diem, he would probably have been staked out on Hog Island—as Belle Isle was then known, until his brain cooled or reason tottered back to her throne.

Seems to me that the biggest salary in the town at that time was about $4000 a year. The high-roller who drew that died years later and left some $3,000,000 behind him, which even then seemed a big slice of all the money in Michigan. There wasn't a whole lot of dough in the universe and a bird who had a million bucks was openly charged with being a plutocrat—whatever that was.

In them kid days Horace Rackham, who later started you on your corporate career—and pulled out $12,000,000 for it—was selling insurance for my people and studying law on the side. He lived at our house and slept with me to save money. If we found a dime on the floor in the morning we would fight like fiends for it. He was bigger and older than I and usually got it. For all I know he has it yet. But what I mean was that money as we speak of it nowadays was really scarce. At that time Horace was just coming into a bass voice, which was quite a wonderful thing for a kid of his size. He practiced it out on an East Side Baptist church, where I was the boy organist, but, of course, he never got any pay for it. In those days if you had a voice it belonged to the Lord and was exercised accordingly. I remember when one girl who had an unusually gifted soprano had the courage to charge the trustees $8 a month for her church work the congregation thought she must be a bit sinful and would point her out to visitors on Sunday.

No, Henry, when you were boarding out on Grand River avenue you had no $27 a day in your mind. A $1.25 one looked pretty good. If you had gone down to the Campus Martius and preached a $30 day Brockway's men would probably have gathered you in and had you making chairs for the State at 3 cents an hour.

But supposing we do get a $30 day and a five-day week—what of it? Right off the bat the prices of everything we eat, wear or use, would go sky-hooting in proportion. What good is $30 a day to me if I have to pay $2 a gallon for gasoline and $25 per each for best seats at the show? I might as well be at the bottom of the mines. Of course a penurius pup from Glasgow who saved every penny he took in would put a bunch of money by and when the inevitable turn of the wheel came and prices were moving back to former levels would find himself in pleasant pastures. But the average installment-paying American would probably be owing more money than he is today.

If we could only guarantee every man a steady job at fair wages our economic ills would disappear as readily as the foam from a glass of beer—whatever that is. But what good is $30 a day when there are only jobs for a few. The uplift age is quite likely to make for industrial discontent and unrest.

Think it all over, Henry, and tell me if the $27 day still goes.

A Harbor at Sea

The Island of Monhegan, twenty miles off the coast of Maine, offers a charm to the nature lover. A rather limited number of tourists find their way out there during the summer, but the trip to the island would often be a difficult one were it not for the fact that there are two islands, Monhegan and Manana and it is the presence of the latter that forms a very excellent harbor where landings may be made and freight unshipped very readily under the protection of Manana. The island is rockbound and flower-decked with a dense forest in its center.

"FINE" BOYS

By The Foothill Philosopher

"Isn't Willie a fine ... asked a visitor at a certain ... Angeles home, as an immaculately clad, perfectly mannered child walked out of the room.

"Yes," whispered another visitor, "almost too fine."

If Willie's mother had heard the latter remark she would never have invited visitor ... to visit her again—but it would have set her to thinking.

With the best of intentions Willie's mother is rearing her child in a manner that, from some standpoints, is causing no little embarrassment and actual suffering and which is laying the foundation for endless trouble for him later on in life. Willie knows and does all the "correct" thing but he is almost an automaton. He is not allowed to play with the other children of the neighborhood because they are too "rough"—because his mother fears he will "hear something" he shouldn't hear. He never soils his clothes. He never hears or uses a "scrap," never hears or repeats a naughty word. He does not know the little world in which he lives (aside from his own room, bedroom and dining room) and he is going to get a shock of his life when circumstances compel him to mingle with his fellow beings—which may it be tomorrow or five years hence.

Goodness and fineness are incompatible with manliness even with boyhood, yet there is such a thing as encouraging a youngster to be too fine. Childhood is the age of spontaneity of free expression, and when such impression is repressed too great an extent the child is stunted and loses that freedom which is essential to growth.

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

This department offers leaflets on weaning and feeding the child from 6 weeks to 6 years, prenatal care and diet for the nursing mother, constipation, eczema, outfits for the new baby, sleeping, walking, teething, thumb sucking, ammoniacal urine, bed wetting, training in cleanly habits, periods of nursing, cod liver oil, orange juice, hives, worms, vomiting, refractory children, prune juice, lime water, rupture, styes and boils and cradle cap. Before asking a personal question about one of these subjects, it is better to send a self-addressed stamped envelope for the leaflet you need. If your particular problem is not covered in the above list, Mrs. Eldred will be glad to give you a personal reply.

HIVES MAY BE BABY'S REACTION TO FOOD IRRITATION

Some children and adults are readily susceptible to irritation because of food, and react to it in a marked way. The baby who is overfed, has too much cream in his formula, is sensitive to eggs, or to fruits of various sorts, may react by developing a rash or hives. If the food is constantly in the diet the baby may have the rash for months (eczema.)

Hives are large bulbous eruptions which appear sometimes within a few hours after eating the irritating food. They are hard, whitish, and look much like huge mosquito bites. They may appear all over one arm or all over the back of the neck or just on the legs, and disappear almost as rapidly as they come. Meanwhile, they itch badly.

HOME DOSING

A change of water or food will cause hives in the person who is easily upset by changes. Doses of milk of magnesia, or bicarbonate of soda in water will help them disappear. The soda water may be mopped on the wheals, too, and will help prevent the distressing itching. Unless one is absolutely certain that the eruptions are hives, it is best not to do any home dosing.

A reader asks this about hives and food: "My baby is 10½ months of age and has hives very badly. I have taken almost all the water out of her milk but she still gets the sugar. Could this be causing the hives? At what age should I start giving whole milk, and should the sugar be added?"

MAY NOT BE SUGAR

There are probably several foods in the baby's menu which are more apt to cause hives than the sugar element of the formula.

Orange juice or other fruits may cause them, in which case try tomato juice or the juice of green grapes, and watch baby's reaction. Wheat cereal may be an offending factor, so substitute brown rice, oatmeal, or whole barley.

We have leaflets on hives and on feeding which you should be interested in securing. One or both may be obtained by sending the usual self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to the "Your Baby and Mine" department of this newspaper.

USE OF SUGAR

The age at which babies get whole milk is usually one year. However, this is somewhat determined by weight, for if your 10½-months-old child weighs as much as the average year-old (twenty-one pounds,) she likewise needs as much milk, thirty-two ounces. We never give any baby more than one quart of milk daily; so that if your young child is still taking a night feeding, eight ounces of water will have to be added to make up a fifth feeding.

The use of sugar in any formula is necessary to make the cow's milk as nearly as possible like mother's milk, which contains more sugar. When a baby is getting whole milk, the diet is so varied and contains so much carbonhydrate and sugar in other ways that sugar need not be added to the milk. While there is any dilution, add at least one tablespoonful of sugar.

Health and Diet

ADVICE

by DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

WHY DYSPEPTICS ARE CRANKY

Often great financiers have indigestion or dyspepsia due to their concern over the ups and downs of the market, and even their office boys know they had better see how the boss is digesting his lunch before they ask for a raise.

By dyspepsia is meant the indigestion caused by the loss of the normal ability to digest food in comfort. On account of the nervous disturbance which indigestion often causes, the patient becomes easily irritated, depressed and sleepless. A confirmed dyspeptic is a confirmed crank because his digestive juices make him one.

Patients with digestive disorders often learn to dwell too much upon the state of their health until they become what are known as "hypochondriacs" which means that they pay too much attention to passing symptoms. But let the same patient change his habits of eating and living so that his food agrees with him and he becomes cheerful and has that well-fed, vital look, all as the result of getting his digestion adjusted.

There are many causes of indigestion, but you can readily see that the wrong habits of eating are responsible in most cases. Some common causes are: Eating bad food combinations, eating when tired or worried, eating too large a quantity of food, eating foods which are tainted or those hard to digest, such as greasy pastries or fried foods, irregular hours of eating, eating too rapidly, not chewing the food sufficiently, drinking concentrated alcoholic beverages or drinking excessively with meals.

In acute attacks of indigestion, known as upset stomach or sour stomach, there may be considerable colicy pain, fever, and even vomiting or diarrhea, but once the attack passes the patient fully recovers within a short time.

In chronic cases there may be headache, dizziness, blurring of the vision, a tired feeling, heart burn, gas in the stomach and pain or just a general feeling of distress and heaviness. Temporary relief for those with chronic indigestion may be gained by drinking large quantities of water between meals. The water dilutes the digestive juice and so relieves unpleasant symptoms which will otherwise arise.

The patient suffering from indigestion should try to lead a tranquil, even life. Many doctors know that family troubles are often a cause of indigestion, and some of the most stubborn cases of dyspepsia occur with women who long to leave their husbands but are tied to them by children. Nervous tension is always productive of indigestion. Newspaper men, editors, surgeons and others leading an exacting life find that they must reform their habits of indiscriminate eating if they would keep their good digestions.

If after proper foods are eaten gastric distress continues, the patient may relieve it by taking a teaspoonful of soda in water one hour after a meal, but this should not be used regularly but only on occasion if too much pain exists. In some cases, a milk diet should be used if the stomach is chronically inflamed.

It is to be noticed that those who are weight-lifters and wrestlers with a good abdominal development practically never suffer from indigestion. This is due to the abdominal muscles being kept in good tone. When these muscles are in good shape digestion more easily takes place.

CHEF WYMAN'S RECIPES

Every Friday at 2 o'clock Mrs. A. L. Wyman will conduct a free class and demonstration of good cookery in the lecture room of the Southwest Building, 130 South Broadway.

FISH PUDDING

Mix two cupfuls of cold cooked fish and one cupful of bread crumbs which have been soaked for five minutes in one cupful of fish stock or milk. Season with salt, paprika, one teaspoonful of chopped parsley and a half a teaspoonful of anchovy paste, beat the yolks of three eggs and add to the mixture and beat well; then beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth and fold into the mixture. Pour the mixture into individual molds and either steam or bake them. If steamed it will take about one and one-half hours, if baked it will take about thirty minutes. In baking them place them in a panful of hot water and place them in a moderate oven. Serve with a Hollandaise sauce.

HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

One cupful of butter, one cupful of boiling water, the yolks of four eggs, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, a seasoning of salt and a few grains of cayenne pepper. Rub the butter to a cream, add the well-beaten egg yolks, being sure to work them together very thoroughly, add the lemon juice a few drops at a time, then stir in the boiling water, adding it a little at a time. Place the mixture in the top of a double boiler, having the water in the bottom hot, but do not allow it to boil at any time. Stir constantly until the sauce is like thick cream; if the mixture should separate remove immediately from the fire and beat the mixture vigorously with a rotary egg beater, adding two tablespoonfuls of butter a little at a time while beating.

GUMBO OYSTERS

Two cupfuls of oysters, one small piece of salt pork, cut in dice, one tablespoonful of chopped onion, one tablespoonful of flour, one cupful of chicken broth, one tablespoonful of finely chopped green pepper, one cupful of cooked okra, one cupful of tomatoes, a seasoning of salt and pepper. Saute the diced salt pork with the minced onion until nicely browned, add the flour, and, when well blended, gradually pour in the broth, minced green peppers, cooked okra and tomatoes. Season and strain in the oyster liquid. When this is hot add the oysters and as soon as they are plump pour the mixture over hot Boston crackers that have been split and buttered.

WHEN THE SANDMAN COMES

by THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER ENLISTS HELP

With friends in trouble, needing aid,
There is no time to be afraid.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit was greatly distressed. Over in the Green Forest, Lightfoot the Deer and another Deer of about his own size had fought until at last their antlers became locked; and there they were, head to head, unable to separate. All the Green Forest knew about it. It seemed as if every one had paid that part of the Green Forest a visit. Peter Rabbit had not heard of the fight in time to see it, but he had heard of the accident, and, of course, he had hurried over there. Peter's heart was filled with pity.

Peter knew that, if only Farmer Brown's Boy would come along, all would be well. Peter has great faith in Farmer Brown's Boy. So he had done his best to try to think of some way of getting Farmer Brown's Boy over there. Finally Peter saw Sammy Jay. Sammy flew over and alighted quite near Peter.

"Do you know where Farmer Brown's Boy is right now?" inquired Peter.

"No," said Sammy, "I don't know where he is right now, but only a little while ago he was over in the Old Orchard picking apples. What do you want to know for?"

"I want to get him to come and help Lightfoot," said he.

"Don't be foolish, Peter," said Sammy. "If those two fellows can't get themselves apart, Farmer Brown's Boy certainly can't get them apart."

"I believe he could," replied Peter. "Anyway, he would try, and that's more than any one else is doing."

"What makes you think he would try?" asked Sammy.

"Did you ever know him to let any of the little people of the Green Forest or the Green Meadows stay in trouble, once he had found them in trouble?" demanded Peter.

Sammy looked thoughtful. "I believe you're right, Peter," said he. "But I don't see what even Farmer Brown's Boy could do for these two fellows. If they cannot pull themselves apart, he certainly cannot pull them apart."

But Peter was not to be discouraged. "He may not be able to pull them apart, but he'll get them apart somehow," he declared. "The thing to do now is to get him over here."

"That ought not to be difficult," replied Sammy. "My cousin, Blacky the Crow, and I can get him almost any time, if he isn't too busy."

"What are you all talking about?" demanded Ol' Mistah Buzzard, as he dropped down on the ground beside Peter.

Peter told him. Then Sammy Jay explained what he proposed to do. "I'll get my cousin, Blacky the Crow," said he, "and some of his flock, and I'll get two or three of my family and we'll all set up a great screaming. Farmer Brown's Boy will know that something has happened and he'll want to find out what it is; and if he isn't too busy, he'll come over to find out."

"Ah reckon that's a good plan, Brer Jay," said Ol' Mistah Buzzard. "Ah reckon ah can help. Ah'll just sail round and round up in the sky right over those two silly Deer. Farmer Brown's Boy will hear you-all, then he'll see me and reckon he'll hurry right over."

"Goody!" cried Peter. "That's just the very thing. Hurry and do it right away."

So Sammy Jay went to look for Blacky the Crow and pass the word along to members of his own family; and Ol' Mistah Buzzard mounted up in the air and began to sail round, right where Lightfoot the Deer and the other Deer lay.

"Do you know where Farmer Brown's Boy is right now?" inquired Peter.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Too Stiff

If you have gotten the cake batter too stiff, don't thin it out with milk; it will toughen it. Beat an egg up light and add it gradually to the batter until the correct thickness is reached.

Printed Linoleum

Printed linoleum should not be waxed as the wax tends to soften the varnish and the linoleum will look shabby before very long. Give it a coat of varnish every six months to keep it in good condition.

In Lieu of a Whipper

When there is no cream whipper at hand the double boiler comes in very handy. Put a little ice and salt in the lower section and the cream in the upper and whip with an egg beater. You will be pleased how quickly your job will be finished.

A Spice Box

A tin box containing six spice tins is a handy article for kitchen usage. Almost any recipe requiring spice will need more than one spice and with this handy little box all the spices are before you in one move. Besides there are no spilled spices on your pantry shelves.

SEASON OF OPERA WILL END TODAY

Presentation of "Lucia" With Clare Clairbert in Leading Role Slated

With Clare Clairbert singing the leading role, the Grand Opera Association's seventh annual season comes to a close tonight in the Shrine Auditorium, with Donizetti's "Lucia."

Clairbert, singing in "La Traviata" and "Mignon," has been the sensation of the entire season. She has received ovation after ovation and critics have compared her favorably with Tetrazzinni, another European coloratura, who made her debut more than two decades ago.

The Brussels soprano, the critics declare, has more than lived up to her advance reputation as the most distinguished singer of Europe. She will sing tonight with Gaetano Viviani, who, like Clairbert, is making his American debut; and Frederick Jagel, Metropolitan star, known as the leading American tenor of the day, who is making his first appearance in Southern California during the present season. Viviani is the leading baritone at the La Scala Opera, Milan, Italy.

"Lucia" is to be presented in new sets, scenery having been built under the direction of Armando Agnini, stage manager of the Metropolitan, who holds a similar position with the local association. Agnini's creations this season, especially those for "Girl of the Golden West," which was presented Saturday, have received much favorable comment.

Gaetano Merola, director-general of the Los Angeles and San Francisco associations, will conduct again tonight. Tickets for the final opera are on sale at Barker Brothers.

Judge Begins Jail Regime for Speeders

Fast driving on downtown streets means jail, Municipal Judge Valentine of the Traffic Court warned yesterday.

"Many serious traffic accidents are due solely to fast driving on busy streets," he said. "Fifty miles an hour is entirely too fast as long as congested conditions continue to exist."

In future, jail terms instead of fines will be imposed in every case where the speed is in excess of fifty miles an hour, Judge Valentine said.

Four drivers already are serving jail sentences imposed by Judge Valentine. They are Elmer H. Mills, 2727 Cincinnati street; Richard Bigby, 1046 Kirkwood street, Pasadena, and Manuel Macias, 3711 East Fourth street, all of whom received two-day jail terms, and Harold P. Jones, 343 South Detroit street, who was sentenced to three days. Jones was given an extra day because of higher speed. He was driving sixty miles an hour in a twenty-mile zone, while the others were driving fifty miles an hour.

Driver of Horse Admits Cruelty

Frank Barton, peddler of 2820 Blanchard street, drove his horse at top speed along Stanford avenue for such a distance that the animal nearly fell from exhaustion when halted, Inspectors McCarrel and Haeberly of the Humane Department told Municipal Judge Curtis when they took Barton before him to answer a charge of cruelty to animals. The inspectors said they pursued Barton at top speed for five blocks in their automobile before overtaking him. The horse was in such bad condition, they reported, that it was subsequently destroyed.

Barton pleaded guilty, but said that he did not know the horse was not in condition for fast driving. He was attempting to get home in a hurry, he said. Judge Curtis imposed a $25 fine.

OF THE COMMUNITY CHEST

H. D. IVEY SAYS:

"Los Angeles again faces the responsibility of properly caring for the unfortunate. The mere giving is not enough. There must be intelligent giving. Duplication is sheer waste and must be eliminated. Giving impulsively cannot reach beyond our limited personal horizon, and often defeats our very purpose. Organized giving is the only answer, and the Community Chest has clearly been established as an essential business institution. Without it we would revert to chaos and the consequent suffering and misery would compel us to invent something to take its place.

"We have the Community Chest splendidly organized and with years of experience back of it. Let's renew our faith in it and back it to the financial, moral and physical limit."

It is impossible for me to divorce my opinions from my prejudices and experiences," said the speaker. "The key to the life and development of this diocese is found in the personality and work of Bishop Johnson.

"Thirty-four years ago Dr. Joseph H. Johnson, rector of Christ Church, Detroit, was elected bishop of the new diocese of Los Angeles. To accept meant cutting ties that were precious to him and a venture of faith into a country which laymen of the north felt was destined to remain a waste for all time. However, he did accept and it was a fortunate thing for Southern California. He brought into the growing Southwest culture, spiritual discernment and a knowledge of men that made him a marked figure that helped to promote the character of our community. He was known in every town and hamlet and revered both as man and as bishop.

UNITED DIOCESE

"When I came to Los Angeles as bishop coadjutor, in charge of parish and mission work, I found a loyal, United diocese, with churchmen and women of constructive thinking and missionary interest," said Bishop Stevens. "I found a devoted group of clergy, eager that the work of the church should go forward. I found happiness and contentment resulting from the spirit of fellowship and brotherhood. All of this was the fruit of Bishop Johnson's labors."

Bishop Stevens paid tribute to other outstanding men and women whose devotion and service have contributed to the enrichment of the life of the diocese, making special mention of the late Dean William MacCormack.

"Dean MacCormack was a popular preacher and a pastor in the best sense of the world," said Bishop Stevens. "He loved contacts with men and, as the years go on, the affection in which he was held remains in the hearts of his friends. His outstanding contribution was in strengthening St. Paul's Cathedral and the Episcopal church, generally, as community forces for good."

HIGH MARK SET BY PASSPORTS

Number Issued So Far This Years Full Month Ahead of Previous Figure

A record in the issuance of passports for travel in foreign countries was made so far this year, according to Federal Passport Clerk Cordes.

He reported that the number exceeds 5000, whereas the 5000 record was not reached last year until the middle of November. Most of the travel is in Europe.

SAVONAROLA CALLED MARTYR FOR TRUTH

A tribute to Savonarola, Italian prophet and reformer, was voiced yesterday by Dr. John Snape in his sermon at Temple Baptist Church. Dr. Snape spoke in part as follows:

"Savonarola was esthetic, mystic, reformer, statesman, prophet—but mostly prophet. He cried aloud against the apathy, the luxury and the profligacy of the people in general and the Pope in particular. The Pope, Alexander the VI, excommunicated him and ordered him to stop preaching. He wouldn't stop and he was arrested, tortured, hanged and burned. I saw the spot a few weeks ago, where this terrible tragedy occurred in 1498. Ten years after his execution, Raphael painted him among the sainted doctors of the church in the halls of the Vatican. Florence perpetuates with a bronze tablet in the pavement of the Piazza della Signoria the scene of the burning, but posterity perpetuates the burning message of the prophet. Society may murder prophets, but it cannot kill truths."

ROBOT BLAMED FOR EMPLOYMENT LACK

Declaring that the robot is "kicking the laborer out of his job," Dr. Bruce Brown at South Park Christian Church yesterday voiced the opinion that "the principal cause of unemployment is the supplanting of manual labor by machinery." Dr. Brown said in part:

"The iron man only consumes food that pours in streams from the earth and needs no clothes and no costly home and no school and no shows. The man that has been displaced has no work and, therefore, no money to buy anything with. The nation is filled to overflowing with goods and luxuries but there is no market for the great mass of buyers has no money. There is only one remedy, a maximum day of labor of about four hours and a minimum wage of about $4. This would benefit the capitalists, the manufacturer and the business man for then there would be a market for every product."

SHEPARD EULOGIZES HONORED OLD AGE

Scores of men and women more than 70 years of age were honored guests yesterday at First Universalist Church. Addressing his audience, Dr. Shepard spoke in part as follows:

"Age is the most peaceful and happy period of the journey of life. Old persons are naturally charitable, forgiving, broadminded, loving. If old persons are ever unforgiving, dogmatic and uncharitable it is because they have missed the way. There are four unfailing secrets of happiness in old age. First, delight in pleasant memories, and refusal to linger with unpleasant thoughts; second, some absorbing interest and activity adjusted to the possibilities of present strength and circumstances; third, realization that the strains and responsibilities are gone; fourth, the understanding that death is a friend."

SALVATIONIST ARMY LAUDED BY SPEAKER

Brig. James C. Bell, commander of the Salvation Army of Los Angeles and South Coast Division, was the preacher yesterday at Salvation Army Temple. Brig. Bell said, in part:

"From its high ideals down to its uniforms, the Salvation Army is entirely scriptural. In its leadership, in its demonstration, in its music, its literature and manner of dress, Salvationism stands close to the Bible. In fact, it is a revival of old-fashioned religion. It harks back to the apostles and in its music and other unique distinctions it goes back to the patriarchs. One of the first things officers and soldiers learn is obedience. Noah, Moses and David obeyed God and prospered. Jonah disobeyed and sorrow came to him. Samuel had a school of prophets at Ramah and there he taught them the things prophets should know. This school of the prophets is strangely like the Salvation Army training college of today. When we come to consider the uniform of the Salvationist, there is the valiant man dressed in red, and the riband of blue to show his holiness. Of course, the Salvation Army has defects, caused by the fact that it is made up of human materials."

LESSON-SERMON FOR CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The question "Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon yesterday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

One of the Scripture selections contained the following verses from James: "Is any sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord: and the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him. Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much."

A correlative passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, stated: "The prayer that reforms the sinner and heals the sick is an absolute faith that all things are possible to God—a spiritual understanding of Him, and unselfed love. . . . Prayer, watching, and working, combined, with self-immolation, are God's gracious means for accomplishing whatever has been successfully done for the Christianization and health of mankind."

CHRISTMAS GIFTS' COSTS CUT

Playground Department Opens Course

Like "Old Curiosity Shop"

Lila De Vilbriss and Lela Woolsey, members of handicraft classes at municipal playgrounds, and inexpensive gifts, products of the classes.

"THE OLD CURIOSITY SHOP," made famous by Charles Dickens, will be duplicated at fourteen municipal playgrounds beginning today, when classes in Christmas gift-making for women and girls are started under the direction of the City Playground and Recreation Department.

Fancy pillows, lamp shades, lamps, bath mats, vases, serving trays and other objects will be made in the classes. More than 700 women and girls will attend the sessions.

According to Mrs. Mildred Van Werden, director of girls' and women's activities for the Playground Department, participants will be shown how to make gifts out of inexpensive materials.

By pasting different-colored envelop liners upon an ordinary glass jar and covering the surface with shellac a vase will be produced; by covering a sand-filled can with cloth, placing a doll on top and looping a ribbon-covered wire above a decorative "door-stop" is made, according to Mrs. Van Werden.

In a similar manner tinfoil, combined with cut-out silhouettes, will renew many a worn-out serving tray, while toy dogs, artificial flowerpots, crepe paper parrots and wastebaskets will be turned out in large numbers by these classes.

A central evening class for women and girls unable to attend the daytime groups will be held at Echo Playground.

WEEK-END ROBBERIES DECREASE

Four Persons Held Up and Less Than $150 Obtained; Two Suspects Seized

Bandits operating in the city over the week-end robbed four persons and obtained less than $150, according to police. Activities by motor-patrol police are believed to have caused the decrease in robberies.

Ivan Borrisoff, 1117 Arapahoe street, late Saturday night was robbed of $25 and a valuable watch by a motorist bandit, who stopped the victim at Tenth and Arapahoe streets and asked the direction of Venice. When Borrisoff stepped to the side of the car the bandit displayed a revolver and took his watch and money.

B. C. Masters, sailor of the U.S.S. Nevada, was robbed of $5 by two Negroes at Sixth and San Pedro streets, he reported to police early yesterday.

MOTORISTS PASS NEAR

A lone robber held up John Ritter, operator of a service station at 3100 South San Pedro street, and escaped with $25. As the man robbed Ritter several early-morning motorists passed within a few feet, he told police.

After forcing the manager of a Western Union Telegraph office at 2026 West Seventh street to open the cash drawer a lone bandit late Saturday night pushed the attendant, M. D. Gandell, into a rear room and escaped with $25.

Robert R. Foster, 22 years of age, who gave his occupation as an actor, was arrested early yesterday morning on suspicion of burglary. Marion Hoffman of 361 North Curson street and H. H. Anfinson of 365 North Curson street identified him as the man they had seen leaving their homes by way of a bedroom window, according to police. He was taken into custody in the vicinity a few minutes after Anfinson had called police. Anfinson reported he lost a purse from his bedroom. Foster gave his home address as 5614 Franklin avenue.

From the finger print charts, according to the police, young Foster has five previous arrests, two on felony charges, and has staged at least one of the many burglaries that have occurred in the last six months at fashionable homes while parties were in progress. Police said he gave the name Robert R. Smith when arrested but that he was identified through fingerprints as Foster, son of a business man.

SUSPECT SEIZED

In response to a phone call from Chief of Police Smith of Bell, Detective Lieutenants Lynde and Egan of the Hollywood division yesterday arrested Robert J. Williams, 28, of 854 North Irving Boulevard, on a charge of suspicion of burglary.

Chief Smith told the Hollywood police that on Saturday a man had been seen prowling on the roof of a grocery store in Bell and then had fled in an automobile when he noticed he was being observed. Nothing was stolen from the store. Citizens obtained the license number of the car in which the man fled and Chief Smith said Williams was registered as the owner. He denied he was in Bell Saturday but admitted he owns a car having the license number given by the Bell Chief.

F. J. EASLEY, RAIL MAN, SUCCUMBS

Pneumonia Proves Fatal to Veteran of Santa Fe After Week's Illness

A veteran of more than twenty years in the service of the Santa Fe Railway system, Frank Julian Easley, died yesterday afternoon at the California Lutheran Hospital following a week's illness from pneumonia. Mr. Easley was 70 years of age and had been living in Los Angeles for five years, since his retirement from active work.

His first connection with the Santa Fe Railway was during the early construction days when he was stationed at Denver. He was later made assistant general manager with headquarters in the same city. For a time he served with the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad at Des Moines.

During the period of government ownership of railroads at the time of the World War, Mr. Easley was a member of the United States Railway Labor Board stationed at Washington, D. C. Following his war-time service he was sent to Cuba to become general manager of the Consolidated Railways of Cuba and held that post until his retirement five years ago.

He leaves one son, Harry D. Easley of Florence, Kan., and a daughter, Mrs. C. S. Reid of Camaguey, Cuba, who was with her father at the time of his death.

Although definite plans for the funeral services had not been formulated yesterday, the Turner & Stevens Company which has charge of the arrangements said that the rites probably will be conducted in Denver.

BRICKLAYER HANGS SELF TO BEDPOST

The body of Robbert Goggie, 25-year-old bricklayer, was discovered hanging by a trouser belt from the end of a bed last night in his hotel room at 600 West Avenue 27, it was reported by Detective Lieutenants Bradley and Carter of Lincoln Heights division. No reason for the asserted suicide could be offered by the hotel proprietor, who discovered the body. Goggie was not married. His body was removed to the County Morgue.

DAM OPENS MARKET FOR ANGELENOS

Chamber of Commerce to Keep Local Concerns in Touch With Project

A service to assist Los Angeles firms in finding markets for their products in connection with the building of Boulder Dam has been established by the Chamber of Commerce, it was announced yesterday.

Firms or individuals having equipment, supplies, materials, etc., to sell, are advised that at present purchases are being made three ways: Through S. O. Harper, Bureau of Reclamation, Wilda Building, Denver, Colo.; Walker R. Young, Bureau of Reclamation, Las Vegas, Nev., and the individual contractors to whom bids have been awarded.

"The proper procedure to follow," announces the chamber, "is to write to the two Bureau of Reclamation officials mentioned above, outline the products you are interested in supplying and ask to be placed on the mailing list to receive invitations to bid.

"As the various contract awards are made notice of the successful bidders will be published in the Western Construction News of San Francisco and the Engineering News Record of New York City. Those sufficiently interested to keep close touch with the progress of the work and general development may do so by subscribing to the New Reclamation Era, 75 cents a year, published by the Bureau of Reclamation, Washington, D. C."

RAID MADE ON STILLS IN CANYON

Two Arrested as Police Find Liquor Apparatus in San Fernando Valley

There were two kinds of moonshine in San Fernando Valley late Saturday night, Van Nuys police discovered.

Away up in Tuna Canyon there is a little gully and at the bottom of the gully a wash. On the brink of the gully is a shed. On the city map it appears as 774 Tuna Canyon avenue.

In the moonshine Patrol Officers Harrison and Wright could see it plainly and signs of activity about the shed aroused their suspicions.

Investigating, they found, they said, two 128-gallon stills complete, 6000 gallons of mash, and thirty-five gallons of the illicit brand of moonshine. Domencio Cornaggia, 33 years of age, operating one of the stills, was quickly taken into custody. Mike Rosonov, 38, ran out of a rear door and into the wash but was pursued and captured by Officer Wright, according to his report. Both were taken to Van Nuys Police Station and locked up on charges of manufacture of liquor and possession of liquor and manufacturing apparatus.

Morley Drury Will Recover

Morley Drury, former all-American football player, will be "just as good as new," it was declared last night by his physician, Dr. Harry Wilson, in commenting on the athlete's so-far successful fight against infantile paralysis.

It will be two weeks, however, before Drury will be able to leave General Hospital, where he was taken on the 5th inst., when he lost control of the muscles in his right hand and arm.

Dr. Wilson said Drury shows no effects of the muscle disease.

THRONGS SEE AMATEUR AVIATORS VIE FOR TITLE

Nearly 10,000 persons saw nine amateur air pilots race their planes and perform precision landings yesterday afternoon at Los Angeles Metropolitan Airport in the first of three meets which will determine the amateur flying champion of the West.

John Kubler, winner of the free-for-all race in a Crown biplane with an average speed of 108 miles an hour over a twenty-seven-mile course, emerged with five points, which will count toward his total in competition for the amateur title.

Clarence Leiper and Harper Ledbetter tied for first place in the landing contest and will compete again tomorrow to break the tie. William Graves, Jr., was awarded third place.

B. V. Alvord and Jack Powell took second and third place, respectively, in the race. The scheduled O-X-5-engined plane race was postponed.

Two more similar meets will be conducted to determine the amateur king under sanction of the National Aeronautic Association. Dudley Steele, C. F. Lienesch and Fred Elliott were yesterday's judges.
